HOUSE PASSES SHOALS LEASE BILL, 216-153

Democrats Assisted by 87 Republicans on Roll Call.

ADVOCATES ASSURED OF SENATE APPROVAL

(Associated Press.)

Only a flimsey Senate barrier stood last night between Muscle Shoals legislation and the White House.

Sped to the Senate by a House vote of 216 to 153, its advocates looked confidently to adoption of the measure there. A similar measure has been approved by the Senate in the past.

The Democratic House minority was joined by 87 Republicans and Representative Kvale (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, in favor of the report. Three Democrats opposed it. They were Representatives Douglas, Arizona, and Linthicum and Palmisano, of Maryland.

For the second time in ten years a President must rule on Government or private operation of the $150,000,000 project on the Tenessee River in Alabama. Two years ago a similar bill was given a pocket veto by President Coolidge. The same course is open to Mr. Hoover.

Wide Powers for Lease.

The bill now approaching the Chief Executive sets up a corporation to operate the power plant at Wilson Dam, construct the Cove Creek Dam in Tennessee and build transmission lines to carry any surplus power to purchasers. State and local governments have the first right to surplus power.

The President is given wide powers to negotiate a lease for the nitrate plants. The lessee would purchase power on the condition that not less than 85 per cent be used in production of fertilizer. Other products could be manufactured with the remaining 15 per cent, but not on Government property.

Failure to lease the nitrate plants within twelve months leaves them to the Government corporation for the production of fertilizer.

The House conferees contend that the production of fertilizer will consume all the power and leave none to warrant the construction of transmission lines which presented the major battle over the bill in conference.

Two Hours of Debate.

Bills already are before both the House and Senate appropriations committees for the $10,000,000 appropriation authorized to build Cove Creek Dam.

The vote came after two hours of debate, an extensoin to twice the amount usually allowed conference reports on the insistence of administration leaders. Representative Wurzbach (Republican), Texas, steered the report on behalf of the conference committee. Representative Ransley (Republican), Pennsylvania, the only House conferee who did not approve it, directed the opposition.

Representatives Fort, New Jersey; Treadway, Massachusetts, and Wood, Indiana, administration Republicans, led the attack against the measure which they termed "Socialistic," an "invasion of States rights," and a waste of Government funds. No statement was made of the President's attitude toward the bill.

Early Lease Predicted.

Much of the debate centered on the probability of leasing the nitrate plants for the production of fertilizer. Mr. Wurzbach, Representative Reece, of Tennessee, a Republican conferee, and the Democratic supporters of the bill, were joined by Chairman James, of the military committee, in confidently predicting a lessee could be found for the property.

"The President is going to be able to lease this plant and there will be no surplus power for sale," James said.

Representative Eaton (Republican), New Jersey, called the bill "a hunk

Men on U. S. Projects Will Number 450,000

Hoover Estimates Total Workers to Be Affected, Directly and Indirectly, Within Next 30 Days in Building Program.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Within the next 30 days 450,000 men will be employed directly or indirectly as a result of the Federal building program, President Hoover stated at the White House yesterday. Prior to the business depression, it was said, the number so employed was about 150,000.

When the President speaks of men being employed indirectly he has in mind those who help manufacture materials that go into a Federal project, or who are otherwise given employment as a result of that project.

The President's estimate that 450,000 will be given employment as a result of Federal building activities in the next 30 days, was based on a survey made of the construction plans of the various Government departments.

Passage of the remaining appropriation bills by Congress, President Hoover pointed out, will further expedite Federal building activities, inasmuch as all bills carry a proviso authorizing immediate expenditure of certain sums for construction projects.

These sums, which may be spent immediately once the legislation has been enacted, total $500,000,000. The total of all sums carried in appropriation bills for Federal building projects is $700,000,000, the largest sum ever authorized for that purpose in one year.

Yesterday the Senate completed congressional action on two of the appropriation bills and sent them to the President. They were the billion-dollar Treasury-Postoffice bill and the $446,000,000 War Department, both of which are loaded with construction items.

The President's announcement that employment as a result of Federal building is on the increase followed encouraging reports that have been flowing into the office of Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's emergency committee for employment.

Since last November, the committee has learned of contemplated building projects—Federal, State, County, municipal and semiofficial—the cost of which will be about $5,000,000,000.

Contracts have been let for jobs the cost of which will exceed $500,000,000.

SENATE BODY HALTS POSTAL LEASE QUIZ

EXCHANGES FLARE UP

(Associated Press.)

The Senate committee investigating postoffice leases yesterday dropped its inquiry temporarily after former Postmaster General New had flatly refused to discuss what took place at a Cabinet meeting during the Coolidge administration.

The session was marked by savage exchanges between Mr. New and Chairman Blaine with two other committee members supporting the former postal official. Mr. Blaine was assailed for his method of questioning Mr. New.

Several times Mr. New showed feeling at Mr. Blaine's method of examination and once accused him of asking "insulting questions."

The cross-examination of Mr. New centered almost entirely around a letter from former Budget Director Lord to Mr. New recommending purchase of the St. Paul commercial station postoffice and a memorandum written by Mr. New telling of discussion of the station lease at a Cabinet meeting.

When Mr. Blaine began to question Mr. New about the memorandum the witness refused to discuss what had taken place in the Cabinet meeting.

Senator Hastings (Republican), Delaware, insisted the memorandum should be shown to Mr. New before he was questioned about it.

"I resent any suggestion of the manner in which I should conduct this examination," Mr. Blaine retorted. "Certainly the senator is not so obtuse that he says a court would ever permit the reading of inconsequential details."

Mr. Hastings replied he had never heard of a court allowing a witness to be questioned about a paper without seeing it first.

Mr. Blaine insisted his procedure was right, but Senator Hebert (Republican), Rhode Island, another member of the committee, supported Mr. Hastings.

The memorandum said that during the Cabinet session Secretary of State

PINCHOT SEALS FATE FOR BLONDE BANDIT

DAGUE ADMISSION HINTED

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Gov. Pinchot late today declined a request for a respite for Mrs. Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, under sentence to die in the electric chair at Rockview Penitentiary next Monday morning for slaying a policeman.

The stay was asked by an attorney retained by Mrs. Ella Mountz, wealthy Clearfield County woman, who interested herself in the case of the blonde bandit.

The appeal was based on a desire of defense counsel to search for a revolver in a Fort Worth (Tex.) pawn shop. It was said the gun was disposed of there as the couple fled to the Southwest after Corporal Brady Paul, of the State highway patrol, had been slain near Newcastle more than a year ago, and on its recovery hinged a contention that Mrs. Schroeder did not fire the fatal shot.

The governor, in a written reply, said: "I have carefully studied the petition for a respite and regret to advise I can not see my way clear to postpone the execution of the sentence."

Pittsburgh, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—The Sun-Telegraph says Walter Glenn Dague today was reported to be writing a confession designed to save Irene Schroeder from the electric chair in which both are under sentence to die next Monday for the killing of a State highway patrolman.

Old Presidential Yacht Ordered to Junk Yard

(Associated Press.)

The historic yacht Mayflower, for years the pleasure craft of Presidents, is to be scrapped. This was announced yesterday by Secretary Adams, who said the decision was reached on account of the recent damage to the vessel when it caught on fire and sank at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

A survey by a naval board estimated repairs would cost approximately $210,000. Four unsuccessful efforts to sell the vessel, which served as the presidential yacht for 27 years, have been made.

Members and Clerks Shun Foe of Nepotism and Wife

Representative Stone Declares House Colleagues and Employes of Executive Departments Resent His Stand on Employment of Relatives.

Representative U. S. Stone, Republican, of the Fifth district of Oklahoma, has discovered that certain things a member of Congress must not do if he would have peace and plenty, and one of them is to call attention to nepotism at the Capitol. In a courageous moment he introduced a bill barring relatives of members of Congress and other high officials from Government pay rolls, and now he is scowled at by colleagues and his wife gets cool treatment at social functions.

"Yes," said Mr. Stone, "I never dreamed that a simple, constructive move on my part could make such a difference. I pass fellow House members in the hallways of the House Office Building and they do not speak to me. My wife is punished for my daring. Even bureau clerks in departments give me the cold shoulder, and interfere with my work as a member of the House.

"Members whisper to me that I am right but I will not succeed. Others have warned me that I would suffer for my rashness.

2 UPRISINGS HIT SOUTH AMERICA AS THIRD FAILS

61 SLAIN IN CALLAO; PARAGUAYANS REBEL

British Princes Near Area of Disturbance; Argentine Revolt Is Nipped.

Two actual outbreaks of a revolutionary nature against existing governments and reports of the thwarting of a third subversive plot featured Associated Press dispatches from South America yesterday.

In Peru an attempted overthrow of the government was prevented after severe fighting, in which an American citizen was killed, while revolutionists were reported in control of a frontier town in Paraguay.

In the Argentine a group of Army officers was reported under arrest in connection with a plot against the government which was to have culminated on the eve of Mardi Gras.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

40 Loyalists Are Kileld.

Official estimates tonight said the figures were only approximate. The dead included 40 royalists and 20 rebels.

Reginald A. Skidmore, 40, native of Bethlehem, Pa., was killed by a stray bullet at Callao. Mr. Skidmore was assistant marine superintendent at Callao for the Grace Steamship Co. and had been first officer of one of the Grace company's liners.

Lima remained calm throughout the short-lived revolt and while a few shops closed their shutters and troops were stationed in the main plaza, business generally went on as usual.

While the fighting was in progress at Callao the government declared a state of siege and Provisional President Sanchez Cerro issued a proclamation declaring that the authors of the attempt would be punished severely.

Adherents of Leguia.

The insurgents, numbering about 60, were declared by authorities to be adherents of former President Augusto B. Leguia, who was deposed last year by a military junta headed by Sanchez Cerro.

The revolt started just before dawn this morning, when the insurgents attacked the palace, where just last week the Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, were entertained by President Sanchez Cerro.

Buenos Aires, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—The correspondent of the newspaper La Nacion at Posadas, Argentina, reported today that revolutionists had captured the Paraguayan frontier town of Villa Encarnacion. Rail and wire communication with Villa Encarnacion was interrupted.

Precautions Are Taken.

The revolt was believed to be isolated and no other Paraguayan towns were mentioned as having been affected. Authorities at Posadas, according to the correspondent, were taking precautions to prevent the entry of the disturbers there.

Posadas is just across the Parana River from Villa Encarnacion.

The rebels, reported to be led by Narcos Karner, Abdulio Barthe and Facundo Duarte, were said to have taken the police headquarters, the customs house and all public buildings.

CONTROL URGED OVER RAILROAD HOLDING FIRMS

House Committee Finds Need for Regulating Stock Ownership.

REINS NOW IN HANDS OF 14 MAJOR GROUPS

Amending of Commerce Act to Regulate Merger Plans Sought.

Recommendation for legislation to put under Federal control, through the Interstate Commerce Commission, all holding corporations of railroads and other utilities engaged in interstate commerce, was submitted to the House yesterday in the first report of the holding company inquiry conducted by the House interstate commerce committee.

Convinced that this preliminary examination into the right of Federal Government to regulate the stock ownership of railroads warrants further investigation and legislation, the report, which includes an array of legal opinion, lists the following recommendations:

1. That the interstate commerce act be amended to give the commission the right to approve or disapprove acquisition of the control of a railroad which would result in bringing that road into affiliation with, in control of, or under the management of another road, whether the acquisition be by holding company or otherwise.

Would Broaden Inquiry.

2. That Congress at its next session decide whether legislation is necessary to deal with past acquisitions or railroad properties disclosed in the report which have not been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission as being in the public interest.

3. That the scope of the investigation be broadened to include all holding companies engaged in interstate commerce.

No action was taken by the House committee when the report was submitted in executive session yesterday, but the investigation will be continued along the lines suggested. In outlining the report in the House, Representative Parker (Republican), New York, chairman of the committee, said the amendments recommended should be passed with promptness.

"The activities which may be construed as imposing a burden upon interstate commerce and which may interfere with congressional planning in the public interest," he said, "have been by companies acting beyond the jurisdiction of the commission or at least as far without the reach of the jurisdiction as the cunning of lawyers could contrive."

Should Study Advantages.

He added, however, that he believed that before Congress entered upon a further legislative program it should seek full information "concerning the advantages of the holding companies in various lines of business."

Pointing out that fourteen major groups now control 210,000 miles, or 85 per cent of the railway mileage of the country, the report suggested that it may well be asked if legislation would not be too late to close the door to consolidations already planned.

"As a matter of fact," it continued, "there are two outstanding recent developments which appear to have an unsettling effect on the railroads in the West. These are, first, the acquisition of the Missouri Pacific lines by the Van Sweringen interests; second, the proposal under the plan for the four systems in the East to ex-

Calvin Coolidge

Says: February 22d marks the 199th birthday of George Washington. His stature has only increased with the years. His public life was characterized by complete unselfishness. Indifferent to his own fortunes his only concern was for his country. He needed no pretense and no art. He was simply and naturally great.

From every avenue of approach we find a complete man. In all his actions he was precise, accurate, methodical. His diary extends from early youth to the day before his death. It would be difficult to show him mistaken on any important question. The personification of judgment and character, his yea, yea and nay, nay was a disquisition which has all the eloquence of Patrick Henry, all the political wisdom of John Adams, all the economic authority of Alexander Hamilton, and all the judicial finality of John Marshall.

He was the best business man of his day, the ablest general of his era, the wisest statesman of the world and the most exalted patriot of all time. His fellow countrymen look on him as a father and all humanity worships him as the incarnation of the spirit of ordered liberty.

Aid Gives Life to Save King Zog From Shots

Adjutant Is Fatally Hurt Frustrating Attempt on Sovereign.

Vienna, Feb. 20 (A.P.)—King Zog of Albania, one of the most closely guarded monarchs of Europe, whose life has been plotted against many times, was fired at tonight by would-be assassins, but escaped injury.

The king was leaving the Vienna Opera House, surrounded by his staff, when the Albanians fired several shots into the group. The bullets missed the king, but his adjutant, Maj. Topolai, fell dead and a court official, M. Lipozova, was wounded in the leg.

According to one report, King Zog owed his life to Maj. Topolai, who saw the assassins take aim and dashed in front of his royal master. He received the bullets intended for the king in his own breast.

The king himself helped police and his chauffeur to seize his assailants. Their names were given as Aziz Cami and Tielezzi.

They were said to belong to the opposition party in Albania.

This was not the first time that Zog had narrowly escaped death. In 1924, when he was premier of Albania, a student shot at him in Tirana, slightly wounding him.

KING ZOG.

Zog was proclaimed king by the National Assembly of Albania in 1928, and won himself the title of "the hardest working monarch in Europe."

Mountaineers of his country declared a blood feud against him and at times he was virtually a prisoner in his palace because of the fear that he might be assassinated were he to appear in public. It was said that his old mother prepared his food to prevent the possibility of its being poisoned.

For more than a year there have been constant rumors that he was gravely ill, if not actually dying, but specialists whom he came to visit in Austria recently diagnosed nothing more serious than disorders from over-smoking.

COLORADAN NAMED AS AID TO STIMSON

WILL SUCCEED JOHNSON

President Hoover yesterday nominated James Grafton Rogers, of Colorado, lawyer and author, and a former reporter on the New York Sun, to be Assistant Secretary of State. He will succeed Nelson T. Johnson, who is now the American Minister to China.

Mr. Rogers, now dean of the Law School of the University of Colorado, was born in Denver, Colo., January 13, 1883, attended St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and was graduated from Yale University in 1905 with the degree of A. B., and from the Yale Law School in 1908 with the degree of LL. B. He received the degree of LL. D. from that school last year.

Mr. Rogers married Cora May, daughter of former Gov. James H. Peabody, of Colorado, and the couple have three children.

From 1905 to 1906 Mr. Rogers was a reporter on the Sun in New York. From 1909 to 1910, he was assistant attorney general of Colorado. After that he became the junior member of the law firm of Rogers, Shafroth & Rogers. He enlisted in the Army for the World War in July, 1916, and was honorably discharged as a first lieutenant in December, 1918. Since 1923 he has been a member of the law firm of Hodges, Wilson & Rogers in addition to being connected with the Law School of the University of Colorado.

He is a member of numerous organizations, including the American Legion, and is the author of "The Fire of Romance," "The Goldenrod Lode," and "The Third Day."

WOODCOCK REPORT URGES HOME OPTION

OFFICIALS ARE SHIELDED

(Associated Press.)

A vast conglomeration of surveys and testimony—the material upon which the Wickersham commission prepared its conflicting prohibition report—was dumped before the Senate yesterday at its request.

Ranging from investigations into every known liquor system throughout the world to surveys of liquor conditions in 32 States, the material, nevertheless, constituted only a part of the commission's data.

It was transmitted in response to a resolution by Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, an antiprohibitionist, asking for all nonsecret data, and on this ground the commission apparently withheld intimate testimony not only from Attorney General Mitchell and Secretary Mellon, but also the statements of other high officials.

High lights of the mass of data were:

An unexpected suggestion from Prohibition Director Woodcock while an investigator for the commission, that the solution of the "troublesome question" of prohibition may lie "not in State, county or district option, but home option.

"It could be put into effect by a simple administrative policy—to make no effort to overcome the difficulties that legally exist in getting evidence as to violations in the home."

The Prohibition Bureau reported less consumption of liquor under prohibition than in saloon days. It estimated the Nation consumed 1.705 gallons of liquor per capita in pre-prohibition days and only .602 gallons per capita in 1930.

A two-volume statement from Henry S. Dennison and Albert Sawyer, the commission's chief investigators, denouncing present dry law conditons, but concluding: "There has not yet been any true test of the prohibition laws."

A statement from Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Attorney General in charge of prohibition and now counsel for a grape concentrate concern, that it was the "clear intent" of Congress to "exempt from prosecution the manufacture of limited quantities of wine in the

Parents Slay Son for Gold Unaware He Is Their Own

Polish Mother Insane on Learning Identity of Guest She and Mate Killed for Greed as He Showed Wealth Acquired in America.

Warsaw, Poland, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Brutal truth in the remote village of Zagajniki has proved stranger than the fiction, which was laughed away as preposterous when Henry Rostworowski, Polish dramatist, wrote it as a play.

Andrew Cygan, so this real life drama goes, came home to that little town after eighteen years of hard work and thrifty living in America. Late that night, according to the story the villagers tell, he knocked at the door of the cottage where his aged parents lived.

His mother let him in, but the only light in the single room came from a fire on the hearth. It was too faint for the old eyes of his parents to recognize their son. He decided to pose as a stranger.

Late into the night he sat with the old folks beside the fire and told them of the wonders of the New World, showing them a wallet bulging with money.

A look of grim understanding passed between the old man and his wife and Louis Cygan, seizing an ax, brought it down on the stranger's skull. Then they looked at identification papers in the dead man's wallet.

The next morning neighbors found them moaning over the body of their son. The mother was insane.

VETO OF BONUS BILL IS SLATED FOR MIDWEEK

REPASSAGE ASSURED BY CONGRESS' CHIEFS

Hoover Must Turn 96 Votes to Avoid Overriding; Filibuster Ends.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover will veto the veterans' bill the middle of next week, it was made known authoritatively yesterday. The President himself told newspapermen that he would "take action" on the measure at that time, and a short while later Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, announced on the Senate floor that he had been authorized to say that the President would "veto" it then.

Extra Session Rumor Heard as Bonus Threat

(Associated Press.)

The rumor spread through the Senate chamber yesterday that the President was prepared to state in his veto message on the veterans' bill that if it were enacted over his veto he would be forced to call Congress into extra session this spring to provide ways and means of raising money.

This rumor was without official confirmation and there was no word on it from the White House. The congressional reactions to the rumor were varied. Some believed if such a statement were made the President would gain sufficient strength to uphold the veto.

Others believed it would make no difference, insisting that there was no need for a bond issue, as maintained by the Treasury, and that if any additional appropriations were necessary they could be voted before the March 4 adjournment.

There had been no question, of course, about what he intended to do, but it was important to know when he intended doing it, as the proponents of the measure are confidently planning to override his veto and enact the measure, by which veterans may borrow up to 50 per cent of the face value of their adjusted certificates at 4½ per cent, into law.

Ample Vote to Override.

And the leaders of both houses have conceded that the vote of 363 to 39, by which the measure was passed in the House, and 72 to 12 in the Senate, indicates that this will be done.

There was some surprise over the announcement that the President would not act until next week, the seemingly authoritative word Thursday being that he would act upon the measure within 48 hours. He received it yesterday shortly after the House convened.

By receiving it at that time it is believed that he could kill the bill by not taking action on it until within a few minutes of adjournment of Congress at noon, March 4, at a time close enough to adjournment as to prevent the bill being returned in time for another vote. This is neither here nor there, however, in view of his announced intention to act the middle of next week.

Veterans Sway Congress.

Aside from the fact that it takes some little time to gather the material for and to prepare a veto message, it is likely that Mr. Hoover's decision not to unnecessarily rush matters is predicated upon a desire to give the House time to cool off.

This body has stood by the President heretofore though it went pell mell in breaking ranks on the veterans' bill. These votes on veterans' legislation are not, however, votes against the President but votes for the veterans. These gentlemen have a peculiar sway over Congress.

Mr. Hoover has reason to entertain some degree of hope that by the middle of next week sanity, as he sees it, will have returned to the House. And it is a fact that when veterans' legislation is the issue, and regardless of the merits or demerits involved, sanity is not the ruling force.

House To Get Pressure.

Between now and Wednesday both House and Senate will be given a tremendous press drubbing and undoubtedly all available administration pressure brought to bear on the House which is the only possibility of the two branches of the President's veto being sustained.

Opponents of the legislation have to draw heavily upon their optimism to hope that it will be done there. Time, however, will operate in the President's favor.

And it is true that at the last session he accomplished the almost superhuman task of bringing the House back into line after it had run amuck on veterans' legislation. The compromise worked out then was a pretty costly one, though, but generally admitted to be fairer than the original measure.

Must Switch 96 Votes.

There were 402 votes cast in the House on the pending veterans' bill, the largest House attendance at this session. With the same number voting upon a presidential veto Mr. Hoover must switch 96 votes, or in other words muster one more than a one-third vote, or 135. It would be a remarkable overturn.

His definite announcement as to when he intended to act on the bill relieved a legislative jam in the Senate. Senator Couzens, of Michigan, had announced, and even launched, a filibuster against the naval appropriation bill, explaining very frankly that he would not permit his passage until the veterans' bill came back.

He subsequently explained, however, that the President's announcement was satisfactory and the Senate moved on to clean up on the appropriation bills.

Army-Navy Union Post Urges Veto of Bonus Bill

President Hoover was called on to veto the bonus bill in a letter written by the President's Own Garrison of the Army and Navy Union, personally presented to Mr. Hoover yesterday at the White House by Robert I. Miller, commander.

"On behalf of the President's Own Garrison, No. 104, Army and Navy Union, U. S. A.," the letter read, "I desire to express our opposition to the House bill recently passed by the Congress and to advise you formally that we are entirely in accord with your views in this matter.

"While we are entirely in accord with your position that too much can not be done for the veteran who is needy and in distress, there can be no justification, from an economic standpoint, for the legislation recently enacted.

"We feel that if this legislation is to become a law it will be a grave detriment to the best interests of the World War veterans, and we cheerfully pledge you our support in any unfavorable action you may take as Chief Executive when this bill is presented to you for your signature."

The letter was signed by Mr. Miller. It was unanimously approved at a meeting of the garrison Thursday night at the District Building.

Veterans in Illinois Burn Effigy of Mellon

Homer, Ill., Feb. 20 (A.P.).—An effigy labeled "Andy Mellon" was burned on Main street last night while members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars were attending the institution of a new post here.

It was a protest against the Secretary of the Treasury's attitude on proposed bonus payments.

Dr. E. Leroy Mercer, who recently was appointed dean of the physical education department at the University of Pennsylvania, will address the University of Pennsylvania alumni of Washington at their annual banquet at 7 o'clock tonight at the Willard Hotel.

State Rests Case On Carroll Show

Courtroom, Stage Versions May End in Dead Heat Today.

Chicago, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—The courtroom and the stage versions of Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" may end in a dead heat tomorrow.

After six hours of testimony, the State today rested its case charging indecency and obscenity. Counsel for the 25 chorines and four male principals agreed they could complete their case tomorrow, the day on which the musical comedy ends its local run.

Simultaneously, the management announced business justified the return of the show to Chicago March 1 unless the court decrees otherwise.

Rear Admiral Harris, Retired, Is Divorced

Reno, Nev, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Mrs. Florence Russell Bennett Harris was granted a divorce here today from Frederick Robert Harris, retired rear admiral in the United States Navy and noted engineer, on grounds of desertion and mental cruelty.

Admiral Harris was in charge of the Navy land construction program during the World War, both in this country and abroad, and was manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and the United States Shipping Board. Since his retirement he has engaged in private engineering projects.

Notice was served on the district attorney's office by William Beirne, her attorney, of an intention to file a motion for a new trial before Judge Doran next Tuesday. If a denial is made, Beirne said, original application for bail will be filed with the district court of appeals.

Amendment Stricken From Offices Appropriations in Conference.

LOBBY REPORTED ACTIVE

The Reed amendment prohibiting Government employes drawing large salaries from benefiting from pensions awarded under provisions of the emergency officers retirement law, has been tentatively striken out of the independent offices appropriations bill.

The bill has been in conference between House and Senate and the Reed amendment has been eliminated. Final agreement is being held up by dispute among the conferees over a Shipping Board item.

Elimination of the Reed amendment has been sought, it is rumored, by one of the most influential canvasses seen in recent years. Influence of lobbyists is increased because of close association of many of them with members of Congress.

Pork Barrel Reference.

The Veterans' Bureau has come to assume something of the complexion of the old pork barrel rivers and harbors bill and many members of Congress can not escape memory of preferential treatment given claims urged by them, or even extra legal treatment given them in veterans' hospitals, although they never swore to military obedience.

The battle was precipitated by Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, in a speech on the House floor in which he singled out William Wolff Smith, "Poker Bill," Mr. Blanton called him, head of the legal department of the Veterans' Bureau, as an example of the abuse which has been made of the emergency officers' retirement law. Mr. Smith, Mr. Blanton said, was drawing a high Government salary on the assumption that he was entirely competent to do the work incident to his job and at the same time was drawing an annuity from the Government of more than $150 a month as being partially disabled. Mr. Blanton cited other officers of the Veterans' Bureau by name.

Senator David A. Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, took up the fight when the bill reached the Senate and had adopted an amendment prohibiting any Government employe receiving more than $2,000 a year from drawing additional money as compensation for war-incurred disabilities.

Senate Conferees Yield.

That amendment has been one of the things in disagreement between the two houses and the Senate conferees have yielded and there will be no change in the existing situation unless the conferees reverse.

Explaining their decision to knock out the Reed amendment conference committee members say whatever fault there may be is due to defects in the emergency officers' retirement law.

Legal interpretations of that law, they said, brought within its scope and benefits thousands of men who were not in the mind of Congress for benefits when the law was enacted. Revision of the law is out of the question at this session. It probably will be brought to issue in the next session.

Favorable Report Given Alien Bills

Measures Involving Reds and Undesirables Leave House Committee.

(Associated Press.)

Legislation to accelerate deportation of undesirable aliens and to exclude alien communists from the United States was reported favorably yesterday by the House immigration committee. The measures are in line with the administration's plans for a Nation-wide campaign to rid the country of undesirables.

The communist exclusion measure was by Representative Bachmann (Republican), West Virginia, while Chairman Johnson, of the committee, sponsored the other bill. The Bachmann measure would exclude alien communists by placing them under the same deportation law as anarchists. It was one of several bills recommended by the Fish communist investigating committee.

Under the Johnson proposal the method of handling deportation cases would be simplified by permitting prosecution of an illegal entrant in the Federal district court where he was apprehended. Under existing law, he has to be prosecuted at the place where he entered. Persons convicted of crimes not involving moral turpitude also would be deportable under the Johnson bill. At present deportations largely are based on charges involving moral turpitude.

SCHALL SEES INSULT IN CHOICE OF JUDGE

Will Oppose G. H. Nordbye, Nominated by President to Federal Bench.

HOOVER SHOWS LETTERS

(Associated Press.)

The long fight over a Minnesota Federal judgeship was put up to the Senate yesterday when President Hoover ignored appointees suggested by Senator Schall (Republican), Minnesota, and named Gunnar H. Nordbye, of Minneapolis.

Senator Schall immediately went before the Senate with a statement that he would fight Mr. Nordbye's confirmation, adding: "He is especially undesirous to me." He termed the appointment a "studied affront to me on the part of the Attorney General."

The Senate listened in silence as the statement was read. Mr. Schall in it expressed the hope that his colleagues would support him in opposition to Mr. Nordbye.

Michel Is Schall's Choice.

Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, had said he thought the name should go to committee and that any complaints against Mr. Nordbye should be heard. He would make no further comment.

Mr. Nordbye's appointment was transmitted to the Senate only a little while before the statement of the blind Minnesota senator. It was referred as a matter of routine to the judiciary committee. Mr. Schall had sought the appointment of Ernest Michel, but Attorney General Mitchell refused to recommend his candidate.

President Hoover in sending the nomination to the Senate made public correspondence between himself and the Senator on February 3. Mr. Hoover wrote Schall he could not appoint Mr. Michel and asked the senator to submit a list of ten men he thought capable of filling the judgeship.

On February 10, President Hoover wrote Senator Schall a second letter asking him again to submit a list of candidates. He received no answer.

Third Request Made.

February 18, he repeated his request and at the same time submitted the names of eight men among them Judge Nordbye, requesting Senator Schall to give any information he had "as to the qualifications of any of these men for the position of Federal judge."

Senator Schall replied the same day. He submitted a list of names but made no comment on the list submitted by President Hoover. Thereupon Mr. Hoover wrote Senator Schall asking for his views on the men named in the President's list.

FRENCH ARMY ASKS HIGHER UPKEEP SUM

FIGURES FOR U. S. CITED

Paris, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Introducing a $258,000,000 budget for the ministry of war in Parliament tonight, Deputy Bouilloux Lafonte offered a report tending to establish, he said, that France has gone farther along the road to disarmament than any other nation.

Metropolitan troops are allocated $190,000,000 and overseas colonial troops $68,000,000 in the 1931 budget. The total is about $3,000,000 more than last year's.

In spending the amount requested on the maintenance of her army, Lafonte said, France is devoting 16 per cent less to that purpose than in 1913, and in comparison with other nations and in proportion to defense needs, 14 to 48 per cent less than in prewar times.

His report said the French metropolitan army numbered 522,000, with 36,000 gendarmes in addition. Great Britain, he said, has 510,000 regulars and 277,000 militia; Italy, 303,000 regulars and 110,000 carabiniers; the United States, 157,000 regulars and 395,000 national guards.

Although the budget increase is $3,000,000 more than 1930, said Lafonte, the United States Army expenditures showed an 86 per cent increase, the Japanese 48 per cent over prewar figures.

His report said Germany was spending $120,000,000 to maintain the "treaty army" of 100,000 men plus 150,000 gendarmes and 30,000 frontier guards and customs officers.

War Veteran Loses Suit For Disability Benefits

A District Supreme Court jury before Justice Wendell P. Stafford yesterday returned a verdict for the United States in the suit brought by George Wood, Negro veteran of the World War, for disability benefits under his war risk insurance policy.

Wood, who served in the Army for almost a year and a half, alleged he had contracted tuberculosis and arthritis as a result of his service. The Government, through Attorney Annabelle Hinderliter, of the Veterans' Bureau, however, proved that the Negro had worked steadily since his discharge.

Senate Suggests Silver Price Move

Hoover Is Asked to Open Negotiations With Other Countries.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate suggested to President Hoover yesterday that he open negotiations with other governments looking toward restoration of the price of silver.

It adopted without debate a resolution suggesting the President negotiate with other governments to obtain suspension of their policy of debasing silver coin and selling silver on the world market and proposing he call an international conference to agree on the use of silver as money.

The chief purpose of the resolution is to obtain suspension of Great Britain's policy of dumping silver from India on the world market.

New Pennsylvania Gas Well 'In;' 14 Miss Death

Corning, N. Y., Feb. 20 (A.P.).—A new gas well, north of Tioga, Pa., "blew itself in" late today with a tremendous roar and tonight gas was whistling from it at the rate of 40,000,000 cubic feet per 24 hours, with a force heard 3 miles away. The pressure was so great the gas was showing white.

Fourteen men working at the well barely escaped with their lives, racing the gas that swirled over the country side under pressure of a "low ceiling" which prevented it from escaping upward.

DOAK SUBSTITUTES WAGNER PROPOSAL

FLOOR FIGHT PROMISED

(Associated Press.)

A controversy over legislation to establish a national employment system was promised yesterday as the House judiciary committee approved an administration substitute for the Wagner bill.

By 13 to 7, the committee instructed Chairman Graham to propose substitution of a bill drafted by Secretary Doak for the measure by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, when the question comes up in the House on Monday.

Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, said he would oppose the Doak proposal, which he termed, off the floor, "a makeshift, designed to kill the legislation."

The Labor Department head counseled the committee behind closed doors before the vote. Chairman Graham said afterward the Secretary declared legislation was not needed at this time. The substitute, Graham added, was offered to take the place of Wagner's measure if legislation were to be enacted.

A system of State-Federal employment offices under supervision of a new bureau in the Labor Department would receive Federal aid under the Wagner proposal. It would authorize $1,500,000 for the first year, 75 per cent of which could be allotted to States if they matched that sum.

The Doak proposal would authorize $1,500,000 for cooperation between the Labor Department and States. It would eliminate provision for Federal aid to State agencies, but would allow establishment of Federal employment agencies in the States, with State permission.

Should the House accept the substitute, it would go back to the Senate. Wagner has served notice he would oppose it.

Compromise in Oil Imports Spurred

(Associated Press.)

With the end of the session in sight, independent oil interests attempted yesterday to reach a compromise with the administration in limitation of oil imports.

Meanwhile, the House ways and means committee continued hearings on a bill to bar Russian goods from this country and approached final action on the Capper-Garber bill to limit foreign oil entries to 16,000,000 barrels annually for the next three years.

No action was taken yesterday by the unofficial Republican steering committee on giving embargo legislation a place on the legislative program. Speaker Longworth has said, however, the oil bill is the only one of the group having "a chance" for House consideration. Oil negotiators conferred with administration officials on a compromise plan to protect domestic independents. The tentative proposal would permit free entry of foreign petroleum as long as it was prorated with domestic production.

Fish Urges Churches To War on Communism

A call to the church people to enlist in the war upon communism was made by Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, to a gathering last night at St. Margaret's Forum, Connecticut avenue and Bancroft street northwest.

Resolutions were passed at the meeting calling upon all churches in the District to aid in the organization of a convention to establish an effective public opinion against communism.

Canadians Score, Praise Car Tariff

New Order Boosts Duty on U. S. Autos 15 Per Cent in Price Lists.

Ottawa, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—An order of the Canadian government which, in effect, boosts the tariff on automobiles by an estimated 15 per cent was both applauded and condemned today. H. A. Brown, manager of General Motors of Canada, asserted the new regulation would mean $75,000,000 a year more employment for Canadian workmen.

The Commission Automobile Importers Association, lodging formal protest, predicted dire results. F. A. Mancekivell, chairman, said the order would add 10,000 to the list of unemployed—and he expected to be one of them.

The order sets a valuation for duty purposes of 80 per cent of the list price on automobiles. The effect, therefore, is to raise the valuation and hence the duty. United States automobile manufacturers are hit hardest.

FOUR SUPPLY BILLS PASSED BY SENATE

FEAR OF SESSION WANES

(Associated Press.)

The Senate demonstrated beyond much doubt yesterday it wanted to go home March 4 and not come back in extra session.

In the short space of five hours it completed congressional action and sent to the White House four appropriation bills aggregating $1,790,000,000.

It then began debate on the last of the nine regular annual supply measures for carrying on the Government's operations in the next fiscal year—the $358,000,000 bill for the naval establishment.

Opposition to a $10,000,000 provision for starting construction of eleven destroyers authorized as far back as 1916 delayed a vote on the naval measure until today.

The conference reports on appropriation bills agreed to were:

The $1,083,148,923 Treasury-Post-office measure carrying among other items $61,000,000 for immediate expenditure on public building construction as an aid to employment.

The $445,765,735 War Department bill, with the Senate provision to give 20,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat to the unemployed eliminated on objection of the House managers.

The $215,578,860 Agriculture Department bill.

Last night only two of the nine regular supply bills and one of the two deficiency measures were awaiting final congressional approval. The independent offices measure, carrying over $1,000,000,000, was returned to conference yesterday.

COLLEGE GIRLS HURT AS AUTO OVERTURNS

Two Maryland University Students in Car Hit by Another.

DRIVER OUT UNDER BOND

Thrown from their auto when it was struck by another car in College Park, Md., yesterday, Miss Alice May Brennan, 17, received serious injuries, and Miss Dorothy Rombach, of Colgate, Md., who was with her, was slightly hurt.

The driver of the other car was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and gave his name as Frank S. Slass, of Passaic, N. J.

The Washington girl was brought to Providence Hospital, where it was said she had a broken right arm and a slight fracture of the skull. Her condition is considered good, however. Miss Rombach refused medical treatment.

Slass was arrested by State Policeman Carl T. May and taken before Judge Retta D. Morris, who set his bond at $500. He posted bail and was released.

It is said that the car occupied by the two girls, both of whom are students at the college, was turning off the Baltimore boulevard into the campus of the University of Maryland when it was struck. Miss Brennan's machine was overturned, and both girls were thrown from it. Slass' car was coming toward Washington at the time of the accident. He was accompanied by his wife, but neither of them was injured.

Actress Who Fled Lot Is Forgiven

Edna Best Keeps Contract and Will Take Husband Back to Hollywood.

New York, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—It's all fixed up for Edna Best and everybody's happy. She keeps the movie contract from which she fled Hollywood last Sunday and she keeps it in status quo until she can take to Hollywood the husband for whom she grew lonesome.

The English stage star and the husband—Herbert Marshall—called on J. Robert Rubin, vice president and general counsel of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, today. Rubin is the man who signed Miss Best to the contract which took her to Hollywood.

The conference was short. The happy result was apparent when one of Mr. Rubin's assistants came out with word that "everything's hunky dory." It was then announced that Miss Best's contract would be suspended "until she and her husband can reside in Hollywood together."

THREE SHOTS MISS BERLIN STATESMAN

Dr. Kuelz, Once President of League of Nations, Grapples With Foe.

MAN IS BELIEVED INSANE

Berlin, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Dr. Wilhelm Kuelz, who was president of the League of Nations in 1927 and minister of the interior in the Hans Luther cabinet in 1926, grappled with a would-be assassin in the main lobby of the Reichstag today after the man had sent three bullets past his head.

The assailant, who told police he represented the "Bavarian pensioners' organization," stood in the lobby as Dr. Kuelz entered. Without warning he began firing.

When attendants and police arrived Dr. Kuelz was struggling with the man in an effort to disarm him. There was a stiff fight, but police overpowered him and detained him for examination as to his sanity. Dr. Kuelz, now a member of the Reichstag, could not explain the attack, except that the man was insane and fired at the first official who passed him.

BUTLER WILL HELP PHILADELPHIA IDLE

Marine Commander Agrees to Speak Anywhere to "Do His Bit."

IS GIVEN BIG WELCOME

Philadelphia, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Maj. Gen. Smedley Darlington Butler, who says the people of Philadelphia always stood up for him when he got into what he has called "jams" and "messes," is going to help the unemployed of this city.

Today he announced that if the Navy Department would grant him a leave of absence, he would speak anywhere in the country where admission was charged and would give half his earnings to the committee for unemployed relief in Philadelphia.

The energetic and peppery commander of the Marines said he has about 50 days leave coming to him and he would put the time to good use if the department gave him the opportunity.

Warmly Welcomed.

Gen. Butler, who was ordered up for court-martial for repeating a story he said he had heard about Premier Mussolini being a hit-and-run driver, and then apologized to the Navy Department for his remarks, has been in Philadelphia two days. Yesterday he was warmly welcomed by two large assemblages before which he gave characteristic talks full of picturesque language.

Today he looked into the unemployed situation in Philadelphia and decided to "do his bit."

The general has announced he intends to ask for retirement in the fall to which he is entitled for serving more than thirty years in the Marine Corps. After he goes into inactive service he will take the lecture platform under contract for a long tour.

Gen. Butler's decision today to help the unemployed in Philadelphia was made after a member of the relief committee appealed to him to do something to help out.

Recalled Invitations.

He said he started to think. He recalled scores of invitations he has had to speak recently, invitations he said he felt duty-bound to decline while in active service.

Also recalling that an admirer spent 2 of the last 4 cents he had to send him a letter telling him that he was for the general, Butler said:

"I felt that if that poor fellow could give me half he had, I could give him half what I've got. I haven't got anything but my salary, and I'll give them half that I get. And I mean it, too."

SENATE BODY HALTS POSTAL LEASE QUIZ

Kellogg "vehemently" remarked that the lease was "very much to the disadvantage of the Government."

Later in the day the Senate refused a demand by Mr. Blaine that the Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill be sent back to conference for restoration of his amendment to require cancellation clauses in all postal garage leases.

The conference report was adopted by 52 to 18 despite Mr. Blaine's plea the amendment was for the protection of the Government.

Mr. Lord, in his letter written in October, 1926, said the Government was obligated under the lease to pay $2,415,000 in rentals over a twenty-year period for a building estimated to have cost $450,000. He recommended in view of this "excessive" cost that the building be purchased.

Mr. New testified he could not remember taking any steps to carry out Mr. Lord's recommendation, but insisted he had told the budget director everything he himself knew about the case.

Questioned by Mr. Blaine, he said he did not remember discussing Mr. Lord's letter with James W. Good, late Secretary of War, who was attorney for the lessor, but said he had heard that Good took the matter up with Mr. Lord.

"Don't you know he took it up with Lord?"

"I've heard he did. I was not a party to any conversation between Good and Lord. They are both dead. If either was alive he could clear up a good many things."

Once when Mr. Blaine was pressing him for answers, Mr. New waved the letter from Gen. Lord commending his service and said:

"My answer to all these questions is this letter from Gen. Lord four years later."

"Do you think Gen. Lord would ever have written a letter of that kind to a man who had tried to practice deception on him or wrong the Government?" he asked.

Two U. S. marshals will bring Jones to the District. He has waived extradition. Jones is charged with the robbery in which Miss Eleanor Page, assistant treasurer of the Children's Hospital was thrown to the ground as she was about to enter the hospital.

Man, 94, "Mail Order" Bride to Wed Monday

Trenton, Ontario, Feb. 20 (A.P.). Samuel Yarrow, at the age of 94, will lead his "mail order" bride of 83 to the altar on Monday, and his 8 children, 47 grandchildren, 38 great-grandchildren and 5 great-great-grandchildren will help him celebrate.

Yarrow lived with his first wife for 60 years, long enough to have a diamond anniversary. They had 15 children. His second wife lived 9 years and died last October.

Speaking today of his third romance, he said: "She's younger than I am. She'll be able to look after me when I get old."

Samuel Hill, Road Builder, Kings' Friend, Under Knife

Nature of Operation Not Revealed; Was Host to Queen Marie.

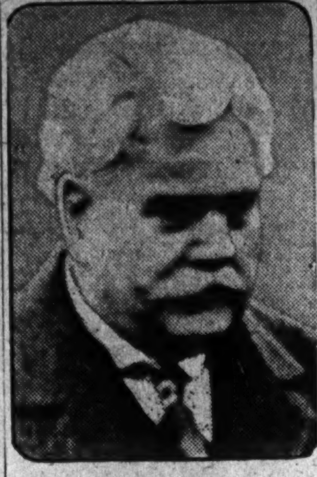
Portland, Oreg., Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Known on two continents as "the friend of kings," Samuel Hill, builder and philanthropist, apparently was slowly recovering today from a severe illness that necessitated a major operation yesterday. He has been in a hospital here since February 9.

The nature of the operation was not revealed, but it was known Mr. Hill suffered from a stomach and intestinal disorder. Although his heart action weakened during his long confinement, physicians decided yesterday the operation could be performed successfully.

The hospital said his condition was favorable, and he had spent a restful day.

A son-in-law of the late James Hill, pioneer builder of railroads, Samuel Hill is internationally known in the construction and engineering fields. He was decorated by France, Roumania, Belgium and Japan during the World War for his services in road building and transportation supervision.

In 1922 he was host to Marshal Joffre when the French hero toured the United States. Several years ago when Queen Marie of Roumania visited this country, Mr. Hill entertained the royal party on the Pacific Coast. Queen Marie dedicated the Roumanian room of Maryhill Castle, Mr. Hill's international museum on the banks of the Columbia River.



SAMUEL HILL.

Since his retirement from active railroad work Mr. Hill has called Washington State his home. Before 1905 he held several railroad executive positions.

Mr. Hill, who is 73, has made several trips around the world and during prolonged visits in Europe and the Orient was frequently the guest of royalty. He is known as an intimate friend of Queen Marie and also King Albert of Belgium. He built Maryhill Castle to properly entertain King Albert, then a prince, in 1912. Albert's succession to the throne prevented the proposed visit.

tive, legislative, ministerial or judicial officer to appoint or vote for the appointment of any person related to him, when the pay of such appointee is to be paid out of the public funds, or fees of such office, has been most extraordinary. It has been most far-reaching. In anonymous letters writers have abused me. But, on the other hand, I have received a lot of valuable information showing to what extent nepotism in Congress has gone."

Mr. Stone has tried to get a hearing on his measure, but was told it is impossible at this time. He has in his possession facts that he thinks would retire many members of the House and a few senators.

The last annual report of the clerk of the House of Representatives reveals that approximately 100 relatives are now on the pay rolls of members and a survey shows that many of these have never turned a hand in the offices from which they get their appointments. One letter to Mr. Stone points out that the daughter of a certain representative signed vouchers for $3,500 last year and she spent almost the entire time abroad. Another report, which he would like to investigate before a committee, is that a member has paid his father a total of $16,000, and the old gentleman has never been to his office, or even to Washington.

The Pathfinder for February 14, a weekly published by David S. Barry, sergeant at arms of the Senate, and others, says: "They (relatives of House members) draw approximately one-tenth of the money paid out for House clerk hire, and would be drawing more if the law did not specify that a representative can not pay any one person more than $3,900 a year, or $325 a month. Even some members get around this restriction by placing more than one relative on the roll."

Mr. Stone has been informed that another member of the House has had his wife on the pay roll since January, 1929, and she has drawn $6,410. The report of the clerk of the House confirms this. This wife has been in Washington less than six months during that time, and has not worked in her husband's office.

Mr. Stone, angered at hostile treatment at the hands of executive department employes, will take that part of his controversy to the President.

HOUSE COMMITTEE ADVOCATES CURBING RAIL HOLDING FIRMS

tend those Eastern systems to the Missouri River gateways.

"The near future may bring developments which may stimulate central interests to seek control of railway properties in the West."

Family Control Dwindles.

One of the outstanding features of the report was the destruction of the popular theory that the stock in American railroads was controlled in a large measure by certain families. Their influence in the railroads have been greatly diminished.

The ownership of the 160 class one railroads, representing a gross capital of $23,800,000,000, it was disclosed, is in the hands of 840,000 stockholders. Banking and brokerage houses now own no more than 5 per cent of the total voting stock. Although families and individuals control something more than 30,000 miles of a total of 240,000 miles of railroads in the United States, about 28,000 miles of this is in the hands of O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, of Cleveland.

The Baker family of New York controls about 10 per cent of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Hudson, and Arthur Curtis James is the dominant figure in Western Pacific. The Vanderbilt family has about 17 per cent of voting stock of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie.

Fourteen Major Groups.

"For years," continued the report, "the public has thought that the New York Central was Vanderbilt property, but this investigation disclosed that the Vanderbilts hold less than 5 per cent of the voting stock of that corporation."

The fourteen major systems and mileage operated as listed by the report follow:

Van Sweringen Companies	28,031.20
Great Northern Pacific	27,421.76
Pennsylvania	23,498.67
Southern Pacific	14,484.96
St. Louis-San Francisco	14,161.99
Atlantic Coast Line	13,989.10
Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe	13,166.32
New York Central	13,006.07
Baltimore & Ohio	11,269.69
Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific	11,247.83
Chicago & Northwestern	10,205.05
Union Pacific	10,157.11
Southern	10,036.55
Illinois Central	9,109.70
Total	210,386.00

Used by Van Sweringens.

The holding company has become "a convenient instrumentality in the traffic struggle of railway giants of the East over coveted property" incident to the proposal to put all of the major Eastern railroad systems into four companies, the report said. It added that to some degree the consolidation movement had extended into the West.

Reviewing the situation as to holding corporations, the report held that these had been used chiefly by the Van Sweringen group and the Pennsylvania system.

The rise of the Van Sweringen railroad empire was described as beginning in 1916 when the two Cleveland men purchased the Nickel Plate Railroad from the New York Central. In subsequent years, utilizing 32 different corporations, it was stated, the Van Sweringen interests acquired the Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie, Pere Marquette, Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Missouri Pacific. In addition, they hold a half interest directly or indirectly in the Denver, Rio Grand Western and an option on a 50 per cent block of stock of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois.

The Alleghany Corporation was said to be the principal asset holding organization of the group, but that company, in turn, was asserted to be controlled by the Van Ness Co.

Service Payments Analyzed.

In this latter enterprise, assets of which were about $75,000,000 on April 30 last year, the Van Sweringens personally were 80 per cent owners. Incident to the analysis of this financial structure, the report presented some payments made by the Van Ness Co. for professional and legal services of individuals.

The principal item was compensation given Bird M. Robinson, president of the American Short Line Railroad Association at the rate of $100,000 a year for the entire year of 1929 and four months to April 30 of 1930. These payments were approved, the report further stated, by the executive board of the Short Line Association and represented the cost of data and services rendered in connection with consolidation activities.

The investigation disclosed that the Pennsylvania Co. and its affiliate, the Pennroad Corporation, had increased stock holdings during the last two or three years, particularly in New England issues, including the Boston & Maine and the New Haven, retaining possession as well of substantial blocks of Norfolk & Western, Lehigh Valley and Wabash Railroad securities.

Wardman Security Default Predicted

Holding Company Finds Bond Interest Will Not Be Met.

Counsel for the Hotels Management & Securities Corporation, which controls stock of the owning corporation of ten Wardman-built properties in Washington, announced yesterday that it would be impossible to meet interest payments coming due March 1, on the $16,000,000 bond issue floated in 1928.

The announcement follows closely on the heels of news Thursday that bondholders' protective committees were being formed in New York for investors in the Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc., and the Wardman Realty & Construction Co.

Two courses are left open to the bondholders. One is foreclosure on the properties and appointment of a receiver, and the other is a voluntary corporate reorganization. It is hoped that a sufficient number of bonds will be placed on deposit with the committees formed in New York to make possible voluntary reorganization, backers of this plan said.

Hanna Nominated For Chamber Post

Would Be First Capital Man to Be Director on U. S. Body.

Trade groups and bankers of Washington and the surrounding territory yesterday nominated John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co. and president of the American Electric Railway Association, as a director of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

If elected Mr. Hanna will be the first Washington man to be represented on the directorial board of the national chamber. He will be a nominee from territory which comprises the District, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North and South Carolina. The election will take place in April at the Atlantic City convention.

E. F. Colladay, general counsel for the Board of Trade, was selected to head a committee which will conduct a campaign for the election of Mr. Hanna. Robert J. Cottrell, executive secretary of the Board of Trade, was [illegible] secretary of the campaign

OLD IRONSIDES POST IS GIVEN TO GULLIVER

WILL BE READY IN JULY

Boston, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Commander Louis J. Gulliver, U. S. N., has been given the honor of commanding the hallowed frigate Constitution, better known as Old Ironsides, the navy yard announced today. She was recently restored to seaworthiness.

The announcement came on the 116th anniversary of the Constitution's capture of the British war vessels Cyrene and Levant during the War of 1812.

Commander Gulliver at present is serving as executive officer on the cruiser Rochester, in Central American waters. He is expected to join his new command within a couple of weeks. He is 48 years old and a native of Maine.

The Constitution was virtually rebuilt at the local navy yard with the pennies of school children throughout the land. She will be ready for sea by July 1, but the Navy Department has not announced what duty will be given her.

Launched in Boston in 1798, she became the flagship of Commodore Edward Preble's expedition against the Barbary pirates four years later. There were seven vessels in Preble's squadron, the commanders of none of which had reached the age of 30.

Capt. Isaac Hull commanded the Constitution during the War of 1812, capturing or destroying many British vessels. The Constitution's vanquishing of the Guerriere was probably her most famous encounter. The British contemptuously referred to her as a "clumsy pine box," but an American tar, peering over her rail and seeing a cannon ball glance from her side, unconsciously gave her a more appropriate name and one that bids to live as long as the Nation. "See," he said, "her sides are made of iron."

Property of Pitts And Wife Seized

Income Tax Liens Filed by U. S.; Winter Home in Florida Sealed.

Internal revenue agents in Maryland and Florida yesterday moved to tie up the property of Mr. and Mrs. G. Bryan Pitts, in line with the program announced two days ago by Internal Revenue Comissioner David Burnet.

Tax liens totaling nearly $2,000,000 were filed in the United States District Court in Baltimore by Galen L. Tait, collector of internal revenue, in an effort to collect that amount of alleged unpaid income taxes.

Agents meanwhile had placed Government seals on the doors of the Pitts' $500,000 villa, El Lado del Mar, at Palm Beach, Fla. Filing of joint income tax returns, it was said, involved Mrs. Pitts' properties along with her husband's.

Seizure proceedings followed discovery of alleged designs on the part of Mr. Pitts and his wife to leave the country to hinder collection of unpaid taxes, Commissioner Brent said.

It is understood that similar liens have been filed in Wisconsin, New York and Delaware.

home," and that prohibition officials had taken this stand as far back as 1925.

Surveys made principally under the direction of Dr. James M. Doran, former prohibition commissioner, of conditions under the dry laws in 32 States, not including such districts as Maryland, New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts, generally described as wet.

A statement from James M. Britt, former general counsel of the Prohibition Bureau, that the dry law would soon have "an equal average degree of enforcement with our other laws, State and Federal."

Testimony from A. O. Wharten, Chicago, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, that "since prohibition I have seen drinking that was never dreamed of."

A statement from William J. Spencer, of the American Federation of Labor, that he did not believe "prohibition accomplished anything for the working people," and that a return of beer would stimulate employment and cure the drinking of hard liquor.

Army Officers Arrested.

It was reported tonight that a group of Army officers had been arrested here in connection with a subversive plot against the government which was to have culminated last Monday during the pre-Lenten carnival celebration.

The prisoners, variously reported at from ten to fifteen, were said to have been confined in the national penitentiary awaiting dismissal from the army and transportation to Ushuaia Prison in Tierra del Fuego.

Gen. Toranzo, who was sought as leader of the plot, was reported to have fled from Argentina.

Arrington's Bride Seeks Annulment

Marital affairs of Milton Arrington, of Park road northwest, near Sixteenth street, and his wife, Evelyn Brant Arrington, of Sixteenth street northwest near Decatur street, became more involved yesterday, when the latter asked the District Supreme Court to annul her marriage.

The Arringtons came into court attention last month when the husband sought a writ of habeas corpus against his mother-in-law, Mrs. Corrine Brent, claiming that his bride was being illegally detained. That action, however, was settled out of court.

Panama Canal's "Capture" Looms

"Black" Fleet Moving Up by Air and Sea, Navy Department Hears.

(Associated Press.)

An enemy naval "attack" upon the Panama Canal area was reported to the Navy Department last night as partially successful, but with the capture of the canal itself still in doubt.

Reporting upon the elaborate maneuvers of the "Blue" fleet defending the canal, and the "Black" fleet attacking it, Admiral Jehu V. Chase, radioed the department the "enemy" had seized Port Culebra, attacked the defending forces by air in the Nicaraguan canal district and was moving upon the Panama Canal.

Earlier official observers informed authorities in Washington of the necessity of increased aircraft facilities to protect the American coast. David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics, radioed the part played by the huge naval dirigible Los Angeles had "conclusively established" the "necessity" for continued development of lighter-than-air craft by the Navy. Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, likewise indorsed the defensive qualities of the Los Angeles.

MERCHANTS REPORT GOOD YEAR IN TRADE

Decrease in Capital Only 2 Per Cent, Lansburgh Tells Association.

OLD STAFF IS REELECTED

One of the best years in the history of the Washington Merchants and Manufacturers Association was reported by Mark Lansburgh, president of the association, at the annual meeting of the board of governors and officers yesterday afternoon.

In his annual report, Mr. Lansburgh showed that business in Washington was better than in the majority of cities. With a decrease in prices, he said, the volume of business for the year was off only 2 per cent. If prices had been the same as in past years, the volume of business would have been greater, Mr. Lansburgh asserted.

Urge Reimbursing Road.

The association heads went on record as recommending that the Federal Government reimburse the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway Co. for the removal of tracks in the triangle area. Vigorous opposition was given the plan to have the District government meet this expense.

The association also urged that the appropriation of $100,000 for the District George Washington Bicentennial, eliminated from the District appropriation bill, be included in the deficiency bill.

Malcolm G. Gibbs, president of Peoples Drug Stores, was elected chairman of the association outing to be held in June on the Potomac.

A letter of commendation was directed to the Community Chest officials for the success of the recent drive.

Accomplishments of Year.

Edward D. Shaw, executive secretary, in his annual report, cited some outstanding accomplishments of the association in 1930, including the work of the traffic committee on the parking survey, advancement of the buy in Washington campaign and the success of the Christmas buy early campaign for which newspapers and street railway companies were thanked for cooperation.

Officers of the association were reelected by the new board of governors as follows: Mark Lansburgh, president; James E. Colliflower, first vice president; Ford E. Young, second vice president; Gen. Anton Stephan, third vice president; Louis Levay, treasurer; Mr Shaw, secretary, and M. D. Rosenberg, general counsel.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 20.

March 1, 1913 is an important date in income tax history, the existing income tax law, adopted in acordance with the sixteenth amendment to the Constitution, having become effective on that date.

To determine taxable gain or deductible loss in the sale or other disposition of property acquired before March 1, 1913, and sold or otherwise disposed of after that date, a comparison of the cost of the property, with its fair market value as of March 1, 1913, is necessary. Whichever amount is greater is the figure to be compared with the proceeds of the sale in determining taxable gain or deductible loss.

"Fair market value" is defined by income tax regulations as the amount "which would induce a willing seller to sell and a willing buyer to purchase." The regulations further state: "What the fair market value of property was on March 1, 1913, is a question of fact, to be established by competent evidence. * * * In the case of property traded in on public exchanges, actual sales at about the basic date afford evidence of value, but in each case the nature and extent of the sales and the circumstances under which they were made must be considered. Thus, prices received at a forced sale, or prices received for small lots of property, may be no real indication of the value of the property."

The basis for determining gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of property acquired after February 28, 1913, is, in general, the cost of the property.

They represented New York avenue, Covenant First, Gunton Temple, Peck Memorial Chapel, Sherwood, Eckington, Arlington, St. Paul's, Clifton Station, Hyattsville, Riverdale, Chevy Chase, Fifteenth street, Metropolitan, Tabor, Takoma Park and Westminster Presbyterian churches and seven churches of other denominations.

Evangelism Planned In Exchange Pulpits

The committee on evangelism of the Washington Federation of Churches has planned an exchange of pulpits tomorrow night in various sections of the city. In those cases where pastors have found it possible to effect such an exchange it is agreed that the sermons shall all deal with some phase of evangelism.

A further suggestion has been made that special services be arranged for five nights during Holy Week in all churches where this seems to be a possibility. The aim of these services is likewise to be evangelistic in a large measure.

Famed Bible Teacher To Show His Method

Dr. P. H. Welshimer, of Canton, Ohio, will again fill the pulpit of the National City Christian Church at both services tomorrow. In addition to this, he will teach the Everyman's Bible Class in the main auditorium.

As he is the organizer and teacher of what is said to be the world's largest Bible class, it has been decided to issue a general invitation to the public to hear him teach the Washington class.

Hoover Children Watch Trick Dog

Fame Comes to Canine as Peggy Ann, Herbert 3d See Rope-Walking.

(Associated Press.)

Elmer is a dog, of no particular breed and of a color dull and prison-gray, but every Friday in February is his day.

For Elmer does an "act" all his own in the Fort Myer cavalry shows, famous for their dash and nerve wherever the United States Army is known.

Many applaud when Elmer does a tight-rope act on the gate tops, rides a horse as trickily as any cavalryman, pathetically plays "wounded soldier," and takes the hurdles like the horses.

Peggy Ann Hoover and Herbert Hoover 3d, were among the spectators watching him at the first show of this season.

Which proves that fame may fall upon even a dog with a guardhouse background. For Elmer belongs to Sergt. George Smith, who has charge of the prisoners at the guardhouse. He combines the job of watching prisoners with that of training Elmer.

GEN. SMITH CITES WEST POINT NEEDS

ANSWER MADE TO FISH

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 20 (A.P.).—The United States Military Academy is far below desired standards for the actual training of cadets, Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent, said today in answer to Neighbor and Representative Hamilton Fish, who opposes extending the academy's reservation as now contemplated.

Gen. Smith said he was informed that Representative Fish would oppose the bills now before Congress unless they are amended to exclude certain estates.

"These estates include ground which is vitally necessary to take care of the present needs of the Military Academy," he said. "They contain approximately 1,000 acres, intended to be used as an aviation field, machine gun, pistol and 1-pounder ranges and as a military training ground.

"At present we have no landing fields for airplanes. Our rifle range was designed to be used when the corps contained 300 cadets, and can not be enlarged. Our machine gun range is only 28 yards long. Practical military training facilities are inadequate. Our pistol range is a makeshift and we have no 1-pounder range."

The scripture lesson will be read by Oscar E. Carlton, and Edwin Dice will lead in the evening prayer. Dr. H. M. Dudley will have charge of the music, and Louis Potter, the organist, has arranged a program appropriate to the sermon.

PULPITS TO HONOR WASHINGTON DAY

MORALS TO BE DRAWN

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

Washington's Birthday coming tomorrow, a large number of the pulpits of the National Capital will ring with sermons drawn from his spiritual life. Surely it is a most worthy theme, but whether the Father of His Country would indorse such a program no man knoweth. He shrank in his lifetime from any recognition of his own merits, being a very simple and humble man, and at no time ever mentioned his own great deeds, unless they were brought up by others, when he treated them as if they were but of small importance by the side of the eternal verities.

G. W. P. Custis, the grandson of Martha Washington and the father of Mrs. Robert E. Lee, in his book of reminiscences, tells the story of Washington's meeting with his mother, Mary Ball, at the end of the Revolution. They had not seen each other for seven years.

"She embraced him tenderly and called him by the endearing names of his childhood," says Custis, "asked after his health and of his family, but of his glory spoke not one word."

That Spartan simplicity was characteristic of the Washingtons, and it was carried through their religious life. Surely Washington learned it from Mary Ball.

Wonderful Christening Robe.

When he was an infant, his mother made him a christening robe that was fit for royalty itself, and she and Augustine, his father, took him to the church and in the presence of the congregation dedicated him to the service of the Almighty God.

All his life Washington preserved that christening robe, and when he died it became the property of the Alexandria - Washington Masonic Lodge. An English traveler who saw it there in the early years of the nineteenth century was so impressed with its splendor that he commented in his book on a "republican" being dressed like a "king" for such an event. The lodge long since lost that robe, and old members like Charles H. Callahan had never heard about it until I asked them about it.

As soon as he was of the proper age, Washington was confirmed and identified himself with the Established Protestant Episcopal Church, in which faith he died. He was a member of Truro Parish, and it is known that he had part in the building of three famous colonial churches—Pohick, Falls Church and Christ Church in Alexandria.

Pohick was the "quality church" for many years, and at one time it was situated farther toward Fredericksburg than it now is. When the vestry came to discuss the rebuilding of this edifice there was much opposition to a change. Washington's own father had helped to build the first church and filial love would have caused Washington to side with the opposition, but he did not. He actually surveyed the parish and located the homes of its members and with his map showing that the new location was near the center of the parish he carried the day for it. He probably designed the old church; at least he had one of the best pews in it.

Stirred Up the Worldy.

In the last years of his life Pohick rather declined in importance. Pastor Weems became its rector—at least he preached there—and as he was something of a Methodist, he stirred up considerable opposition among the horse-racing, cock-fighting gentry.

On returning to Mount Vernon for the last years of his life, Washington had his pew at Christ Church in Alexandria, which is now a venerated spot second only to his home. More than 100,000 tourists annually enter that old church, view its pulpit and pews, sit in that one which Washington and his family occupied, and meditate for a few moments in silent prayer.

Washington opposed firmly the bill, which Jefferson and Patrick Henry and George Mason and others pushed to success for religious liberty in Virginia. He believed in taxing everybody to support the Established Church. "They should be made to pay for what they get," said he in one of his letters. This would indicate that he was a narrow sectarian, but he was not. He gave of his wealth to help build the old Presbyterian Meeting House in Alexandria, and he frequently worshiped there with his friend, Maj. John Carlyle, the chief Presbyterian in the place, whose wife was a daughter of Sir William Fairfax, of Belvoir, one of Washington's earliest and best friends.

Fond of Scotch Presbyterians.

It can in all truth be said that Washington had a fondness for the Scotch-Irish Presbyterians. During the darkest days of the Revolution he exclaimed: "If everybody else deserts me, I will fall back into the Valley of Virginia and will raise an army among the Scotch Presbyterian farmers there and win our independence with it." This literally came true, for it was an army of those Scotch Presbyterians, led by Col. William Campbell, Col. John Sevier and others who at King's Mountain won the battle that was the decisive stroke for independence.

Of course a volume can be written on Washington's religious life. Maybe one will be written; and if so, it will not be the least interesting work on that immortal man. He was a reverent man; his faith in God was sublime; and nothing could or ever did shake that faith. He was no saint, but with all of his intense devotion to God, he had a strong worldly streak in his nature. He loved the pleasures of life and he catered to them. He was the product of his own times, and the true historian will tell you that they were rather riotious and sporty times. He could swear mighty oaths when the occasion demanded it, but fortunately that was seldom.

Prayer at Valley Forge.

His self-possession was wonderful. A student of human nature who made a rather lengthy first-hand study of his face said that Washington possessed volcanic pasion that were terrible when set in eruption. But if that same student had seen him at Valley Forge lying prostrate in the snow, his face bathed in tears, and had heard his petitions to Almighty God to give strength to his arm and victory to his armies and independence to America he might have gained the impression that Washington, like the ancient Hebrew generals, put more faith in God than he did in dry powder and heavy cannon.

It is because Washington was "touched with our infirmities;" because he was human; because he had homely vices and divine virtues; because he held himself erect, but bent to the plainest man; because he loved children and old people immoderately; because he had no appreciable vanity; because he was not ashamed of his Maker and his Master, that Washington has gripped the imagination of mankind in all parts of the world.

Many worthy lessons can be drawn from the life of this our first and greatest man, not the least of which is that he was a miracle of grace. If he had been a bad man——.

Man's Fatal Weakness

"Now, Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria, was a great man with his master, and honorable—but he was a leper." II Kings v:1.

READING this brief text we would say this is a word picture of a great man. Commander-in-chief of a king's army, with the personal friendship of the monarch, this man had a position all of us might envy him.

But, and here is the word that changes the picture; he was a leper. All his greatness counted for nothing in the face of that dread disease.

Whenever we stop to view humanity we see some such condition. We see man, strong, self-confident, flinging his voice across the ocean, the parent of inventions that rival the creations of God. But, what a puny creature he is. A fly can choke him, a septic tooth may ruin his body, the change of a few degrees in temperature will kill him. Man is a great creature; but he is so weak and puny.

There is much that is good in man, but how easily he is led to do wrong. A few dollars will make a thief out of him, and his ambitions will turn him into a savage in his desire to realize them. His anger will cause him to become a murderer, and his hates embitter his whole life. There is much that is good in man, but there is so much evil in him.

And what is true of the race is true of the individuals in the race. For every strength there is a fatal weakness. Every one of us has to admit defeat somewhere. The real glory of life is the conquest of our weaknesses. The only mission of a weakness is to make us victorious over it.

Strong, self-reliant, man has no need of God. Weak, tempted and dismayed, man turns instinctively to Him, and asks for help. And to all such God speaks, saying, "My strength is made perfect in weakness." Thank God for such a promise. For I am weak, and know it. At times I am well-nigh helpless. But right where my weakness is fatal, and right where I fail completely, I may have the glorious strength of God.

57 Won for Church In Petworth Revival

The Gospel Crusade at Petworth Methodist Episcopal Church came to a successful close, last Sunday, with three services which drew large congregations. The Rev. Robert Louis Wood, the pastor, received 55 new members last Sunday and two on Thursday evening at the midweek prayer service, which, with an attendance of 150, broke all attendance records at that church for that service. Mr. Wood expects to receive a number of new members tomorrow.

From now until Easter he will conduct Lenten services every Sunday and every Thursday evening.

READY FOR THE AX.

The House vote adopting the conference report on the Muscle Shoals bill reveals that there is not sufficient strength among the proponents of the bill to pass it over a veto.

That a veto is forthcoming may be confidently expected. The bill is an out-and-out attempt to put the United States in the business of manufacturing and selling electric power, and potentially it would make the Government a manufacturer and distributor of fertilizer. In addition, it provides for a costly reservoir to be built at Government expense.

The excuse given for the surrender to socialism is that the House conferees were worn out by the importunities and stubbornness of the Senate conferees, and that it was better to put Government into the power and fertilizer business than to permit the bill to fail.

No such excuse can have any weight with President Hoover. He stands where other Presidents have stood, against putting the Government in business in competition with its own citizens. The lure of an appropriation to be spent at Cove Creek does not appeal to the President as it has appealed to Southern representatives.

The combination of socialism and extravagance embodied in the Muscle Shoals bill presents a shining mark for a presidential veto. The bill shows what can be done by cunning artifices that appeal to the sectionalism and individual interests of legislators. It is an example of Congress at its worst. Like the bonus bill, it is obnoxious to the whole people, however attractive it may be to special beneficiaries. Since the President represents the whole people, and is not interested in placing the Treasury at the disposal of special interests, he can not be expected to approve of the bill.

Thus, before March 4 it may be anticipated that the country will be relieved of the threat of applied socialism at Muscle Shoals.

ORGANIZING AGAINST CHAIN STORES.

The National Chamber of Associated Merchants, recently incorporated in the District of Columbia, was organized expressly to "fight the ever-increasing menace of the chain store system." Former Senator John F. Nugent, president of the chamber, in explaining its purpose, declares that some 500,000 independent merchants, or one out of every three, have gone down before the chains. "If the same ratio is maintained in the next few years," he says, "the major portion of the independents will go out of business." Mr. Nugent paints a picture of the Main Street of the future lined with stores and filling stations, all duplicates in design and in color, from which the neighborhood druggist, butcher and grocer would be excluded by his inability to meet competition. To prevent this impending catastrophe the National Chamber of Associated Merchants has been organized to represent 250,000 independent wholesalers, manufacturers and jobbers and more than 1,000,000 independent retailers.

There is a wide field of usefulness for such an organization, provided it goes about its "fight" in the right way. The chain store system has been under attack for several years. In some States antichain store bills have been enacted under which high license fees are levied against chain store units, but recently the Georgia Supreme Court ruled that such taxation violates the Federal Constitution. This ruling probably spells the doom of all antichain store legislation based upon the levying of special taxes upon chain store units. Those opposed to the chains, however, probably will find another method of attack. Seemingly they do not realize that the way to fight the chain store is through the independent merchant himself.

Dr. Julius Klein in a recent radio address conceded the seriousness of the competition experienced by the independent merchant from chain stores, mail order houses, and the like, but suggested that possibly "many of the independents' deeply rooted troubles lie much nearer home than they are sometimes willing to recognize. Today retailers must bear in mind that the market is a buyers' market; the consumer is preeminent. He will patronize a store that is attractive—pleasing to the eye and satisfying to all the faculties by reason of its harmonious, orderly, convenient arrangement."

Dr. Klein's advice to retailers should be used by the National Chamber of Associated Merchants as a platform from which it can prosecute its "fight" upon the chain store system. There is room enough in America for both chain stores and independent merchants. But unquestionably the independent must face the necessity of improving his own methods.

EXCLUSION OF SMUGGLED ALIENS.

The Senate has refused to reconsider its action on the King bill for the deportation of aliens who are smuggled in as seamen. The measure was passed by unanimous consent last April, but it has been held up ever since on a motion to reconsider. Thousands of aliens come into American ports as seamen and remain unlawfully here as immigrants. The King bill now awaits action by the House.

This bill is expected to put an end to the smuggling of aliens as seamen. It provides that aliens employed on vessels entering American ports from foreign countries shall be examined by inspectors to determine whether they are bona fide seamen and whether they would be subject to exclusion if applying for admittance as immigrants. Aliens who are not seamen would be removed to immigration stations and if not entitled to enter the United States as immigrants would be deported at the expense of the vessel bringing them to this country.

A measure of this kind is necessary to protect American labor against smuggled immigrants. The business of transporting aliens here under the guise of seamen would no longer be profitable under this law.

The House is contemplating the passage of a bill to check immigration for two years. If such a measure were adopted without mending this glaring defect in the present law, the business of smuggling aliens as seamen could be expected to increase. The two measures ought to be considered together, and both should be adopted.

MIGRATION TO AND FROM THE FARM.

The migration from farm to city has been checked. Figures released by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics show that farm population in the United States increased during 1930 for the first time in ten years. The total farm population on January 1, 1931, was 27,430,000, compared with 27,222,000 on the same date last year.

This does not mean, however, that more people are moving to farms than are moving away. A total of 1,543,000 left farms last year and 1,392,000 moved to farms from cities and towns. So far as migrations are concerned the farms lost 151,000 persons. But the natural increase in population offset that loss, for statistics show an excess of 359,000 births over deaths. Heretofore the farms have been losing population in spite of their high birth rates.

In general farm population has been declining for many years as the result of agricultural overproduction. In 1925 the farms suffered a net loss of 1,020,000, and in 1922 even a greater number migrated. History tells how the population on farms has risen and declined ever since the United States has been a nation. When food prices are high there has been a rush to the farm, and then overproduction has driven many back to the cities. The interestng question in connection with the present check on the cityward flow of population is whether or not the drain on the man power of the farms has been definitely checked.

Indications are that the tide has not yet turned toward another farmward migration. Overproduction on the farms continues and prices of agricultural products are low. Agriculture offers no immediate opportunities for expansion. The slackening in the migration from the farm is due to the economic depression. Unemployment in the industrial centers has driven a greater number of people back to farming, but the return of normal employment conditions will probably swing the pendulum of migration in the direction of the city again. Agricultural sections still have a surplus of man power, and as soon as opportunities for employment are offered elsewhere the thinning-out process doubtless will continue.

BREAD, MEAT AND MILK.

At the conclusion of the public hearings on the price of food Senator Capper asserted that the reduction in prices paid producers had not been fairly reflected in the reductions passed on to the consumers of bread, milk and meats. In Washington the price of milk does not appear to be excessively high, but bread and meat prices have not followed the general price declines of recent months. Following the hearings on bread prices, however, several of the larger organizations operating in Washington made radical price reductions. It may be that the new local prices are fair.

The mere fact that the bakeries found it possible to reduce prices radically under the stimulation provided by the hearings indicates that the price of bread had been kept at an unreasonably high level. No reduction of meat prices has yet been announced. The packers offer various explanations for the fact that the spread between the price paid the live stock producer and the retail price is larger than it was before the general price declines, but they have indicated no readiness to make adjustments.

The work of the investigating committee should be regarded as of a preliminary nature. If, as Senator Capper thinks, the price of meat and bread has been maintained by combinations it is up to the Department of Justice to take action. The fact that local concerns have cut bread prices does not mean that the country as a whole is to be benefited by lower bread prices, but it does indicate that bread prices generally have been too high. The price situation with respect to bread, milk and meat throughout the country should be more thoroughly investigated.

THE POSTAL DEFICIT.

President Hoover has indicated that he will ask Congress to conduct a special investigation into the growing deficit of the Postoffice Department. Apparently the President maintains an open mind as to what is the best means of increasing postal revenue. He is anxious that the annual deficit be reduced, but thinks that the problem of how it shall be done can best be solved by Congress.

Some months ago Postmaster General Brown suggested an increase in first-class postal rates. In view of the fact that first-class mail already bears a disproportionate share of the burden of financing the department, Mr. Brown's recommendation aroused widespread protest. Attempts to adjust parcel post rates also met opposition. Congress is now threatening to adopt a resolution which would prevent the Interstate Commerce Commission from authorising any parcel post changes until new legislation has been enacted.

The situation calls for a comprehensive survey. The deficit this year will amount to almost $100,000,000, not including payments to the merchant marine and air mail or the franking privilege of congressmen. Much of this extra expense is a result of increased wages and shorter hours for postal employes. In view of these increased expenses the department is no longer on a sound business basis. Some means of raising the revenue to a figure that more nearly matches expenses properly charged against postal service seems desirable. It is evident that to attain this aim a thorough investigation of the whole subject is necessary.

Assistant Postmaster General Tilton told the House committee on postoffices and post roads that the department lost $26,000,000 in 1930 on parcel post carried in the first three zones. In effect this amounts to a subsidy to mail order houses, and the people should not be taxed to pay it. It is especially unfair to ask users of the first-class mail service to meet deficits that occur in other branches of the department.

The interests of mail users as well as of the Government demand that a comprehensive survey be made during the coming recess of Congress, so that necessary adjustments may be made during the next session.

Capt. Campbell, who drove his automobile at more than 4 miles a minute a week or so ago, is raised to knighthood. If he had gone faster he would have become a duke or an angel.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

By SAMUEL RUSSELL,

Before the Washington Society of the University of Virginia, February 22, 1904.

We celebrate upon this occasion the nativity of Washington, whose name is the most illustrious on the Nation's roll of honor, and whose memory is cherished with filial devotion by all the sons of liberty. Whoever is second, the founder of our federate republic must be foremost—the ever glorious prototype of our American citizenship. The embodiment of virtue and patriotism, his words and deeds are a standing admonition to the zeal of partisanship and a rebuke to faction and sectionalism. Our country is honored as the birthplace of many men who stand high in statecraft, but these all were the advocates of partisan creeds, to which our hero never subscribed and in this circumstance alone his preeminence is forever assured.

The biography of George Washington is an essential part of our national history. The 50 years of his manhood were spent in the public service. The story of his life is a story of the momentous struggle which established the sovereignty and independence of the American States, and culminated in the founding of our great Republic, the model of popular government and the light of the political world.

Washington began his public career by accepting a commission from the governor of his native Virginia. We see him while yet a youth making his perilous expedition to the Ohio. We follow him through the French and Indian War, saving the remnants of Braddock's army from ultimate defeat and capture at the hands of savages. When his countrymen arose in arms to defend the rights inherited from their fathers he was elevated by vote of the Congress to command their armies. We witness his achievements in the great Revolution, his success before Boston, his masterly retreat from Long Island, and through New Jersey; his daring and brilliant movements across the Delaware in the face of ice and storms that would have forbidden the advance of one less resolute, the capture of the Hessians at Trenton, and the defeat of the enemy at Princeton. We follow him to the painful winter scenes at Valley Forge from which the patriots, conducted by his matchless leadership, emerged to the contest at Brandywine, Germantown and Monmouth, and finally to the decisive and glorious victory at Yorktown upon which memorable field the dominion of kings was forever dispelled from our dear America. When the sound of war was hushed our noble chief surrendered his commission into the hands of Congress, the civil authority from which he had received it—an act which stands unparalleled in martial history.

Washington, the bulwark of his country in war, now became her guide in peace, and we next salute him as president of the constitutional convention, the wisest body of statesmen ever assembled and in whose labors the achievements of our hero found happy consummation in our Federal charter, the greatest state paper framed by the mind and purpose of man. With becoming modesty, Washington, called by the unanimous voice of a free and sovereign people, entered upon the duties of Presidency of the United States—the highest office of civil administration known to human government, and under the auspices of the God of Nations guided our ship of state through the most critical period in our history. Upon his retirement he declined any remuneration from the public treasury, but his beneficent service will be held in grateful remembrance in every dwelling place of virtue and liberty.

The world has but one George Washington. His form was a specimen of manly beauty and physical perfection; his moral and intellectual constitution was of a happy and noble mold. In all the attributes of virtuous manhood he stands peerless and unapproached. We need not say the great Washington, the noble, the true, the generous, the brave, the loving Washington. His very name is associated with all that is worthy of emulation and praise. His brightness is not the glare of the passing meteor, but the steady light of the sun—not the brilliance of a single act, but the effulgence of a career of constancy and fidelity. Oratory and verse have united in eulogy and laudation. Frederick the Great pronounced his work the greatest achievement of the eighteenth century. Napoleon walked with uncovered head before the effigy of our hero. Lord Brougham says: "It will be the duty of the historian and the sage of all nations, to let no occasion pass of commemorating this illustrious man and until time shall be no more will a test of the progress which our race has made in wisdom and virtue be derived from the veneration paid to the immortal name of Washington." Lord Byron has these lines:

> "Where may the wearied eye repose
> While gazing on the great,
> Where neither guilty glory glows
> Nor despicable state?
> Yes—one—the first, the last, the best,
> The Cincinnatus of the West,
> Whom envy dared not hate—
> Bequeathed the name of Washington
> To make man blush there was but one."

It is well to rear monuments in stone to the memory of great men, Washington needs none such—in the memory of succeeding generations will the monuments of his praise and glory be fashioned. Unveiled he mounts the Acropolis of renown—the greatest of great men and the best of good men. First among his compeers, he remains one of the highest exemplars to humanity and he will transcend the ages with the noblest sons of fame.

THAT WHITE HOUSE MAIL.

A dispatch from Washington, according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, says that although former President Coolidge officially stopped having his mail sent to the White House eighteen months ago, dozens of letters still come there for him and members of his family. Not only that, but every now and then mail still arrives "from some far-removed sections of the country addressed to Grover Cleveland or Woodrow Wilson." We hadn't thought of it before, but by the same token what stacks of unclaimed mail there must be at Stratford-on-Avon for the late William Shakespeare, esq. Caesar's fan letters long ago must have taxed postal storage space at Rome. Wonder what the Athens postmaster does with mail with advice to Alexander the Great and Pericles of the Golden Age.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

TIME.

Through all the days of strife and woe
And every care which mortals know,
Time's face unchanged remains.
With us 'twill neither weep nor smile,
But, calm, complacent all the while
It starts our ships and trains,
Precisely to the minute, too,
The note we signed last month falls due.

Comes Easter Sunday when it should
To men of evil ways and good,
And dawn and dusk and night.
And though we win, and though we fall,
Time never halts its flight,
Or turns to look or stays to see
What's happening to you and me.

Man is beset by countless things!
Distraction round him daily flings
Temptations in his way;
He loses out because he stays
To watch the firemen fight a blaze
Or little children play.
His plan the touch of chance upsets
Man falters, blunders and forgets.

Man breaks his leg or fails to think,
Or takes too much of food and drink,
But time does none of these,
The old clock ticks the hours away,
Nor great nor little hand will stay
A mortal's whim to please.
And that we rise or that we fall,
Time doesn't seem to care at all.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THERE is no such thing as a born criminal.

Much investigation has established the fact that the children of criminal parents usually come to some bad end, but their misfortune can not be accepted as proof of inherent evil. No man knows what they might have been if they had developed in a better environment. To suspect them of criminal tendencies because their parents were outlaws is no more reasonable than the assumption that a boy should prefer sleeping in the daytime because his father was a night watchman.

The common belief that the stupid and the weak-minded are predisposed to crime is equally absurd. They are easily led into crime by criminal associates, but they are as easily led into prayer meeting if the people they know and admire are devout and decent.

As a matter of fact, much of the world's woe is caused by the fact that so many of the stupid are on the side of righteousness. Well-meaning lunatics are the chief handicap of every good cause—and crime continues to flourish because the men who engage in it have wit enough to escape capture.

Never yet have men of science found one iota of evidence to indicate that stupidity predisposes boys and girls to crime any more than it predisposes them to attend Sunday School.

It is environment that determines destiny.

Nearly all petty criminals are near-morons, but they drift into crime because they were born and reared in the midst of poverty and petty crime.

Take them from their native squalor while they are infants and establish them in some rural village where religion is the chief interest of the people and the last one of them will join the church before he is grown.

An investigator recently completed a study of many cities and announced the discovery that each had one small district in which 85 per cent of its crime originated. People who moved out of the district became good citizens; people who moved in became criminals.

Sufficient proof that environment alone makes character is afforded by the records of any decently managed orphanage.

One such institution, supported by a fraternal organization, accepted children of all ages and all degrees of intelligence and dismissed them at the age of 18, keeping in touch with them thereafter for a period of ten years.

Eleven hundred girls and more than two thousand boys were sent out from that training school, and all but 28 survived the decade of trial and temptation without "going wrong" or in any way violating the law.

Some day our statesmen will learn that the prevention of crime is cheaper than the brutal business of punishing criminals, and then every child in the land will be given a fair chance to absorb decency from its environment.

If you would train a pup to guard sheep, you must keep it away from sheep-killing dogs.

PRO AND CON

The Next Democratic Platform.

Detroit News.

Already there is a difference of opinion among Democratic leaders as to the main issue of the 1932 campaign. In sixteen months the platform must be drawn and adopted; therefore, it is not too early to sound out party sentiment as to what the platform will say.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, has announced that if he has his way the platform will declare for the right of each State to settle the prohibition question for itself, and he would make that the cardinal issue.

But Cordell Hull, former Democratic national chairman, now senator-elect from Tennessee, would soft-pedal the prohibition question and go to the country on the tariff issue.

Government Operation.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

President Hoover's contemplated message to Congress asking an increase in the letter postage rate from 2 to 2½ cents because the service is not self-supporting is evidence in itself that the postoffice is distinctly not an example of a successfully operated Government utility. Notoriously any Federal-operated business falls into the hands of the politicians and inevitably has a deficit. The public ownership advocates select a poor example to bolster their cause when they cite the Postoffice Department.

Psychology Claims All.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A psychology professor says psychology has saved the country money, cut down mistakes of factory workers and reduced taxi accidents. Psychology had better watch out or it will run afoul of the Republicans.

Another Noble Cause.

While Congress is about it, why not a little assistance for those splendid citizens who are now barely staggering along under the burden of New Year's resolutions?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Colds Not Due to Bad Weather, but to Overeating, Says C. H. B.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now comes the time of the year when it is no uncommon fate to hear, if not to harken, to the warning—

> "As February, as March, unfolds, > Beware of flu, bronchitis, colds."

It is a couplet remindful of a certain endeavor in the busy existence of the one-time railroad magnate and financier, the founder of the first national bank in the United States, Austin Corbin, of New Hampshire and New York. In collaboration with Prince Ruspoli, then Mayor of the Eternal City, he set about establishing an Italian colony in Arkansas, on the Mississippi's banks. As a preliminary of his scheme, he called upon a lifetime friend, Dr. Upham, also a native son of New England, a dignified exemplar of the old school, a sound scholar and an able disciple of Aesculapius, to compose a monograph describing the land on which it was purposed to plant the colony.

Touching on the question of malarial fever along the river bottoms, Dr. Upham spoke of the disease as being due to miasmatic vapors arising from the swamps—which was the conventional excuse for the "shakes" before the anopheles mosquito flew onto the stage and made his bow to public consciousness.

A parallelism may be drawn today between the miasma theory and the alleged season for the colds and coughs which the versifer mentions—inasmuch as in the latter case there is nothing to the notion either. Never yet has there been found a solitary hawk "in a carload" of near-springtimes. Chest and head revolts of the kind originate from a human "tummy" and nowhere else. Germs do not hide 'round the corner like a bandit with his bootjack, waiting for a chance to slay. If that were a fact, the process of life would be a woeful flop. It is patent absurdity to consider it so. Just as long as homo sapiens persists in his daily intake of what is popularly known as civilized food, just that long will this springtime cold nonsense endure.

It is not pleasant for any one who believes he has a real penchant for sanitation to suspect that, for the gratification of the taste buds, he is devoting his tissues to use as a sort of garbage dump. To ascribe his sneezing, nose blowing and phlegming to the malevolence of the east wind, to slush and other trying harbingers of robin red breast may be consoling, but—taint so!

Bonus Vote Purely Political, Says Virginia Democrat—Warning to His Party.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While the members of Congress, practically every Democrat and a large majority of the Republicans, have entirely lost their heads in the scramble to vote for the bonus bill, the vast majority of the American people are not only hoping but confidently expecting the President to veto the measure. It is too bad that under our form of government, the best that man has yet been able to devise, the Congress will have an opportunity to continue its political antics and override the veto.

That the stampede to vote for this unwise measure was prompted largely and almost exclusively in the hope of retaining and securing votes to perpetuate themselves in the office they now hold, is evident to every thinking American by the fact that none of the members in favor of the bill would permit its amendment to provide that the loans be made available only to those who are in actual need. This action alone conclusively shows that it was not out of sympathy for the veterans that the bill was passed but was for political reasons, pure and simple.

I have no suggestions to offer to the Republican party, whose ticket I have never voted, but I decide to warn the Democrats of this country that if any member of the present Congress who voted for this bill is put on the ticket in 1932, I, for one, will not only refuse to vote the Democratic ticket but will do everything humanly possible to defeat the nominees put up by the party.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRAT.

Tenants of Condemned Buildings Should Take Care of Their Pets.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a result of the vacating of groups of buildings for destruction in the Federal and municipal government improvement areas, especially those housing businesses handling foodstuffs, cats and kittens by the scores—and perhaps hundreds—which have been harbored and allowed to multiply chiefly for their valuable services in property protection against the inroads of rats and mice, will be suddenly abandoned to starvation and exposure by the cutting off of their entire food supplies and removing of their shelters.

I am spending some time every week interviewing vacating occupants, urging them to be faithful to their little pets, offering to take any they can not move with them or to lend them my equipment for the humane capture of untamed strays visiting their premises. My name and address are in the phone book, and I shall be glad to give prompt attention to any one notifying me of animals which should be rescued.

VIRGINIA W. SARGENT.

Calls Attention to Plan to Use Convict Labor on Lee Highway.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your news columns of February 19 you have an item, "Prison Camp Sites in Arlington Seen—Survey Made Preliminary to Building Lee Boulevard Across River." Then follows the details for employing convict labor in this enterprise. Now, what is the difference between the employment of convict labor on the public works in the U. S. A. and the same sort of labor being employed in the Soviet States of Russia? We are a very inconsistent people here in the United States, I fear.

4 HUMANE SOCIETY OFFICERS ACQUITTED

Court Rules Injunction Not Violated by Loan Made to Other Group.

MONEY WELL SECURED

Contempt charges against James P. Briggs, vice president of the Washington Humane Society, and three other members of the organization's executive committee, were dismissed yesterday in District Supreme Court by Justice Jesse C. Adkins. All were charged with violating a restraining order staying them from making a gift to the Humane Education Society.

In addition to Briggs others who were cited are: George C. Page, Mrs. M. E. Woodward and Miss Leona Feathers. Petitioners were: Mrs. Victorine Elmore, Mrs. Elizabeth Moore and Miss Lillian M. Yoo.

Charge was made in the petition that despite the fact the executive committee had been restrained from making the gift to the Humane Education Society, of which Mr. Briggs is president, a loan was made. Justice Adkins ruled that the loan was no subterfuge to circumvent the injunction, pointing out it was secured by a second deed of trust on property valued at $16,000. The loan was for $3,000.

Annual Election Held By Gaithersburg Group

E. C. Gartner was elected president of the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove Volunteer Fire Department at its annual meeting last night in the firehouse at Gaithersburg. Dr. W. D. Barnett was elected vice president. Chief Merle T. Jacobs was reelected. N. B. Jacobs was elected secretary and George Reber treasurer. Edwin Kinsey was elected assistant chief.

Captains were elected by the three fire companies as follows: No. 1, Charles Pope; No. 2, Moffat Grimm; No. 3, Ralph Howard. Chief Jacobs reported that the department answered 91 calls in 1930 and traveled more than 1,000 miles in response to alarms, an average of 12 miles per call.

Miss Morse Is Engaged to Midshipman

Debutante Will Marry Raymond P. Hunter Class of '31.

THE arrow seems to have supplanted the sword within the ranks of the Army and Navy. At least Cupid's darts fly fast and true as one betrothal after another finds its way on the "service" records. Today Lieut. Comdr. John Wise Morse and Mrs. Morse announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Morse, to Midshipman Raymond Paul Hunter, United States Naval Academy. Midshipman Hunter will be graduated with the class of '31. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phansteel Hunter, of Sherman, Tex.

Miss Morse's engagement not only makes inroads into the Navy ranks but marks another "transferred" link inn the chain of this year or last year's debutantes. Although the number of engaged debs this year seems less than in other "fruitful" years, yet each week checks off news of an interesting wedding in the offing.

While studying in Vassar last year Miss Morse came home for her debut. She is a member of the Junior League and of the Colonial Dames of America. With three years residence in Paris, while Lieut. Comdr. Morse was on duty there, the popular member of the Capital's young set has enjoyed an interesting background in preparation for her social career.

Hopes that Miss Morse may linger on in town awhile and continue "playing around" with the group of young people with which she is allied find basis in the fact that no date has been set for the wedding.

The announcement followed closely upon that of Miss Cecil Jewell, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Frank C. Jewell, to Lieut. John Lockwood Burnside, U. S. N., who now is attending the submarine school in New London, Conn. Miss Little has just come from Atlanta with her parents.

Another of last year's debutantes whose engagement caused a flutter and who will enter the Navy, as it were, is Miss Alberta Perley, who has set June for her wedding. She will be married to Mr. John Guthrie Prescott, one of the midshipmen of the first class at Annapolis.

This season's Army debs slip "under the wire," the one through the medium of a large wedding and the other having taken things into her own hands in the matter of an elopement. Miss Katharine Kingman elected to "stay" in the Army and is now Mrs. Frederick R. Weber, of Fort Howard, Md., where Lieut. Weber is on duty, and Miss Ruth Gullion, who came out this year, surprised some of her friends by slipping to Philadelphia in mid-January to become the bride of Mr. Frederick Simpich, jr.

The Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, will have as his guest for several days his daughter, Mrs. Webster K. Knight 2d, who will arrive in Washington this evening.

Stimsons Will Visit Peppers in Devon.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson will go to Devon, Pa., tomorrow to spend the day with former Senator and Mrs. George Wharton Pepper. They will return to Washington Monday.

Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, wife of Senator Morrow, is passing a few days out of town, and will return to the Shoreham today.

Mrs. Wade H. Ellis entertained at luncheon yesterday in her home on Massachusetts avenue.

The luncheon was to have been given in honor of Mrs. Post Wheeler, who has been delayed in Florida, where she is visiting, by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. William McClellan Ritter will entertain at dinner this evening in honor of the Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes.

Senor Eduardo Vivot, the newly appointed second secretary of the Argentine Embassy, is now at the Shoreham Hotel, where he has taken an apartment for the coming season.

The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Lamont, Col. Blanton Winship, Commander and Mrs. Julian Wheeler, Miss Gertrude Lamont and Lieut. Thomas W. Hammond will be the guests of Representative and Mrs. M. H. Thatcher in their box at the annual Kentucky party at the Willard on Tuesday night.

Former Gov. and Mrs. E. P. Morrow will entertain in their box Maj. and Mrs. Sam Parker, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Horgan, Mr. C. R. Morrow and Miss Mary Lee Thompson.

Suzanne Park Is Engaged to Vice Consul

Wedding to Yale Man to Take Place in New York City.

Of interest to Washington is the engagement of Miss Suzanne Park, daughter of the American Vice Consul at Biarritz, France, and Mrs. Sam Park, to Mr. Henry Philip Ammidown, son of the late Mr. Philip Holmes Ammidown, of Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. George H. Dyer, of Milwaukee. The announcement was made in New York where Mr. and Mrs. Park make their home when in this country. They will sail shortly to return to France.

The wedding will take place at 5 o'clock on April 10, in St. Bartholomew's Church, and will be followed by a reception at Sherry's.

Miss Park attended school in Washington and later at the Princess Merstcherkey's School in Paris. A popular member of the younger set both in New York and Biarritz, Miss Park was to have been presented at the Court of St. James in the spring, but because of her wedding the plan has been postponed.

Mr. Ammidown, who was born in Seattle, was graduated from the Asheville School in 1925, attended Roxbury and was a member of the class of 1930 at Yale.

Mr. Park received his appointment at Biarritz in 1920 and later received the Medaille de la Reconnaissance Francaise. Before going to France he served as colonel on the staff of former Gov. Tom Campbell of Arizona.

Society of Engineers Has Brilliant Banquet.

The large ballroom of the Willard was the scene last night of one of the most interesting gatherings of the American Society of Naval Engineers in the history of the organization. In a setting of subdued lighting and with table decorations of banked flowers the dining room presented an attractive arrangement. Rear Admiral N. E. Yarnall, chief of the Bureau of Engineering of the Navy and president of the society, presided, and Rear Admiral W. D. Leahy, chief of the Bureau of Ordnance of the Navy, was the toastmaster for the evening.

Mr. Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy; Rear Admiral F. B. Upham, U. S. Navy, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, and Mr. James L. Ackerson, director Bureau of Construction of the U. S. Shipping Board, were the speakers.

Naval Academy; Senator Copeland, Senator Dickson, J. E. Burkhardt, chief engineer of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation; Mr. H. T. Herr, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric, and Admiral Billard, commander U. S. Coast Guard.

New Honors Expected for Col. Winship

Member of Bachelors Club Often Visited by Good Fortune.

That the wand of luck which waved so long over the doorway of 1718 H street, that opened into the famous Bachelors Club, still flaunts good fortune is evidenced in the probable appointment of Col. Blanton Winship as judge advocate general to succeed Maj. Gen. Edward A. Kreger, who retires from active Army service today. The rumored elevation of Col. Winship will, unless all signs fail, become actual within a very short time.

Hailed in all quarters of the globe as a "prince of a fellow," Col. Winship's elevation to the rank of major general will be generally approved by service members and by the large circle of civilian friends who seek him out, here and there, as guest at smart functions. His career has switched back and forth across the Pacific and Atlantic, only last August "landing" him again in Washington after several years' service in the Philippines.

Col. Winship, who was aid to Presidnet Coolidge until March, 1927, went to the islands as legal adviser to Mr. Henry L. Stimson, then Governor of the Philippines. He was succeeded by Maj. Gen. John A. Hull, who is with Gov. Davis in the far Pacific.

Red letter names are attached to the smart club to which no benedict ever returned as member. When Col. Winship lived there, before the World War, he was the roommate of Archibald Butt, aid to President Taft and also President Roosevelt. Both officers were from Georgia, both endowed with the charm of the Southern cavalier and the gift of making friends.

The former envoy to Canada, Mr. William Phillips, also was a member

THE new 48-story building of the Radio Corporation of America, in New York, with a sign on it which can be read a mile away, and located at the southwest corner of Fifty-first street and Lexington avenue, emphasizes the fact that that portion of the city will soon be the radio center of the country.

This building, which will be ready for occupancy in April, is only a couple of blocks from the Columbia Broadcasting System Building at Fifty-second street and Madison avenue, and not a great distance from the headquarters of the National Broadcasting Co. at Fifty-fifth street and Fifth avenue.

Nearby will be the great Rockefeller radio city, opposite St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth avenue, covering the three blocks from Forty-eighth to Fifty-first street.

WALTER DAMROSCH will present the duplicate of a program by his father, Dr Leopold Damrosch, at the old Academy of Music on February 17, 1883, this evening (WRC, 9 p. m.). Dr. Leopold Damrosch, distinguished musician of his day, conducted Siegfried's "Funeral March" on that occasion in memory of Wagner, who had died just four days previous to the concert.

To prevent listeners from accidentally missing their favorite programs, a radio alarm clock is now being offered to the buying public in the larger cities.

The clock, which operate on alternating current, automatically tunes in a radio program at any desired time. Likewise, it turns the radio off, so that one may go to sleep listening to the music and be assured that shortly thereafter the set will be silent. The mechanism of this radio alarm clock is said to be very simple.

AMONG the guests at the White House Correspondents Association dinner tonight will be Edward Klauber, assistant to the president of Columbia; Jesse Butcher, Columbia press chief, and Ted Husing, Columbia announcer.

Bob MacGimsey, three-tone whistler, will return to the air tomorrow (WJZ network, 9:45 p. m.).

The Showboat version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be transmitted tonight (WMAL, 10 o'clock).

HANDICAPPED by a voice which is a little too husky for the radio, Mary Pickford made another creditable appearance the other night. Speaking in behalf of a California concern, she presented five carloads of oranges to the drought sufferers in Arkansas and Oklahoma. However, as seemingly does most every other picture star who gets on the air, Miss Pickford detracted considerably from the presentation by injecting what seemed to be an excessive amount of advertising into the program.

It may have been permissible to put in a plug for the orange people because they were paying for the time, but, not satisfied with this, Mary, aided and abetted by Louella Parsons, rang in boosts not only for her own moving pictures, but also for Doug's.

"Rapid Transit," a popular sustaining feature of several seasons ago, will be revived over WRC, beginning next Tuesday evening.

THE tallest man in radio is supposed to be Edmund B. (Tiny) Ruffner, six feet seven inches in height, an announcer, who now confines his efforts to one program exclusively.

The ringing of the Liberty Bell, symbol of American independence, will be heard from Philadelphia throughout the Nation during the George Washington celebration tomorrow afternoon (WRC, 2:30 o'clock).

Because of deterioration and further weakening, it has been announced, the Liberty Bell will not be rung again, at least for another 100 years, that it may be preserved in its present condition.

Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

Paris, Feb. 20.

THERE you are—it just shows what Clever Fingers can do when she makes up her mind! For the chic woman all things are chic, and economy is not a factor.

They say French women have it, this elusive quality called chic—that the veriest little French midinette puts her little hat on at a certain angle, her tie bows in a certain way, her jacket wraps with a certain flare. Be that as it may, many an elderly Frenchman has told me that the American women on the streets are all chic and pretty, snappy and smart, whereas he thinks that his own countrywomen can not achieve this without means.

Little girls can be taught chic. Don't let little sister put her hat on just any old way, but teach her that there is a way to adjust it—oh, in just a minute, not taking ten to it—that makes it smart, and that gives her a feeling of being chic herself. When she grows up she will be one of the fortunate girls who always look and feel right.

* * * *

Speaking of economy, you could, if you wished, order three hats like the one I sketched for you today, because it is a smart, flattering and new spring model. But if you are clever, you won't do anything of the sort. Instead, you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet that tells you how to make it—and make one, with three differently colored rolls of trimming which snap on in a certain way. And three spring hats you will have for the little less than the price that one smart spring hat would cost you. Better send for that leaflet, and out-smart Mrs. Smart herself this time!

* * * *

There's not a dissenting voice against normal waistlines in Paris. A very few evening gowns and negligees sponsor the empire line, but these are scarce and more in the nature of tentative experiments than anything else. Of course, there is some question as to where the normal waistline is, and Mlle. Chanel herself, being low waisted, seems to place her normal waistline in her models slightly lower on the figure than one expects a normal waistline to be. Martial et Armand does the same. But remember also that this is in their model gowns which the mannequins wear * * * on the clients, the belt-line is placed wherever the client wishes it to be.

* * * *

Last day in which you can send for the interesting leaflet of how to make Parisian boudoir slippers that are simply a dream to the feet and to the pocketbook!

* * * *

It's not a bit too early for discussion of spring hats. Some important details of the new styles are told in Dare's weekly fashion letter in Sunday's Washington Post. Look for it tomorrow.

Au revoir.

YOUR NAME WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE study of family names is interesting not only because of the personal interest which each one of us has in the origin and meaning of his name, but also because of the wealth of information which many names reveal concerning the customs, habits, dwellings and garments of our ancestors. An interesting history is involved in the origin of the name "Burrell" (also spelled "Burrill," "Burrel" and "Burril"). This name has come into English through the French, but its ultimate source is the Greek adjective "purrhos" meaning "red." Although it may seem surprising to many people, our common noun "bureau" has exactly the same source. In medieval times the French and English made a kind of coarse cloth to which was given the French name "burel," meaning "reddish-brown," because it was always made in that color. This cloth was extremely strong and cheap, so it was very commonly used in making the garments of the poorer people. A person who became conspicuous for his constant use of "burel" was frequently given that word as a nickname, so we thus have one of the commonest sources of the family name "Burrell." The article of furniture called the bureau received its name because it was generally covered with "burel." The change from "burel" to "bureau" is quite in keeping with the natural changes in pronunciation which took place as old French developed into modern French. If one should ask why the form of the family name did not change also, the obvious answer would be that our ancestors took pride in their names, once those names became hereditary, and opposed all attempts to modernize them. (The next article of this series will include some further remarks concerning this name.)

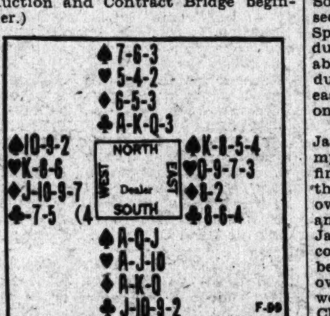
WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)



With the above hand South would be the Declarer playing one No Trump at Auction Bridge or four No Trumps at Contract Bridge. At Contract North, with a count of 9, should bid four Clubs over his partner's three No Trumps, thus suggesting a slam; but South, having bid three originally on a practical minimum, would end the contracting by bidding four No Trumps.

The important point of the hand is in the play. West would open with the Jack of Diamonds and of course South would win. South then should see that he might want to lead both Spades and Hearts twice from the dummy hand; so it would be advisable to obtain four entries in the dummy if possible. He can do so easily unless four Clubs are held in one adverse hand, which is not likely.

To trick 2 South should lead the Jack of Clubs, overtaking with dummy's Queen, and then lead a Spade, finessing the Queen. When that wins, the Ten of Clubs should be led and overtaken with dummy's King. Then another Spade should be led and the Jack finessed. With this much accomplished, the Nine of Clubs should be led to the third Club trick and overtaken with dummy's Ace. This would be perfectly safe because eight Clubs having fallen on the first two Club tricks, the last adverse Club must drop on this trick.

Then a Heart should be led from dummy and the finesse taken. West will win, but it matters not what he does next. Presumably he will continue with another Diamond which South would win and put dummy in with the Club Trey, South's Deuce having been kept for that purpose. Then dummy would lead a second Heart, South would finesse, and twelve tricks would be made.

What Today Means to You

"PISCES."

IF February 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:45 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:15 p. m, and from 7 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 6:45 p. m

Astrological indications denote for February 21, a day of useful activity, stimulation of thought, and clear vision. Not so much a time for new enterprise as for the correction of errors in past efforts. It is an auspicious occasion for travel and for the formation of new ties.

A child born on this February 21 will be self-willed, and, when thwarted, reveal a violent attitude. These traits must be eliminated if it is ever to become what the fates have decreed—a strong, purposeful character with a background of geniality and companion-ability.

If your birthday is February 21, the stars presage that your bed will not be of roses. You will have to struggle long and hard to purge your system of envy, jealousy and violent dislikes. If you have succeeded in doing this, you will have acquired the virtues of tolerance, agreeableness and contentment, all very necessary qualities if you are to enjoy the career for which you are destined. Your horoscope denotes that you possess high ideals, and try to live up to them; that you have more than average intelligence, and know how to apply it; that you have well balanced, although strong convictions and do not hesitate to proclaim them You will not have many friends. The few you have, however, will make up in loyalty for lack of numbers. You take life too seriously to appeal to many. You also take yourself very seriously and have no sense of humor. Your sense of justice is very marked and you feel others' wrongs as much as though they were inflicted on you.

Association with a partner would "cramp your style." You must, to get the best results, "go it on your own." In your home life you will dominate, but not domineer. You will be constant in your affections, and, though not given to emotional outbursts, will secure the abiding loyalty, the deep affection and the loving respect of those near and dear to you.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me whether it is necessary to plant day lilies in sun or shade. I want a border of these plants and have only a partially shaded place for them. Do they require protection during the winter?
HOPE M.

Day lilies will thrive either in sunlight or shade, but they grow best in partial shade, even in northern exposures where few other plants will grow. They are excellent plants for the shady strip of soil near the house, which is common about most of our homes. Before planting these lilies dig the ground to a good depth and enrich with manure. They do not require winter protection.

Last year I watered my Oriental poppies every day throughout the season. A friend who is an experienced gardener tells me this is a mistake. Is she correct?
MISS HANNAH T. E.

During the dry spells in the early part of the summer these plants should be watered about three times a week, but after they have finished blooming and the leaves begin to die down they should be left alone, for the roots seem to enjoy a thorough baking during the hottest months.

Please tell me the kind of soil best suited to the growing of mallows.
MRS. JOSEPH R.

Mallows prefer a moist soil, although they will do equally well in a dry soil. They enjoy either sun or partial shade.

Can you tell me the name of the plant from which I am inclosing a leaf or flower? Can it be grown again by cutting the plant back, or must I remove a cutting and thus start a new plant.
ANNIS T. J.

Your plant is a begonia. This variety will grow on indefinitely. There is no reason for cutting it back until the top growth shows signs of disease. Begonias may be propagated from seed or from cuttings.

While in Bermuda last fall I found a bulb which I brought home and later planted, I am inclosing a leaf of the plant which came from this bulb. Do you know the plant? Is it suitable for house use?
MRS. N. C. C.

The leaf you inclosed resembles the leaf of a calla lily. This lily is not hardy in this vicinity, though they do grow in the open in Bermuda.

I live where I have sufficient ground to choose a suitable place for planting a group of hybrid perpetual roses. Please tell me a few of the requirements of such a rose plot.
CAROLINE T. R.

An open, sunny position, sheltered from north winds and clear of the roots of trees and shrubs, is ideal for the culture of hybrid perpetual roses. This type rose is, as you know, perfectly hardy and of vigorous growth, blooms freely during June and produces some flowers in late August and September. The ground must be well drained, and if you would be successful you must use large quantities of fertilizer. Set the plants two feet apart and one foot from the edge of the bed. When planting, spread the roots and cover them with finely pulverized soil. If the soil is very dry, water the plants when the holes are three-fourths filled. Press the earth firmly about the roots and be sure that roots do not come into direct contact with the manure.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

CHAPTER XLIX.

It was clear as the year 1923 wore on that Manuel Quezon was losing ground in the Philippines. Gen. Wood's frequent tours of inspection made him a familiar figure throughout the islands; and the Filipinos could not fail to note the beneficient effects on their own affairs of his sudden appearances. In Manila this effect was most sharply felt. The business of the government, which had for years been running at loose ends to the accompaniment of corruption and petty tyranny, was now on an efficient basis, with income and outgo balancing and a sense of order and integrity in the air. The peso was back at par, the National Bank was slowly getting on its feet, steps were being taken to liquidate the politicos' other adventures in finance. The public health was being notably advanced; the cattle diseases which, under the loose control exercised by the Filipinos, had made appalling progress, were once more under control.

The change for the better was so obvious that the politicos were finding it difficult to maintain the campaign for independence which was the source of their power. Osmena, who had the Oriental's long patience, was, it seemed, not as deeply disturbed by the political aspects of the situation as his hot-headed political associate and rival. Quezon was primarily an orator who recognized that in addressing an ignorant and naive public a single rousing denunciation had more political value than a dozen constructive affirmations. But the progress of affairs under Wood left scant fuel for the denouncer. Quezon's declaration that he would rather live under "a government run like hell by the Filipinos than under a government run like heaven by outsiders" was wearing a bit thin.

Something clearly would have to be done to revive interest in the political situation.

Quezon Gets His Chance.

An obscure American detective named Roy Conley, chief of the vice squad on the Manila police force, gave Quezon his chance. Conley, who had been honorably discharged from the American Army, was by his raids making gambling unprofitable in Manila and now and again hailing prominent politicos into court. The native press denounced him, and it was not long before he was arrested on the charge of taking a bribe from a Chinaman. The mayor of Manila, a man named Fernande, who had shone luridly in connection with the affairs of the National Bank, appeared with the secretary of the interior, a man named Laurel, as chief witnesses against Conley. The testimony was so flimsy that the case was thrown out of court.

Wood, who had suspended Conley from duty at the request of the mayor and secretary of interior, on his acquittal immediately reinstated him. The man was again arrested on similar charges. Once more, on motion of the prosecuting attorney, a Filipino, the case was thrown out of court.

The mayor and the secretary protested to Wood, who ordered an administrative investigation by an unprejudiced board.

This board acquitted Conley of the specific charges made against him, and after his reinstatement he was permitted to retire from the service at his own request. Thereupon the mayor of Manila and the secretary of the interior resigned.

Quezon ran promptly to Wood to protest. In going over the head of the secretary of the interior, Quezon declared, Wood had encroached on the authority of the Legislature, to which alone the department heads were responsible. For hours on the veranda of Malacanan he contended for the doctrine of the subservience of the executive branch to the legislature.

At last Gordon Johnston, who was present, lost his hair-trigger Southern temper. "Gen. Wood," he interrupted, "may I ask Mr. Quezon a question?"

Angered at Interruption.

Wood was clearly angered at the interruption, but when Quezon turned toward him Johnston went on. "Mr. Quezon, are you talking about Conley or are you talking about parliamentary government?"

"I don't give a damn about Conley" exclaimed Quezon.

"I thought not," Johnston remarked. "Then you are just wasting the general's time and your own. You know as well as I that the general can't change the form of government of the Philippines. We are all operating under the Jones law. If you want to change that law, the place for you to go is to the Congress of the United States."

Wood was angry with his aid. He was still hoping that cooperation with the Filipino leaders was possible, but he knew well enough how the land lay.

Wood was conscious of plots and stratagems in the air. A day later Osmena, Quezon, Santos and Roxas, the speaker of the assembly, looking solemn and obviously worried, came to Malacanan.

"Mr. Quezon began a general line of accusation," Wood wrote in his diary, "that I had overridden the secretaries, violated the law, and had generally run wild in the departments. This was all couched in reasonably courteous language, but he was extremely excited, hand shaking, face rather pale, and evidently had come to carry out a definite purpose."

He repeated the charge which he had made two weeks previous in a letter to Wood which he had given to the press. There was a growing feeling among the Filipinos, he declared, that the views of the Filipino officials in the government, including the secretaries in the departments, had very little, if any, weight with the governor general. If this feeling were allowed to stand it would be very difficult to preserve "the utmost cooperation" of the Filipinos, once they became convinced that the governor general lacked confidence either in their loyalty or ability.

Answered Each Charge.

Wood took up Quezon's charges point by point. Had he ignored the secretaries? He turned to Santos. Had he ever disapproved any recommendation of his or any recommendation for appointment in the Department of Justice? Santos answered that he never had.

"Quezon was a little bit dashed by Santos' answer," Wood wrote. "He then went on from one tack to another, laying great stress upon the fact that I had disapproved his recommendatoion for a general remission of the tax penalty. I told him that the remission of taxes was a matter which rested with me and not with other members of the government, and that I must assume that responsibility and that I did not feel justified from the reports which I had received in remitting taxes.

"He said, 'No, you do not trust my recommendations, but want to go and see for yourself.' "

This charge had its comic aspects. "Finally (Quezon) became so insistent and impertinent that I had to tell him that the great difficulty was that he was trying to exercise authority which was not vested in him; in other words, he was trying to assume control of the government."

Was not Wood controlling the budget? Quezon asked. He was, indeed, Wood answered, but the budget was purely a function of the governor general, who alone had the responsibility for it. As a matter of fact, the budget had been made by the secretaries. Wood asked Santos was that not true?

"Santos was a good deal embarrassed," Wood wrote, "but had to admit that that was the case, that they fixed among themselves the items for the different departments.

"In other words, every charge in (Quezon's) complaints was absolutely and completely refuted, and the sum total of the discussion showed that they had had practical autonomy, indeed autonomy without any real control in most instances. I told them that as for supervision, that was my business and responsibility, and this control of mine over the actions of the secretaries I had exercised very rarely."

At 10:30 o'clock that night Wood met the four leaders again in his office. Quezon presented a letter signed by himself, by Roxas, the speaker of the house, and by the five secretaries of departments. They had observed for some time, ran the letter, that it was Wood's policy and desire as governor general "to intervene in and control even to the smallest details" the affairs of the Philippine government "in utter disregard of the authority and responsibility of the department heads and other officials concerned."

Clearly the memory of the signers of this document was brief, since they had forgotten in six hours the testimony which two of their own number had given.

Called Violation of Law.

The acts of the governor in the Conley case, the letter went on, constituted "a clear violation of the fundamental law of the land." It was, moreover, "a backward step and a curtailment of Filipino autonomy guaranteed by the organic act and enjoyed by the Filipino people continuously since the operation of the Jones law."

The governor general, having committed these various crimes and misdemeanors, the signers of the letter found themselves unable to assume responsibility with him in the execution of his deplorable policy and, therefore, tendered their resignations.

To the obvious disgust of those most concerned, Wood promptly accepted them.

The assistant secretaries carried on the work of the departments. The morning after the dramatic episode Wood was observed chuckling over the fact that these men could not resign without sacrificing their pensions.

The affair brought the Philippines to the front page of every American newspaper. Quezon spread far his tale of outrageous tyranny, and under his leadership the legislature in joint session addressed a resolution to the President, asking for Wood's recall. "We are resolved to defend the constitutional liberties of our people against the usurpation of the governor general."

It had a magnificent sound. Osmena supported it with the charge that Wood had done his best to relinquish into foreign hands the companies which had been financed by the Philippine Bank. Wood thereupon published a special message regarding mismanagement of the bank, which the Legislature had suppressed. His action brought a statement from one of the pro-Filipino newspapers, which comically revealed the fundamental reason for the opposition to Wood.

"Prominent members of the Legislature view the present agitation concerning the affairs of the Philippine National Bank as something more serious than interference by the Governor General with prerogatives of the department secretaries."

Osmena, generally temperate in his utterances, this time outdid his volcanic associate in denunciations. The Governor General, he declared, wanted "to usurp the powers conferred on the Mayor of Manila and on the Secretary of the Interior." It was a violation of the laws of their country. Were not the Filipinos a product of revolution? Very good. If they could not peaceably retain their liberties they would once more take the way of revolution.

"The hour has come," chanted Quezon, "and it is God's will that the Filipinos should govern their own land."

Coolidge Takes Action.

Calvin Coolidge, however, who might have defended successfully the thesis that he knew as much about the plans of the Deity as Mr. Quezon, read those plans differently. In the absence of any judicial body charged with the responsibility of composing the Philippine controversy, Mr. Coolidge spoke, through the Secretary of War, Mr. Weeks, a clarifying word.

Under the organic act, he pointed out, the control and supervision over all departments and bureaus rested in the Governor General, making their chiefs directly responsible to him and not, as in a parliamentary form of government, to the Legislature. Any acts of the Legislature which were in violations of the provisions of the organic law he declared null and void. Insofar as such legislation provided for encroachments on the authority of the Governor General, it was not binding. The veto power granted to the Governor General, moreover, was applicable to all legislation.

"The personal sacrifice involved in your acceptance of your present office is proof of your desire to serve the Filipino people as you have served the United States," the message from Secretary Weeks declared. "You are entitled to the support of the administration, and you have it."

The Filipino leaders struck a fresh blow for liberty by cutting out of the annual budget the appropriations for the maintenance of the Governor General's office and of the dispatch boat which carried Wood on his disconcerting trips of inspection. Wood met the childish gesture, in accordance with the organic act, by continuing the appropriations of the previous year.

"We have had a long, hard fight here," Wood wrote Mrs. Egan, "brought on entirely by our good friends, the local leaders, who started it with a frank declaration that they were going to reduce the Governor General to a figurehead, &c., and so on. Stated in its simplest terms, they made up their minds that they were going to break down the organic act."

"There is no issue here," Wood wrote J. B. W. Gardiner. "Every leader of prominence has told me that it will be years before they are ready for independence, but they do not dare to come out and say this publicly. They are simply putting up a great bluff. Their proposition for a constitutional convention fell flat. The leaders had to do something to put themselves in the limelight. The safest thing was to attack the American Government in the Philippines, for they knew that the home Government was strong, generous and tolerant. It was a case of a boy throwing a stone at a policeman."

Commission Suit Filed Against Air Magazine

Vaughan B. Connelly, former advertising and business manager of Aeronautics Review, the publication of the National Aeronautic Association, of which Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, is president, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court seeking a judgment for $2,343.89.

Connelly, who claims he was hired on recommendation of Senator Bingham, says the association owes him the money as commission on advertising contracts which he obtained during 1929 and 1930.

THE PRESIDENT'S SALARY

WHEN GEORGE WASHINGTON BECAME PRESIDENT HE REFUSED A SALARY, SAYING THAT HE WOULD ACCEPT EXPENSES ONLY. HE KEPT A MINUTE ACCOUNT OF THESE DURING HIS FIRST YEAR AND FOUND THEM TO BE ABOUT $25,000. THE PRESIDENT'S SALARY WAS FIRST FIXED AT THAT AMOUNT, BUT HAS BEEN RAISED SEVERAL TIMES SINCE. IT IS NOW $75,000 A YEAR.

HOW THE DANDELION GOT ITS NAME

WHEN PEOPLE COMMENCED TO STUDY PLANTS, THE JAGGED LEAF OF THE DANDELION REMINDED THEM OF LION'S TEETH, SO THEY NAMED IT "DENT-DE-LYON" WHICH IN FRENCH MEANT "TEETH OF A LION." THEN THEY SHORTENED IT TO DANDELION.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

IT HAS frequently been my observation that one of the phenomena of recording animate figures in celluloid is that no two persons watching the same picture see precisely the same things. New evidence of the surprisingly illusory quality of shadow drama—and the allegedly inaccurate recordings of the microphones, too, for that matter—comes to hand in the form of a letter from J. C. Ransom, 3416 R street, who is concerned over the differences between the Bernice Claire viewed on the screen in "Kiss Me Again," at the Earle, and the same charming young prima donna as she appeared on the stage in the flesh. The letter says in part:

"The lady of the personal appearance is about 25 pounds heavier than the one of the picture. The singing voice of the presentation lady is 25 per cent stronger and of much better tone than the lady of the screen. Were it not for the peculiar twist of the mouth in singing, it would be easy to believe that an understudy was appearing here for Miss Claire. * * * Whether Miss Claire is off her Hollywood diet and has grown bigger and physically stronger on hotel fare, I have no means of knowing. It is a fact, though, that the frail lady of the screen is quite different from the better one of the stage presentation."

I am not at all prepared to say that the screen reproduction of the vocal efforts of any artiste is ever better than the original performance of that artiste, but most certainly my reactions were not identical with those recited above at either the first or second performances in which Miss Claire appeared at the Earle a week ago today—and I sat through them both, because they were not at all alike.

To these aged eyes, Miss Claire had not gained 25 pounds since the making of the picture. Her voice from the stage, furthermore, seemed less robust than from the screen, although this might easily be due to the vagaries of the lad at the fader.

But, as I say, you never can tell what the cameras and microphones will do to different people as seen through different eyes. I always thought Clara Kimball Young was a tall, Junoesque creature—until I met her. Others have looked short on the screen who really are tall.

Screen images, it seems, can not be reduced to standard measurements.

Since so many questions about it have bombarded this department following the premiere of the film in Los Angeles and its later opening in New York, it is a pleasure and a relief to announce that Mr. Charles Spencer Chaplin's new sound picture, sans dialogue, "City Lights," will be presented locally in a Loew house at a date that has not as yet been definitely set. Mr. Cullen, Loew manager in Washington, informs me that it will probably be presented at the Columbia for a run, beginning the Saturday before Easter.

"City Lights" has been booked for all the Loew houses in the country, according to announcement made yesterday by Al Lichtman, vice president in charge of distribution for United Artists, through which Chaplin releases his product.

And don't forget that for the benefit of George Washington's Birthday holiday amusement seekers—many of whom won't have anything to do these next three days—a special midnight show, beginning at 12:05 a. m., tomorrow night, will be given at the Earle Theater.

As I understand it, the complete program will be presented, featured on the screen by Bebe Daniels and a splendid supporting company, in "My Past," and headed on the stage by Miss Patricola, foremost of several vaudeville specialists. Tickets are now on sale at a popular scale of prices.

As long as bookings seem to be taking up so much time and space in today's column, you might as well know now that the attraction at the National Theater the week of March 8 will be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's much discussed production of "Trader Horn," filmed in the heart of Africa.

Harry Carey, Edwina Booth and Duncan Renaldo head the cast in this unique film—as you may have learned from the published reports of certain court procedures on the West Coast.

If you are interested in such things, "Inspiration," opening at the Columbia today, is the fifth film in which Greta Garbo has been directed by Clarence Brown. The other four were "Flesh and the Devil," "A Woman of Affairs," "Anna Christie" and "Romance."

It will also be the fourth in which Lewis Stone has supported the fascinating Swede, he having appeared with her also in "A Woman of Affairs," "Wild Orchids" and "Romance."

Incidentally, Miss Garbo is rapidly perfecting a wide variety of dialects foreign even to the Swedish. In "Anna Christie," her first talkie, she was favored by the well understood requirements of a Swedish part; in "Romance" she was Italian, and now in "Inspiration" she is French.

And did you know that Stanley Fields, the deposed gang leader in "Little Caesar" and the Lon Yountis in "Cimarron," now entering its third week at the R. K. O.-Keith Theater, was once the vaudeville partner of Frank Fay on the Keith-Orpheum time? Neither did I.

But you no doubt have heard that three members of the original cast of the stage production of "Dracula," going into its second capacity week at the Rialto, appear in the same roles in the picture. They are Bela Lugosi, as Count Dracula; Edward Van Sloan, as the scientist, Dr. Helsing, and Herbert Bunston, as the proprietor of Seward's sanitarium.

If you care for them, I can do a few simple card tricks, too!

Annual Banquet Held By Utah State Society

The Utah State Society held its annual banquet last night at the Shoreham Hotel, with more than 600 guests and members present, many of them coming from out of town for the occasion. Dr. M. C. Merrill was chairman of the program and arrangement committee.

Representative F. C. Loofbourow acted as toastmaster, and Senator Reed Smoot and Representative Don B. Colton made brief speeches welcoming the guests.

FAMILY OF TEN FED ON $13.07 PER WEEK

Government Offers Program for Seven Children and Three Adults.

SERVE WHEAT, URGED

Can a family of ten, three adults and seven children, live in Washington for a week on an expenditure of $13.07 for food? The Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, studying low feeding programs at the request of the women's division of the President's emergency committee for employment, declares that it can be done.

The Washington homemaker who has ten mouths to feed and around $13 weekly with which to do so can take heart and find useful suggestions in the recent market basket bulletin put out by the Bureau of Home Economics dealing with this subject.

In some cities, of course, it is more reasonable and in others slightly higher. For comparison's sake it is interesting to note what the bureau has set as the minimum cost of feeding ten persons in other cities. Here they are:

The cities in which the figures were gathered to calculate the above cost are given in the order of the value of a week's market basket for a family of ten: Los Angeles, $10.60; Kansas City, Mo., $11.76; Chicago, $11.79; St. Louis, $11.87; Detroit, $11.95; Philadelphia, $12.06; Pittsburgh, $12.13; Boston, $12.52; New York City, $12.88; New Orleans, $12.89; Charlotte, $12.92; Washington, D. C., $13.07; Dallas, $13.07; Atlanta, $13.69.

A family of ten, including three adults and seven children, should buy every week:

Flour and cereal (1½ lbs. bread equal 1 lb. cereal)	30-40 lbs.
Whole fresh milk	43-56 qts.
Or canned unsweetened milk (tall cans)	43-56
Dried beans, peas, peanut butter	2- 5 lbs.
Tomatoes, fresh or canned or citrus fruit	12 lbs.
Other vegetables (including some of green or yellow color), and inexpensive fruits	30-40 lbs.
Fats, such as lard, salt pork, bacon, margarine, butter, &c.	6 lbs.
Sugar and molasses	7 lbs.
Eggs for children (each)	8
Coffee	1 lb.
Tea	¼ lb.

Menu for One Day.

BREAKFAST.

Stewed Prunes Toast
Cooked Cereal and Top Milk
Coffee (for adults) Milk (for children)

DINNER.

Baked Potatoes (for children)

Note—These receipes serve five people.

"Serve wheat to your families" is another bit of advice given to the women of the country by the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture in its low-cost feeding program outlined at the request of the woman's division of the President's emergency committee for employment.

Wheat is inexpensive and has the additional advantages of being a food that satisfies the appetite and an excellent source of many of the elements so necessary for good nutrition, the bureau points out. The housewife's use of the whole wheat grain has heretofore been almost entirely limited to flour and cooked breakfast cereal.

On Coolidge's Menu.

Former President Coolidge recently entertained a member of the Federal Farm Board for breakfast, at which wheat and rye porridge was the cereal. His recipe for this seldom-used dish was two parts of wheat and one of rye, put in a double boiler and cooked whole until the kernels burst. The former President's enthusiasm for wheat porridge has aroused a new interest in this revised version of an ancient dish. It is a well-known fact that Caesar's conquering legions did their fighting with boiled wheat as their principal ration. Wheat porridge is just as good without the rye, in the estimation of Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the bureau.

Many other appetizing ways of utilizing the cooked whole wheat have been developed by the bureau. It can be combined with meat, fish or vegetables and served as the main dish of a meal. It can be used as you do cooked rice, as in stuffed peppers. The flavor is similar to that of nuts and if properly cooked the grain retains its shape. These recipes can be secured at the bureau.

Methods of Cooking Whole Wheat—Sort the whole wheat grains and wash thoroughly. For each cup of wheat add 1½ cups of water and soak over night.

Wheat Cooked Over Direct Heat—In the morning add 3 cups of water and 1 teaspoon of salt to each cup of soaked wheat. Boil gently for three and one-half hours or until tender and no uncooked starchy flavor. If necessary, add more boiling water during the cooking to keep the right consistency.

Steamed Wheat—In the morning drain the wheat and place in a thin layer in the top of a steamer. The water must be kept boiling in the lower part of the steamer and it is necessary to add boiling water during the cooking period. Steam the wheat for three and one-half hours. Sprinkle salt over the wheat before serving.

Wheat Cooked in the Fireless Cooker—In the morning add 1 cup of water and 1 teaspoon of salt to each cup of soaked wheat. Place in a kettle and bring to the boiling point over direct heat. Cover and place in a kettle between the hot stones. After three hours, reheat the stones and cook the wheat for two and one-hour hours longer.

Wheat cooked in any of these ways may be served as a breakfast cereal, or combined with other foods.

Whole Wheat, Fish and Tomato.

1 quart canned tomatoes.
½ cup chopped celery.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 cups cooked whole wheat.

Drain the fish, reserve the liquid and flake the fish into small pieces. Cook the tomatoes, celery and fish liquid until the mixture is fairly thick. Add the seasoning, wheat and fish and cook a few minutes longer and stir to blend well. Serve on crisp toast.

Cream of Vegetable Soup.

2 tablespoons finely chopped carrots.
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion.
2 tablespoons finely chopped celery.
2 tablespoons melted butter or other fat.
1 tablespoon flour.
1½ teaspoons salt.

Cook the finely chopped vegetables in the fat for ten minutes, add the flour, and stir until all are well blended. In the meantime heat the milk in a double boiler, add a little of it to the vegetable mixture, stir well, combine with the rest of the milk, add the salt, and cook for ten minutes. The flavor is improved if the soup is allowed to stand for a short time to blend before serving. Reheat and serve.

Potatoes au Gratin.

2 tablespoons flour.
2 tablespoons butter or other fat.
1 teaspoon salt.
¼ pound cheese, grated.
4 cups cooked diced potatoes.
1 cup buttered bread crumbs.

Prepare a sauce with the milk, flour, fat and salt. Add the cheese, and stir until melted. In a shallow greased baking dish place the potatoes, pour the cheese sauce over them, and cover the top with the buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 20 to 30 minutes, or until the crumbs are golden brown and the potatoes are thoroughly heated. Serve from the baking dish.

Oatmeal Cookies.

1 cup sugar.
1-3 cup cooking oil.
½ cup chopped raisins.
1½ cups oatmeal.
1 egg.
7 tablespoons milk.

Sift the flour, salt, cinnamon and soda. Mix the sugar with the oil, and the raisins with the oatmeal. Put all these ingredients together and add the beaten egg and the milk. Stir until well mixed. Drop by teaspoonfuls on greased pans, about two inches apart. Bake in a moderately hot oven from 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned. This makes three dozen cookies.

THESE FOODS CONTAIN THE VALUABLE VITAMIN B

Bureau of Home Economics.

DIET REQUIRES FOOD RICH IN VITAMIN B

SOURCES ARE INDICATED

Our knowledge about vitimins has been undergoing constant expansion. It is still far from complete. First came recognition of the fact that in natural food materials there existed, in minute quantities, certain substances other than proteins, fats, carbohydrates and salts, which appeared to be essential for normal nutrition. Further investigation showed that these substances, or vitamins, also prevented various pathological conditions or "deficiency diseases."

Early in the work three separate vitamins were identified, and called A, B and C. Each one had functions peculiar to itself. Several years later two more vitamins, D and E, were discovered. Comparatively recently it has been found that another vitamin, named G, occurs in a great many foods which are also rich in vitamin B. The identification of vitamin G was obscured for a long time because of this parallel occurrence.

The functions of the two vitamins differ. Vitamin B prevents beri-beri, while vitamin G prevents pellagra. An abundance of both vitamins is essential for growth and well-being at all ages, but particularly necessary for nursing mothers and young children. As both occur to a large extent in the same foods and in a very wide variety of foods, a varied diet containing fruits and vegetables will usually be satisfactory in respect to these two factors. The Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture suggests the following foods as good sources of vitamin B:

Asparagus, beans, fresh and dried; brains, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, cowpeas, egg yolk, fish roe, grapefruit, kidney, lemons, lentils, whole-grain products, lettuce, liver, milk, nuts, okra, onions, oranges, parsley, parsnips, peas, potatoes, pineapples, rutabagas, spinach and other greens, tomatoes. With so long a list from which to choose, the diet may be pleasingly varied and yet always meet the requirements for an abundance of vitamin B.

APPETITE STIRRED WITH CONDIMENTS

PICKLE WITH MAIN DISH

One reason for frequent wistful references to "the meals that mother used to make" is partial loss of the ravenous youthful appetite that made her meals taste so good, and grandmother's even better.

Another reason is the clever manner in which cooks of other generations made meals tastier by serving the right kind of pickles and other appetite-provokers with the main dishes.

Women everywhere are rediscovering this bit of culinary lore, and are using condiments and other relishes to add the modern note of attractiveness to good, old-fashioned zestful enjoyment of food.

The following suggestions indicate the kind of relish accompaniments that go best with different kinds of meats, fish and poultry.

Beef.

Veal.

Lamb.

Pork.

Fish.

Poultry.

Dish Called "Trifle" But Is Truly Great

Plain cake.
Grape juice.
1 quart milk.
4 eggs.
5 tablespoons sugar.
2 tablespoons flour.
¼ teaspoon salt.
2 cups cream, whipped.
1½ teaspoons vanilla.
4 tablespoons sugar.

Place cake in serving dish, using about twelve slices or the equivalent, broken in pieces. Pour grape juice over it until the cake will absorb no more (it will take about 1 pint, depending upon how moist or dry the cake is). Let stand ten minutes. In the meantime, make custard as follows: Scald milk; beat eggs slightly, and add sugar, flour, and salt mixed together. Pour scalded milk over egg mixture and return to double boiler, continuing to cook until custard thickens slightly. Stir constantly. Cool slightly and pour over the cake in serving dish. When custard has cooled, cover with whipped cream to which vanilla and sugar have been added. Chill thoroughly.

Delicious Corn Bread Is Yielded by Recipe

2 cups cornmeal.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
2 teaspoons salt.
2 cups sour milk.
2 eggs.
2 tablespoons melted fat.

Sift the dry ingredients and add the milk. Add the well-beaten eggs and the fat. Pour into a very hot, well-buttered pan. Bake from 40 to 50 minutes in a hot oven (400 to 425 degrees F.).

The Advantages of Self-Rising
Washington
FLOUR

If you have lived in the Sunny South and acquired the delightful habit for hot biscuits, and, by the way, no less eminent authority than Dr. William Gerry Morgan, head of the American Medical Society, says that when properly made, bread in no other form is more healthful, you will appreciate the facility which Self-rising Washington Flour brings you.

In the first place, it is made of that special growth of wheat which is best adapted to kitchen facilities; and to which has been added the exactly correct proportion of the purest leavening phosphates, eliminating the expense and labor of using baking powder. AN OPEN LETTER TO CONGRESS

REGARDING MUSCLE SHOALS AND FERTILIZER

A report has been circulated that the conference agreement on Muscle Shoals is satisfactory to the fertilizer industry. THIS IS MANIFESTLY UNTRUE BECAUSE SUCH A LAW, IF ENACTED, WOULD SINGLE OUT THE FERTILIZER INDUSTRY AND FORCE INCREASED PRODUCTION UPON IT BY ACT OF CONGRESS. We are already suffering from over-production.

WHY TRY TO FORCE FERTILIZER PRODUCTION BY ACT OF CONGRESS?

In 1929 fertilizer consumption was 7,934,000 tons. In 1931 it is unlikely to exceed 7,000,000 tons because of the reduced purchasing power of the farmer.

Without building a single additional plant, the existing fertilizer industry has capacity adequate to supply American agriculture with 12,000,000 to 14,000,000 tons.

In 1919 when the Muscle Shoals plants were built, the average wholesale price of six analyses most widely used was $59.00. In 1930 the average price of the six analyses most widely used was $25.96. The 1930 analyses contained more plant food despite the lessened price. Prices for 1931 are even lower than for 1930.

Whatever reasons there may have been for building Government plants in 1919, clearly they do not exist in 1931.

Chart 1 shows that, based on pre-war prices, the index number of complete fertilizer was 105, while the index number for all farm products was 106. From 1921 to 1930, farm prices averaged about 33 points above pre-war levels. Only twice during the same time were fertilizer prices as much as 15 points above pre-war.

Private enterprise is operating at Hopewell, Va., one of the great air nitrogen plants of the world. Another huge plant is in operation at Belle, W. Va. In all, seven such plants are actually in operation in the United States. The capacity of these plants could in a short time be increased from 10 to 20 per cent, and an eighth plant is under construction in California.

The shaded portion of each column in Chart 2 shows the magnificent progress of private production in this field—from 276 tons in 1919 to 140,000 tons in 1930.

That is not all. Sulphate of ammonia, a by-product of the coking process, is the most important source of fertilizer nitrogen. Even in a year of industrial depression like 1930, we made about 800,000 tons of ammonium sulphate, equal to 165,000 tons of pure nitrogen.

But that is not all. Despite the threat of government competition that has hung over the nitrogen industry for more than a decade, by 1926 private enterprise had built plants with a capacity of 30,000 tons of nitrogen. In 1930 this capacity had been increased to 175,000 tons, and before the end of 1931 it will approximate 300,000 tons. This progress is graphically shown in Chart 3.

With by-product capacity exceeding 200,000 tons of nitrogen and synthetic capacity approximating 300,000 tons, we shall, if the industry can be spared the uncertainties of threatened legislation, attain nitrogen independence in respect to both peace and war needs by 1932.

Nitrogen prices are the lowest they have been in the history of the world. In 1919 in the United States a unit (20 pounds) of nitrogen cost $4.86 in sulphate form. In 1931 it is $1.70. In the form of synthetic anhydrous ammonia the unit price is even lower.

Not valuable for national defense has been the repeated testimony of army ordnance experts before the Committee on Military Affairs of the House of Representatives.

Not necessary or even useful for agriculture, according to the highest authority on nitrogen fixation in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who is also one of the really great authorities in the whole world.

The conference report has been characterized on all sides as a compromise. Its meaning is obscure and apparently it contains language capable of most contradictory interpretations. The House conferees believe that it will insure that most, if not all, the power generated will be used in nitrate and fertilizer manufacture. The Senate conferees look upon the project as a power proposition and want the Government to operate the power plants to full capacity. Both claim that the conference report achieves their objectives.

The existence of the nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals is a grave threat to American industry. These plants should not be turned over under preferential conditions to a particular enterpriser who may have a peculiar advantage over all his competitors, when no major public purpose is served thereby. They should be liquidated as were the Shipping Board's ships and hundreds of millions of dollars worth of other war surplus.

CORNS AND TROUBLE.

THERE is only one spirit for an article on corns. That is factual. There is no poetry nor philosophy in the subject, nor does it lead to spiritual-mindedness. Corns are just corns. They result from prolonged, continued, uneven rubbing, and they go out the same door from which they came in.

They can be removed by cutting, polishing or chemical treatment. The chemical used is a salicylic acid ointment, from 15 to 25 per cent. The various corn medicines are variously colored, flavored, and perfumed, they have different bases, but the variation is due to the embroidery. The Johnny that does the work is salicylic acid and they all contain it.

The brands that you buy ready made and ready wrapped are just as good as those made to order. These corn remedies are applied once a day until all of the thickened skin is in condition to be cut away or ground away. If the corn is between the toes and is, therefore, of the soft variety, it is advisable to cover it with plenty of clean absorbent cotton during the days of treatment.

To prevent corns from returning, the corn area must be protected against uneven rubbing. This can be done sometimes by wearing felt pads and corn rings. They must be of proper shape and so applied that they prevent rubbing. If the corns are on the sole of the foot, cushion sole shoes and corn insoles accomplish the purpose. But all appliances of this kind only serve temporarily.

In time they must give way to other methods. Either the rubbing must be stopped entirely or it must be changed to make it uniform. For instance, a man who acquires corns on his hands from holding his pen in a certain way can hold it another way, or a shoemaker can change his job. As a rule, the sufferer should try to convert an uneven rubbing into one that is even. If a certain shape of shoe rubs unduly at one place it can be changed. It is even possible to overcome corns and collouses (but not warts) on the soles by adjusting the shoes.

IT'S A PLAIN BUNION.

M. S. H. writes: About ten years ago I wore ill-fitting shoes that were too short. It wasn't long until the joint at the base of the big toe on the right foot became inflamed and enlarged, and the toe itself now points to the middle of the foot. The left foot is almost normal. This enlarged joint is still very painful and inflamed despite the fact that I have worn sensible shoes for many years. Is there any way to treat this joint to rid it of the soreness? I am under the impression that a bunion has formed on my foot. Can a bunion be removed or pain relieved by other means than surgery? My foot, with the shoe on, is not unsightly, but the pain is intense.

REPLY.

Plainly, you have a bunion. Protecting the enlarged joint by means of bunion plasters may relieve the pain and tenderness. Wearing a toe straightener will lessen the size of the knob. In some instances paper or cotton between the toes will act as a toe straightener. Wearing shoes that are broad in front helps some cases.

Many cases require some kind of an operation.

CARNERA'S REQUEST FOR FIGHT DELAY REFUSED

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Those new specifications for the two major league baseballs have stimulated discussion, but inasmuch as the game is not a public treasure, as some people think, but the private property of the magnates, I guess the boys are within their rights. Home runs made money for them, but in time they began to cost money in general increase in wages to the players.

I never was aware of any popular resentment against the pop-fly homer. True, it was a cheap home run, but the homer in baseball, like the dollar in American finance, remained the standard. When the dollar was cheap, the people still held it in the same respect.

I remember now that eight or nine years ago the National League made a quiet admission that their ball had been altered. At one of those annual midwinter dinners here, the souvenirs to the guests were gilt bon-bon caskets, each containing two National League balls, and it was explained that these were the surplus stock of the old model with the raised stitches and the heavy skin. No magnate took the trouble to explain that this change to the countersunk stitch and the delicate hide had been ordered to stimulate the hitting.

The magnates make the rules, and if they should ever decide to adopt an exaggerated golf ball as their official standard that would be their privilege. It would be the customers' privilege to stay away if they didn't like it, but the customers sometimes forget their rights. I suspect some outrage in this new order, but I am afraid everything is fair and legal.

CUSTOMERS FORGET RIGHTS

Least of all am I stirred by the harsh treatment of Lou Gehrig, the Yankees' first basement, by his employer, Col. Ruppert. Gehrig wanted a certain sum, and the capitalistic management planted its iron heel on his sturdy neck and made him sign for $25,000. Considering that if the management had wished to be firm about it, he could have been reduced to $3,500 a year or less and made to like it or leave it, Gehrig did pretty well. It will be too bad for the ball players if the magnates ever get to whispering among themselves about a general reduction in wages. Here is one line of work in which there is no rival shop across the street to which a workman may apply for a job. Wages are much higher than they really need to be under the conditions. Some players have the bad luck to belong to stingy employers. One of the meanest of them had a row with a player a couple of years ago and the boss said he would have to take what he was offered or get out of baseball.

I could easily get sore about this matter, but I got very sore about it a couple of years ago, and it didn't do a bit of good.

New York Ring Body Suspends Jack Fields

New York, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Jackie Fields, former welterweight champion, was suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission today pending an investigation, and permission was refused the West Coast star to box Lew Harvey, of England, in Madison Square Garden March 13.

The commission refused to give any reason for the investigation and there was no indication it was any but a routine scoring of Fields' managerial connections.

Lacoste Out of Danger; French Net Hopes Fade

Paris, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Rene Lacoste, French tennis star, who underwent an operation Wednesday for appendicitis, was reported out of danger today, but destined for a long and slow convalecence.

Lacoste's stamina has been undermined by a long illness, due to pulmonary trouble, that forced him to give up competitive tennis in May, 1929. He will go to Biarritz to recuperate as soon as he can be moved.

Record Shot-Put Toss Credited Hugh Rhea

Lincoln, Nebr., Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Big Hugh Rhea, ace of Big Six Conference shot putters, last night heaved the ball, unofficially, to a new world's indoor record, Track Coach Schulte, of Nebraska, announced today.

The husky Nebraskan, who won the event in the K. C. games last Saturday, tossed the shot 50 feet 8 inches, 6 inches better than the throw of Herbert Schwartze, of Wisconsin, which has stood for several years, Schulte said. Rhea's throw was made before a luncheon club audience.

Freak Play Gives Florida Golf Crown to Miss Hicks

By ALAN GOULD.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20 (A.P.). After it seemed she had tossed away her chances with a badly topped brassie shot, Helen Hicks, of Hewlett, Long Island, stood idly by on the nineteenth hole today and watched victory in the Florida women's golf championship come suddenly her way as her opponent, Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, knocked Helen's ball into the cup in a futile attempt to negotiate a dead stymie.

This freakish finish was the climax to a sensationally close and keenly fought final round contest over the links of the Palm Beach Country Club, furnishing an unlooked for thrill to a fashionable gallery of nearly 2,000 spectators. It brought triumph to the sturdy New York girl by the slender margin of 1 up, marking Miss Hicks' first victory in the tournament, at the same time costing Miss Van Wie the chance for a third win and permanent possession of the championship cup.

All square at the ninth after an erratic start, still all even at the eighteenth, as they halved sixteen of the eighteen holes and covered the regulation round in 78 strokes each, there was nothing to choose between them as they set off on the first extra hole. Miss Van Wie's putter had saved her from a deficit on the first nine. Miss Hicks' chips were her salvation on the inward journey, where on three occasions she ran her ball dead to the pin from well off the green.

The Long Island girl had a great chance to settle the match when she fired a fine pitch to 10 feet of the cup on the eighteenth hole, only to have Virginia run her ball dead to the pin from off the edge of the green and prolong the match as Helen missed the bid for a birdie.

Both had good drives from the nineteenth tee. Virginia hit a spoon to the edge of the green. Helen took her brassie, but topped the shot, and the ball rolled barely 75 yards. Her pitch was on the green, but 35 feet short of the cup, and Helen also hit her approach putt timidly. Miss Van Wie then putted a foot and a half past the cup, but still seemed sure of at least a half. Miss Hicks' putt rolled around the very lips of the cup, failed to drop, but laid her rival a dead stymie. Virginia had the alternative of playing safe for a half in sixes or of making the dangerous try for a win. She took the chance, but her putt knocked in Helen's ball for an automatic five and caromed off.

GALLAUDET'S TOSSERS SCORE

Md. State Normal Is Beaten, 47 to 28, as Ringle Stars.

COACH MARTY KRUG kept his Gallaudet regulars on the bench for the first nine minutes last night, and during that time only Maryland State Normal's quintet had a chance to do anything on the Kendall Green floor. With the first-stringers on deck, Gallaudet wiped out the Teachers' early lead and went on to win easily, 47 to 28.

As usual, Johnny Ringle and Del Cosgrove were the shining lights for the Blues. Ringle, who never failed to get the tap at center, due to his advantage over Trupp in height, collected nine field goals and three 1-pointers for his share of the home scoring.

Cosgrove Also Runs Wild.

Jansen, State Normal's crack guard, led an early attack against the Gallaudet reserves that gained a lead of 9 to 3 before the Blue regulars entered the proceedings. Jansen led his team in scoring, with four fielders.

G. U. Prep Dribblers Victims of Eastern

Georgetown Prep fell before the concentrated last half drive of the joint holders of the public high school title, Eastern High, yesterday by the score 31-22, after knotting the count 17-17 in the middle of the third quarter by a spectacular rally, which was led by Capt. Bull Heekin.

Excepting this brief setback in the third period, Eastern held the advantage throughout the game. Bernie Lieb, after threatening all season to blossom out as a shooting star, came out in full force to take high scoring honors with 13 points to his credit. Bill Noonan, giant center, was little behind with four clean field goals.

Eastern's greater experience told, its passing and the ability of Noonan to secure the tapoff were also vital factors in the success of the Lincoln Parkers.

Pitcher Wes Ferrell Accepts Tribe's Terms

Cleveland, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—After holding out for the last six weeks, Wesley Ferrell, ace of Cleveland Indian pitchers, telegraphed General Manager Billy Evans tonight that he would accept the terms of the originally proffered contract. Ferrell's capitulation was a surprise to Evans, to whom he wrote only a week ago demanding a higher salary.

The star pitcher of the Indians, who is now at his home near Greensboro, N. C., said he would report to Manager Roger Peckinpaugh at New Orleans Monday. In 1929, his first big league year, Ferrell won 21 games. He clinched his right to be known as the most sensational pitcher of the last decade when he won 25 games last year.

With Ferrell signed, the roster of Indian hurlers will be filled, and the only hold-outs now are Outfielder Earl Averill and Second Baseman Johnny Hodapp. First Baseman Eddie Morgan has announced his retirement, but Evans believes he will sign.

BILL TILDEN WINS AGAIN.

Boston, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—William T. Tilden defeated Karel Kozeluh, of Czechoslovakia, 6—4, 2—6, 6—2, 7—5, in an exhibition professional tennis match before 8,000 spectators at the Boston Garden tonight.

C. U. Shifts Back Date Of Track Meet to Mar. 7

In order to enable Ray Conger, national mile champion, to appear, Catholic University yesterday changed the date of its indoor track and field carnival from March 14 to March 7. The latter is the original date set for the affair.

The latest change was made after it was learned that Conger was bound by his word to compete in the New York K. of C. meet on the 14th. This meet attracted Conger's entry last fall and then was canceled in January. A few days ago the K. of C. decided to hold its meet and Conger announced he would hold to his earlier promise, although he had, in the belief the meet was definitely off, agreed to run here on the 14th.

Old Line Five Plays Navy Today

Georgetown Host to Brooklyn K. C. Tonight.

MARYLAND University's clever basketers will today seek to ring up the most impressive victory that their 1931 schedule permits when they clash with Navy's dribblers at Annapolis, starting at 2:30 p. m. Though they have tucked away several choice triumphs already, the Terrapins are especially desirous of sinking the Middies.

In last Tuesday's win over St. John's, of Annapolis, Maryland indicated it was in top form. The game marks the close of Navy's season and is one which the Tars also are anxious to capture. All week the future admirals have been drilling intensively in preparation. Latest advices are that they anticipate their hardest test of the winter.

G. U. Ends Home Season Tonight.

As this game is scheduled in the afternoon, local fans who journey to Annapolis will have time to return here to witness the Georgetown-Brooklyn K. of C. contest to be held tonight in the Langley High School gymnasium, beginning at 8:15. It is the final home appearance of Georgetown, which winds up its season next week against Loyola at Baltimore.

Owing to the loss of four players through disciplinary action earlier in the week, Georgetown will be unable to present its strongest front tonight, and this may prove considerable of a handicap if it is necessary to draw upon reserve strength. Coach Colrick's squad now is practically bereft of capable reserves. The Brooklyn quintet is one of the strongest amateur club teams in the East and already holds a decision over the Hilltoppers.

Hibbs Bank Tossers Play New York Champs

The W. B. Hibbs quintet, pacesetters in the Washington Bankers League, will play the Chisholm & Chapman five, champions of the New York Bankers League, tonight at the Plymouth Institute Gym in Brooklyn.

The Hibbsmen have gone undefeated in five local Bankers League contests so far, and have dropped only two out of 20 games with outside teams. Manager Robert Phelps heads a squad of twelve players to New York City.

Francis Wins Easy Decision Over Shea

Madison Square Garden, New York, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Eddie Shea, the midwest's hope in the featherweight lists, came back to New York for the first time in six years and took one of the solidest and most surprising whippings of his long career from the busy fists of the bustling Italian, Kid Francis.

Shea stepped out from under the cloud of suspicion that had banned him here tacitly since his losing bid for Charley Phil Rosenberg's bantamweight crown years ago, and into the battle pit an overwhelming favorite to beat the sturdy European. Instead he ran into an aggressive, two-fisted youngster who buried him for ten rounds under a cloud of leather, chased him all over the ring, and easily took the unanimous verdict of the referee and the two judges. There were no knockdowns.

C. U. Sport Carnival Plans Are Completed

Final arrangements have been made for Catholic University's first athletic carnival scheduled to be held Monday night in the Brookland Gymnasium, with students furnishing the entertainment. The event is unique in character, having a decided note of comedy injected with the various offerings of the participants, ranging from blindfold boxing to three-legged running.

Athletic Director Arthur Bergmann yesterday announced that the public is invited. A fee of $1 will be charged, this applying to the students of the university as well as the public. The funds will be turned over to the athletic association.

The sea gull feeds among other things, on clams, but sometimes lose his life in securing this tasty meal. When a clam opens its shell, the bird pokes his beak in and proceeds with his meal, but sometimes the clam snaps the shell shut. The shell clinches the bird's bill and holds it captive until the tide comes in and drowns it. Wise sea gulls carry the shelled creature high into the air and break them open by dropping them on the rocks along the sea shore.

Hack Wilson Would "Smack Out a Few" Before Forming Opinion on New Baseball

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Hack Wilson, the "little giant" of the Cubs, who dethroned the mighty Babe Ruth as home-run king last year, came back to Chicago today bristling with ambition for another bumper season with his big war club, but as reticent with his predictions as a stage-struck rookie.

As the pudgy Cub outfielder alighted from the train he was peppered with a veritable barrage of questions by newspapermen, who teased him to make a prediction for 1931. He merely replied:

"Can't say how many home runs I'm going to make. All I can truthfully say is that I will be in there swinging as hard or harder than ever. Say, what time does that train leave for Catalina Island tomorrow?"

Wilson looked the picture of condition and health and admitted that while he was "5 or 6 pounds overweight," that he never felt better. To newspapermen he appeared more robut—all muscle—than he did just before the big hop-off for the Catalina Island training ground last spring.

"Played a lot of basket ball this winter with the firemen's team down in my home town of Martinsburg, West Va.," Hack said, "and did I get training playing that game? I'll say I did. Why, my legs feel stronger than ever, and I'll show the boys some fancy work in those soccer games Manager Hornsby is introducing on the island."

"I have examined the new ball closely," he said, "but I can't see much difference. In fact, I had to be told which was the new and which was the old. The heavier stitching may help a flock of pitchers and may be it won't. But I'll tell you all about it after I've smacked out a few of them. But I feel like this: If you hit a ball right, it's going places."

"And get this," he chuckled, "think of all the alibis we're going to have all summer if we don't click."

One matter did concern Hack, however, and that was a report that Hornsby planned to shift him from center to left field, placing Kiki Cuyler in the center garden.

"I have played center field almost all of my baseball life," Hack reflected, "and naturally would like to be left there. You know a player gets accustomed to a position and naturally plays it better. But what Hornsby orders is okeh with me. He's the boss and he's after the best combination possible. I'll be a good soldier. But maybe it's all talk or just an experiment."

Wilson went into a huddle with William L. Veeck, president of the Cubs, who recently signed Hack to a new and better contract, and then rejoined his old teammates, Cuyler, Riggs Stephenson and Cliff Heathcote. They, together with the rest of the infielders and outfielders, will make up the Cub second squad and head for Catalina Island tomorrow, just one week behind the advance squad of batterymen.

Hadley Lone Nat to Head From Here for Biloxi

Washington's first consignment of players to head for the Biloxi training camp from here yesterday proved to be but one, Pitcher Irving Hadley. John Peregory and Carl Fischer were expected to also travel under the chaperonage of Trainer Mike Martin and his aid, Frank Riley Baxter, but they were missing when the train pulled out of Union Station.

Word was received from Peregory that he is recovering from an operation and would be a week or more late in reporting, but nothing was heard from Fischer. It is presumed that he is making the trip direct from his home, as are two other rookie hurlers, Walter Tauscher and Lynn Griffith.

Hadley looked to be pretty close to playing weight and declared that he is as hard as nails as a result of plenty of work in a Boston gymnasium during the winter and lots of ice skating.

Smallwood Choice Over Barry In Rockville "He-Night" Feature

THE greatest crowd ever to be present at a Rockville "he-night" promises to be on hand tonight at 8:15 o'clock to witness the first bit of leather pushing on the big charity card at the Rockville Airport hangar. An unprecedented pre-bout sale of tickets has seen most of the boxes and bleacher seats taken. Volunteer firemen will be called in to handle the throngs.

Alexandria is traveling overland to Rockville 100 per cent strong to back up their city's great fistic boast, Baker Boy Billy Schwartz, who meets an experienced foe in Joe Glazier.

Great interest has also been shown in the other feature bout on the program tonight, that between Reds Barry, Mohawk Club ringman, and Joe Smallwood. A last-minute rush of informal betting in Washington last night placed Smallwood a slight favorite over his rugged opponent, but Southeast Washington is still strong for Barry.

Ample parking space will be provided for those motoring to the bouts tonight. Rockville street cars can also be used as a means of transportation, since they stop directly at the airport hangar.

Tickets are still on sale at the Fairway Sport Store for $5, $3 and $2.

Saks Clothiers Meet Eastern High Tonight

A badly crippled Saks Clothing quintet will take the floor against the Eastern High School cagers tonight at the Boys' Club, in the nightcap of one of the best twin bills presented on a Washington basket ball floor this season. Fischer, Letvin and Mansuy, Saks regulars, are all out of the city on business.

Preceding the Clothiers-Eastern clash, which will get under way at 8:30 o'clock, the Boys' Club team, victorious in every one of its 21 starts so far, will play host to the strong Richmond Y. M. C. A. outfit, of Richmond. This first game will start at 7:30 p. m.

A program of dancing will follow the second contest. An admission of 35 cents will be charged.

"Fighting Chance" Given Ban Johnson

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Some improvement was noted in the condition of Ban Johnson, former president of the American League, who is seriously ill in a hospital here.

Although Johnson was improved this morning, his physician, Dr. Robert F. Hyland, said his condition was unchanged this afternoon.

Dr. Hyland said the former baseball czar has a "fighting chance" to live, depending on his frame of mind and on the condition of his blood. A blood transfusion was resorted to yesterday.

Dorothy Campbell Hurd Finalist at Bermuda

Hamilton, Bermuda, Feb. 20 (A.P.). Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, former U. S. women's golf champion, advanced to the final round of the Belmont Manor ladies' golf tournament today. She defeated Mrs. G. H. Wingate, former Long Island champion, 6 and 4.

She will meet Mrs. Maud Ross, of Ottawa, in the finals tomorrow. Mrs. Ross won her set final match today from Mrs. I. M. Ingle, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., 1 up in 21 holes.

Primo Claims Fracture Of Rib

Urges Postponement of Maloney Bout at Miami.

Request Denied Despite Adverse Medical Report.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 20 (A.P.).—The Miami Boxing Commission tonight ordered Primo Carnera to fight Jimmy Maloney, of Boston, on the night of March 5, as scheduled after prolonged debate over an official medical report, with X-rays, showing the big Italian heavyweight to have a fractured rib. The decision was accepted under protest by Carnera's board of managers.

The commission reached its verdict and obtained the acceptance of all concerned after listening to conflicting testimony from four physicians. Leon See, Carnera's French manager, contended Carnera would not be in first-class condition to fight on March 5 and asked a postponement. He finally accepted the commission's edict, after some threat of disciplinary action was made.

Sunday Injury Develops Suddenly.

The injury to Carnera, said to have been incurred last Sunday in a sparring session, developed suddenly today. Prompt denial that any postponement was being sought because of apathy in the advance ticket sale was made by Promoter Frank J. Bruen, who sought the boxing commission's cooperation in forcing the Italian to go through with the match.

Dr. H. F. Davis, the commission's physician, concurred in the X-ray examination report, showing a fracture of the tenth rib on Carnera's right side and a possible inury to the ninth rib. But expressed the opinion Carnera could enter the ring on March 5. Carnera's personal doctor, Dr. George Blackburne, of Newark, N. J., said the fighter should have at least a three weeks rest.

Bill Duffy, speaking for the Carnera board of strategy, took the meeting afield with a demand that Dan Carroll, Maloney's manager, and Maloney post a $20,000 forfeit, binding a return match, in the event the Boston Irishman repeated his previous victory.

Carroll countered with a similar demand from Duffy. The upshot was an agreement with the commission that forfeits would be posted with Promoter Bruen for a return match "somewhere in June," contingent on the outcome of the fight here.

Hogan, Unsigned, Fails To Leave With Giants

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The first detachment of Giants is speeding toward training camp at San Antonio, Tex., without the smiling face of Francis "Shanty" Hogan. The big catcher was expected to leave from Pennsylvania Station in New York with several rookies, but he failed to show up with his bag and baggage and it is now said that he is a "hold-out."

Maybe yes and maybe no. Hogan is still at his home in Somerville, Mass., and according to a close friend of his, his salary for the coming season is still "under discussion."

Va. Swimmers Leave G. W. in Wake, 49-17

Winning six of the seven events, University of Virginia swimmers yesterday defeated the natators of George Washington by the score of 49 to 17 in the Ambassador Hotel Pool. George Washington was handicapped because it could not use several freshmen stars, Virginia being bound by Southern Conference rules not to compete against freshmen.

In the feature race, the 440-yard free style, Sayer, of Virginia, gained a winning margin of inches of Burnside, of G. W., and Tarplee, of Virginia. Strauss scored the Colonials' lone victory in the 100-yard breast stroke.

50-yard free style—Won by Lampton (V.); second, Penick (V.); third, Redmond (G. W.). Time, 0:26.

RING GAME CREAKING AT KNEES IN EASTERN CITIES

Garden Finds Fans Hard To Lure

Mat Shows Hurt in New York; Boston Business Poor.

Philadelphia Clubs Staging Comeback This Winter.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Beset by serious opposition and a number of minor ills, boxing in the East, once the paradise of the leather slingers, is packing burdens that have the ancient game creaking at the knees, staggering over the rough spots, with little sign of better days in the offing.

The ancient art of the maulers is a $5,000,000 annual industry in New York State where Madison Square Garden, the mecca of all youthful and ambitious gladiators, shines out as a legendary house of gold to be broken open by any colorful pair of young fists. But the Garden right now is the stamping ground of the wrestlers, the amateur fighters, professional tennis and hockey, and the fisticuffers exult over a 10,000 attendance for which the late Tex Rickard would scarcely have designed to open his doors.

Mat Shows Outdraw Boxing.

Strange as it may seem, the State Athletic Commission reports that wrestling, the big rage of the East at the moment, is now outdrawing boxing through New York State. Fistic receipts, the commission reports, are averaging about the same as they did in 1930 because the number of fight clubs has been increased. The promoters, rather than the State treasury, are the big sufferers.

Up through New England, where Boston was rated such a promising fistic center that Madison Square Garden helped build a subsidiary, the fight business has been bad. The Boston Garden has lost a great deal of money on boxing.

Wrestling booms in New England, and with Boston the capitol of the Paul Bower-Gus Sonnenberg-Ed Don George combination, right wing of the Pachyderm party, the situation has become so acute among the fisticuffers that radical relief measures are in prospect.

"I'm going to chop my prices to moving-picture figures, 40 cents to $2," Eddie Mack, arena promoter says. "Prima donnas need not apply. I don't want champions or tango dancers. I aim to give Boston penny-a-round boxing—40 rounds for 40 cents."

Carnera-Godfrey Bout Aided Philly.

Philadelphia came out of a slump with the Primo Carnera-George Godfrey match last June and since then has traveled along on an even keel.

As long as the amazing interest in wrestling continues, the East seems destined to ramble along in the boxing doldrums.

The iron duke of Muldoon, solid man of boxing, has some interesting ideas on the situation.

"Fundamentally there is nothing the matter with boxing," he says. "Boxing isn't sick. It is only tired. It will come around in time.

"If there is trouble in boxing, it is the boxer, and particularly the manager, who is to blame. They expect far more money than they are worth."

—Miami Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK offers the best race so far of the meeting for 2-year-olds today in the Nursery Stakes, $2,000 added, which features the program, and in which colts and geldings are eligible. A second division of this stake will be run later for fillies. Nineteen have been named for the 3-furlong dash.

Mrs. W. E. Martin's CRAIGCO, a gelding, is selected to win. On January 31 he equaled the track record in winning the Indian River purse, defeating JALPUR by a length in 0:22 3-5, 2 furlongs. He failed in his last race, won by Kayo, but has been working well and should come back to his best form today. FREDERICK has shown promise and should be the contender, and JALPUR, with two good seconds to his credit, should hold the others safe.

FIRST RACE—RUNNING GIRL is selected to win. She is due to improve over her race of Thursday. In her previous start she was third to All Columbia and, before that, was second to Mynheer. WATCH GIRL has been stepping lively at the Miami course and is rated the contender. RELIC is dangerous in this company. She should save third money. The heavy track will suit her.

SECOND RACE—FERVID, on a heavy track, looks best. UPSWEEP should be in close pursuit all the way. SAN PRESTO has a look-in and should get third. The distance seems too far for DONIE, which won the other day at 6 furlongs.

THIRD RACE—J. E. Widener's entry of STELLA NOVA and CHRISTMAS should account for the third race for 3-year-olds, with STELLA NOVA, which won his last race on Tuesday, having the preference. The contender should be SILVER BEAUTY, second to Half Day Thursday. This race makes her a dangerous contender against the Widener pair. TACK is expected to improve, and should take third over OCCURRENCE.

FIFTH RACE—WILLIAM T., which was second to Silverdale in his recent start at this track, and is in receipt of five pounds from SUN MISSION, is picked to beat the top weight. SUN MISSION carries 120 pounds, and is undertaking to give weight to a superior mudder and a good route horse, which was a stake-winner in Maryland. MORSEL, winner the other day over a smart field, and which is coupled with REPLEVIN, should get in the money. SANDY FORD, a sensational horse at times, is in the race, but has no recent good form.

SIXTH RACE—RUBY KELLER is the form horse in the sixth race. She can go on a heavy track. IRENE T. winner last out over Croyden on a heavy track, appears to be the most formidable of the contenders. BOUNDING DEEP may get third money, but will have to run to his best form to beat WESTERN PRINCESS.

SEVENTH RACE—FETISH should win right back, after whipping Candy Pig last week. This son of Stefan the Great is best on a heavy track. BORIS should be chief contender, and DAIL, now very fit, may hold the others safe.

CHOICE FAILS IN FEATURE AT MIAMI

Pennant Lass Last in 3-Horse Field as General A. Wins.

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Fla., Feb. 20 (A.P.).—The California Stable's 3-year-old colt, General A, which recently won his first start of the winter here, gave further evidence of his improvement by scoring a hard earned victory in the Coconut Grove Handicap over two other smart sprinters here today.

General A, finding the heavy going to his liking, beat Ellice a neck, with Pennant Lass, the favorite, another two lengths away. The latter labored in the going as if she did not like it and was always outrun.

General A Victor by a Neck In Drive.

Ellice broke very fast and rushed to the front, with Pennant Lass beating General A away. However, Hebert shot General A up very fast on the outside and it looked as if the son of General Thatcher might open up daylight, but Ellice had plenty of speed and the pair raced like a team from that point on, Pennant Lass trailing a couple of lengths back and unable to make up any ground.

At the end, General A held a neck advantage and although it was a long, hard drive, the winner held the race safe. General A paid $8.40.

A. A. U. BASKET BALL TOURNAMENT FACTS

SPONSOR—The Washington Post.
WHEN—Starts March 9.
WHERE—Tech High Gym.
OFFICIALS—Joe and Orrell Mitchell, Tommy Ford (boys and men), referees approved by rating committee (girls and women).
CLASSES—100, 115, 130, 145 pound and unlimited for boys and men; girls up to 18 years, unlimited (women).

Entries close at midnight February 27 at the Sports Department of The Post.

THE honor of being the first teams to enter The Post's fifth annual A. A. U. tournament, which will be staged at the Tech High School Gym beginning March 9, goes to the Wallace Memorial and First Baptist quintets, whose team entries in the unlimited class were received yesterday. Both teams are prominent in local Sunday school and church circles and are expected to give good accounts of themselves in the title tournament.

It was also learned yesterday that the Eagles' Girls Team, winner of the women's senior division crown in the 1930 tournament, will defend its title this year. This news will be welcomed by many other sextets in and around Washington, who are confident they can end the championship reign of the Eagles.

Eagle Sextet Practically Intact.

The Eagles, however, will have something to say about this, as they have their 1930 outfit practically intact.

Player registration and team entries will close one week from tonight. Managers of the more than 80 clubs, which have indicated their intention of entering the 1931 tournament, are asked to submit their player registrations and team entries as soon as possible to avoid the last minute rush which nearly always accompanies an affair of this kind. These blanks should be submitted properly filled out to the sports department of The Post.

They may either be mailed or brought in person, as representatives of the A. A. U. will be in the sports department from 2 p. m. to 12 a. m. daily to receive these blanks.

Team entries must be accompanied by a $2.50 fee for clubs in the 100, 115 and 130 pound men's divisions, or $3.50 for outfits in both women's classes and the 15 pound and unlimited men's divisions. A. A. U. registration costs 25 cents per man for all players above and including 16 years of age.

Tonight will be "Knights of Columbus Night" in the National Duckpin Bowling Congress' United States championships now in progress on the Convention Hall drives. Every quintet in the sixteen teams of the local knights will roll, together with a dozen or so other outfits from the other sections of the country.

A feature of the Casey night will be the Knights of Columbus Sweepstakes, open only to members of the order. Charlie O'Connell, president of the Washington K of C. League, expects close to 125 entrants in the event. Three games will be rolled with total pins to count. More than $150 in prizes will be distributed to the winners.

An important meeting of the Washington Suburban Duckpin Association will be held tonight in room 204, Evening Star Building, starting at 8 o'clock. President Howard Bailey asks every team to have a representative at the session. Plans for the annual Suburban Sweepstakes will be discussed.

Two stellar intercity doubles attractions divide the local duckpin spotlight tonight with the United States Championships.

Heller Plating, Domdera, A. Kahn, Desio, Galt, No. 1, and Bluesteins captured the odd tilt from Goldsmith, Castleberg, Lyman, Oppenheimer & Shah, Shaw & Brown, and R. Harris, respectively.

Landsdale, anchor man, showed the way to his mates in this record set, with a 143 game, while Ryan, spilled 124 pins, Greenwald, 112; Walsh, 137, and Groves, 119. Standards No. 2 whitewashed Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Standards No. 1 bowed twice to Mines No. 2, and Patents No. 2 walloped Mines No. 1 in two games in the other league matches.

Fuller Stone Plant No. 1 and Standard Art Marbles kept pace with each other in the Building Contractors League last night on the Arcadia drives, the former scoring three times over Fuller Stone Plant No. 1, and the latter doing the same to P. T. McDermott.

Meter Shop, Ladies No. 1, and Fitting, captured all three from Georgetown No. 2, Ladies No. 2, and Georgetown No. 1, respectively, in the Georgetown Gas Light League last night at Convention Hall, while Meter Inspectors took two from Fuel Stations, and Commercials did the same to New Business.

The pace-setting King Pins disposed of the Packwood Printers twice last night in their National Capital League match, staged at Lucky Strike. The scores were 563, 560 and 576 for the pace-setters, and 532, 590 and 541 for the Printers.

Boys' Club Wins, 29-27, In Extra Period Game

The Boys Club tossers were forced to call on everything they had to down the Pontiacs, 29 to 27, last night in one of the most thrilling contests ever played in the Boys Club gym. Mario Gregario sank in foul to tie the score at 25-all just before the final gun, and Cole's pretty two-pointer in the last minute of the extra period gave the Boys Club the verdict and their twenty-second consecutive triumph.

BOND MART STEADY WITH LOW VOLUME

ITALIANS PASS 1931 HIGH

A little activity in convertible issues, the natural sequence to the bullish trend of shares, and strength of several European bonds offered about the only relief from the dullest session since the first week in January. The day's transfers amounted to only $8,100,000.

Domestic investment issues appeared to be marking time and moved in a narrow irregular groove. A few high grade rails and utilities advanced fractionally to the best levels of the year, but there was a noticeable lack of enthusiasm on the part of buyers and many issues that have been moving forward closed at prices slightly lower. Interest in United States Governments was only nominal and turnover was the smallest of the week. Prices were lower, Liberty 3½s and Treasury 4s sagging ⅛ and Treasury 3⅜s dipping ⅜.

The inquiry for some of the standard foreign government bonds picked up. There was a large demand for Italian 7s and they reached a new year's peak. British 5½s sold at a new high at 107 and closed at 106¾ for a net advance of ½. All the Belgian governments and the German 5½s and 7s were firmer. Australian governments, after reaching new lows for the year, firmed to close higher.

The week's new financing was comparatively small, amounting to only $50,000,000, or a decrease of $5,000,000 from the previous week.

The market for tax exempts is expected to receive its severest test of the year in March when the City of New York sells $100,000,000 4½s. In the face of that large issue and the prospect of additional financing by the Treasury, in addition to huge refunding operations, investment bankers see little hope of much new financing for corporations in the near future.

NEW YORK COTTON.

It was stimulated, apparently, by relatively easy Liverpool cables as well as by the extent of recent advances and reports of a somewhat less active demand from the trade. A little more Southern selling was reported as well as realizing on the decline which sent the price of May contracts off to 11.20 or about 19 points net lower and 32 points below the high level of Thursday morning. May closed at 11.21 with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 18 to 22 points.

The opening was steady, 3 to 7 points lower in response to the easier showing of Liverpool. The initial offerings were quite readily absorbed by some further trade buying and a scattering demand which was probably promoted by continued favorable reports from the cotton goods market. Near months recovered all but a point or two of the opening decline while later deliveries sold back within 3 or 4 points of yesterday's closing quotations. The demand from the trade seemed to be less active than recently, however, while there was a little more Southern selling and a disposition to take profits on long cotton was probably increased by the approach of the holiday next Monday. There was also considerable March liquidation, probably in anticipation of notices on Tuesday. That delivery sold off to 10.92 while October declined to 11.72 in the late trading and closing prices were within a point or two of the lowest.

There was some narrowing of the differences between March and late months during the day with March closing 100 points under December compared with 102 points at the close of the previous day.

Liverpool cables attributed the decline there to hedge selling and general liquidation but said the British home trade in cotton cloths was improving with a fair turnover in yarns. Reports from Worth street said it was expected that sales of print cloths would reach a large total again this week. Exports today 9,293 making 4,867,194 so far this season. Port receipts 34,091. United States port stocks 4,025,010.

BULLS TAKING FIRM LEAD WITH STOCKS

3,800,000 Shares Move in Substantial Rallies Through Day.

U. S. STEEL TURNS HEAVY

Buying of the utility, chemical and, in the last hour, the motor issues had a good deal of selling in stocks that lacked strong sponsorship, but profit taking by traders leaving for an extended week-end holiday was a minor influence. The turnover, 3,800,000 shares, was the largest of the week with the exception of Tuesday, when the market sold off.

Aside from U. S. Steel, which turned heavy after touching the new high of 149, industrials did moderately well. Coppers, oils and rails lacked color, and so did most of the specialties, although Auburn soared 10. Allied Chemical's net gain of 9½, representing all but a point of its maximum rise, stood out. National Distillers advanced 4 net; Du Pont, 3; Davison Chemical, 2¾, and United Carbon and Mathieson, about 1½.

American Telephone Lifted.

A late spurt in American Telephone lifted it to 197¾, a new 1931 top, up 3¼, but International Telephone was the feature of the utility group, holding most of a 3-point rise. A 2-point jump in radio, together with a smaller advance in Columbia Graphophone, revived reports that Radio was seeking to acquire Columbia through the latter's British subsidiary, H. M. V. Graphophone. Although officials of both companies declined to discuss the prospects of such a transaction, Wall street heard that progress had been made in that direction.

The motor stocks easily rolled upward in the late trading. A 3-point gain in Nash exceeded the rallies in shares of other manufacturers, but Hupp, General Motors and Mack Trucks closed 1 to 1½ higher. Hudson's response to the dividend cut was a 2-point advance, much of which was retained.

Bonds were very dull. Liberties and Treasuries, with the contentious bonus bill on the President's desk, slumbered in the smallest trading since the market began discussing the probable effects of this legislation

July wheat nearly touched 71 cents and then lost its strength, closing nominally lower. Other futures finished about steady after holding to a narrow range. Increased country offerings and an easy cash market affected corn after it, too, had made a little progress and final quotations were off ¼ to 1 cent. Realizing made cotton reactionary and it lost 90 cents to $1.10 a bale net.

Cheerful Bit of News.

The most cheerful bit of news was the report that the volume of building contracts in the first half of February had turned upward, the daily average for that time being about $2,500,000 above the January figure. Maintenance of the present rate of increase through this month would mean a better than seasonal gain.

The mercantile reviews were more impressed by the improvement in the basic steel and automotive industries than by the showing in retail and wholesale trade, which is still quiet. Reports from wholesalers and retailers closely parallel each other, said Bradstreet's, adding that they seemed to indicate purchases were being made only for immediate demands. Dun's said the "response to the stronger fundamental conditions in business, although not generally evident, is gradually becoming more clearly discernible."

Exchanges of the Spanish-speaking nations displayed uniform strength, especially the peseta which again rallied sharply. Sterling cables eased 1-16 to $4.85⅝.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Grain prices fell back sharply today from upturns that revealed an all-around overbought condition. All markets ran against enlarged selling, whereas general demand dwindled. Unfavorable weather conditions in Argentina and the North American spring wheat belt failed to uphold values in the face of extra auspicious reports about the United States winter crop, together with evidence that heavy shipments of corn were on the way to Chicago from other big centers.

Wheat closed irregular at ¼ cent decline to ⅛ cent advance; corn, ½ to 1 cent down; oats, ¼ cent off to ⅛ cent up, and provisions showing 2 to 10 cents gain.

Much of the stimulus that temporarily forced wheat and other cereals upward came from Winnipeg reports of complete lack of snow throughout spring wheat territory and of dust blowing widespread. Continued European purchases of wheat future deliveries at Winnipeg were also reported, with rains hampering Argentine exports and with Argentine exchange rates higher. Besides, Buenos Aires wheat quotations showed 2½ cents a bushel jump, making the competitive position of North American wheat better.

Confidence of wheat buyers largely disappeared, however, after prices had risen to above 70 cents for new crop Chicago deliveries. Setbacks of almost 2 cents ensued, and the finish left the market with gains virtually canceled. A late bearish factor was a comprehensive summary showing that winter-killing of domestic wheat this season has been next to nothing. North American export clearances of wheat were disappointing, 5,325,000 bushels for the week.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Corn was booked to come here from other terminals at discounts exceeding any heretofore this season. It was contended that unloading of corn on Chicago implied absence of consumer demand.

Provisions reflected upturns of hog values.

Basis Held Made For Trade Upturn

New York, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Dun's review tomorrow will say: "Response to the stronger fundamental conditions in business, although not generally evident, is gradually becoming more clearly discernible. Each week's movements demonstrate the importance of the time element in the process of recovery from a major commercial setback, yet the sweeping readjustments already effected have formed a basis for progress along more wholesome lines. Close observers of the situation have not expected anything more than a slow and uneven upturn from exceptionally low levels, but the moderate gains occurring in various quarters thus far, while largely of a seasonal character, have brightened the outlook."

Weekly bank clearings $9,192,358,000, a decline of 13.6 per cent from a year ago. Outside of New York there was a decrease of 24.6 per cent.

Bradsteet's tomorrow will say: "In spite of encouraging reports in many basic lines, the wholesale and retail trades appear for the most part to be still marking time. Large distributors through varied special efforts and some price cutting are doing a fair volume of business, but an increasing number of complaints come from small retailers. Wholesale and retail reports closely parallel each other, seeming to show that little or no purchases are being made for stock, small orders for immediate demands still being the rule. Continued unseasonal mild weather has brought the buying of heavy goods almost to a standstill in many Northern points, while it has helped early sales of spring goods in some parts of the South."

4,846,024 Metric Tons Of Wheat Sold by Russia

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Feb. 20 (A.P.). Soviet Russia's exports of grain for 1930 amounted to 4,846,024 metric tons valued at 207,068,000 rubles (about $103,534,000), according to official figures obtained today by the Associated Press.

In quantity this is less than half of Russia's grain exports for 1913, the last year before the war, when 10,670,016 tons of grain were shipped abroad.

Small Trade Failures In January Show Rise

New York, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Commercial failures in the United States during January showed an increase over the corresponding month of 1930, due in a very marked degree to insolvencies among small trading concerns, R. G. Dun & Co. reports.

Defaults last month totaled 3,316, with liabilities of $94,608,212, compared with 2,759 defaults, with liabilities of $61,185,171, for January, 1930.

Curb Review

While the advance was rather selective, a fairly wide assortment of utilities, industrial specialties and oils moved briskly forward. Transactions aggregated 591,000 shares, or about 200,000 more than yesterday's.

Electric Bond & Share was once more in the lead, advancing 2½ points in active trading. American & Foreign Power warrants gained nearly 2 and American Superpower, Middle West and United Light A closed fractionally higher.

Domestic Oils appeared to be influenced by the prospect of a tariff or restriction on imports. Humble bounced up 4, and Pacific Western, which has come to life on the upside this week, gained more than 2. Vacuum and Gulf closed about a point higher.

Cord Corporation and Stutz gained a point in sympathy with motors on the big board. In the electrical group, Crocker Wheeler was again a feature, gaining more than 2. Driver Harris earnings statement was interpreted bullishly, and it also gained 2. Mead Johnson appeared largely to have discounted its earnings statement, published today, but it closed a little higher.

Ford, Ltd., on the other hand, was rather heavily sold, and closed a point lower. The prospect of heavier taxes in England appear to have caused some concern. It is understood that a new Swedish subsidiary is being formed to collect dividends in stocks of continental European subsidiaries. DeForest Radio, a recent low-priced bull feature, also fell back a point.

WORKERS OF ACACIA VOTE ILLNESS FUND

Insurance Firm Employes Establish Permanent Reserve System.

LOAN COMPANY ELECTS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Establishment of a permanent "good fellowship fund" was voted yesterday by an assembly of employes of Acacia Mutual Life Association, held at Temple of Service, home office of the association, at First street and Indiana avenue northwest. This fund, the outgrowth of a temporary one, to which Acacia employes contributed at Christmas time to remember fellow workers away because of illness, aroused so much interest that it was decided to make the work permanent.

The assembly yesterday was held for the purpose of submitting the proposal to Acacia workers. The result was unanimous acceptance of the plan and announcement by William Montgomery, president of Acacia, that for each dollar raised for the fund by employes the association would contribute a like amount. In making the announcement President Montgomery expressed hearty approval of and satisfaction with "the friendly cooperative spirit that exists among Acacia employes." He bespoke the complete success of the undertaking.

Besides President Montgomery the meeting was addressed by David Crouch, Ella L. Purks and Burt Langhenry. Miss Purks presided.

COMMUNITY GUILD LISTS WINNERS AT PRELIMINARY TEST

Woodlothians and Arts Club Take First Honors in Presenting Plays.

'Underdog' and 'House Cat' Judged to Be Best of Serious Offerings.

Winning plays in the preliminary contest of the one-act play tournament of the Community Drama Guild of Washington were announced last night at the conclusion of the final presentation at Wilson Teachers College.

The two plays, judged to be the best serious offerings, were "The Underdog," presented by the Woodlothians, and "The House Cat," the production of the Arts Club of Washington.

The two best comedies selected were "The Kelly Kid," presented by the Orange and Blue Players, and "Fourteen," given by the drama section of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase. This play was the last one presented.

Honorable mention was given "The Wonder Hat," a Ben Hecht-Kenneth Sawyer Goodman fantasy, acted by a cast of the Cosmos Club, and "Finders-Keepers," written by George Kelly, the presentation of the Mackin Club. The judges announced that these two plays could not be classified as either dramas or comedies, and because of this were eliminated as possible winners.

Final Contest Planned.

The four winning plays will be offered at a final contest on March 4 at McKinley High School, when the dramatic critics of the five Washington newspapers will select the best serious play and the best comedy. Individual awards will be given the actor contributing the best performance and to the one excelling in voice and diction.

In selecting the four best plays in the preliminary contest, the judges based their decisions on the following considerations: Acting, 40 per cent; choice of play, 20 per cent; directing, 20 per cent; voice, 10 per cent, and stage-craft, 10 per cent.

Sixteen plays were presented on four separate evenings. "Finders-Keepers" was given last night. Other presentations last night, besides "Fourteen" were "El Cristo," by the Towne Players, and "The Bishop's Candlesticks," by the Stellar Dramatic Players.

"The Under Dog," which was given first place, is from the pen of Robert Middlemass. It was directed by Robert A. Halsted. In the cast were Brad W. Holmes, Lucile H. Cohan, Herbert H. Street, Charlotte Steedman and Joseph F. Swain.

Written in Washington.

"The House Cat," written in Washington by Ednah Clarke Hayes, was under direction of Mrs. William J. Peters. The cast was made up of R. B. Lawrence, Anne Ives, Andrew Dent, Mary Ellen Wagner, William S. Hepner and Edna Ellis Hilton.

"The Kelly Kid" is the work of Kathleen Norris and Dan Totheroh. Directed by Esther Galbraith, it was acted by Bella Shapiro, Alberta Cissel, Ester Huntington, Margaret Ryan, Joe Weitz, Merwin Browne and Boyd Willard.

Alice Gerstenberg wrote "Fourteen," a depiction of the trials and tribulations of a society leader faced with a blizzard and other handicaps interfering with a dinner she has planned. The action takes place in an elaborate dining room before the guests arrive.

This play was directed by Mrs. R. L. Sanford and the cast was composed of Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby as the society leader, Virginia Wilson, as the daughter and Joseph T. Maquire as the butler.

"Finders Keepers" tells the story of a wife who returned home with a purse containing $500 she picked up in a store. The purse, it develops, had been lost by a neighbor. She insists on keeping the purse, but an honest husband gets the best of an interesting situation. Dorothy Crosby was the wife, Edwin C. Berryman, the husband and Grace Sprucebank, the neighbor who lost the money. Edwin C. Berryman directed.

Henderson Case Attorney Named

Charles W. Arth Chosen by Justice to Represent Augusta Arnold.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins in District Supreme Court yesterday named Charles W. Arth, Washington attorney, to represent Augusta Arnold, a minor and an heir to the Henderson millions, which are involved in an injunction and accounting suit filed recently against Mrs. Mary F. Henderson by her adopted daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Henderson Wholean.

Augusta Arnold and her sister, Frances Arnold, were named codefendants in the suit against Mrs. Henderson, in which the petitioner seeks to restrain the elderly widow of John B. Henderson, former senator from Missouri, from giving a residence to the Government as a home for the Vice President.

Action of the court followed a report to the court that Augusta Arnold had been served with a copy of the suit.

Films of Voyage Shown To Geographic Society

A visual record of the technique and atmosphere of a square-rigged ship on a voyage around Cape Horn was shown last night to members of the National Geographic Society at the Washington Auditorium, by A. J. Villiers, who took a movie camera with him on such a voyage. Villiers was at sea nearly five months, keeping a record of his experiences. His companion, Ronald Walker, was killed shortly after the start of the trip.

The movie, while short, will be valuable after the last of the sailing ships shall be taken out of service. There are only twenty full rigged ships now at sea. Villiers, a former newspaperman of Australia, has taken a series of short sequences of various maneuvers incidental to handling one of the old craft.

Hoover Will Sit in Pew Washington Occupied

President Hoover tomorrow will attend services in Christ Church, in Alexandria, Va., and will sit in the same pew that George Washington occupied when he was living at Mount Vernon.

The President will make the journey to the historic church by automobile, accompanied by Secret Service men.

Other than his visit to Christ Chuch, President Hoover has no other plans for observing George Washington's birthday anniversary.

WITNESSES DISPUTE TALE OF FATAL SHOT

Girls Tell Coroner's Jury Maxwell, Dry Agent, Was Flourishing Pistol.

WARNED BY HIS VICTIM

Evidence to controvert the story of Leroy Maxwell, colored Federal prohibition agent, that his gun accidentally killed Henry Baker, colored, during a drinking party early Wednesday morning, was offered before a coroner's inquest yesterday.

Detectives James E. Kenney and M. J. Mahaney, of the Eighth Precinct, obtained statements from two colored women, who attended the party, who heard Baker, on his way downstairs, warn Maxwell to stop flourishing his pistol. These were repeated to the jury.

Immediately afterward, the two witnesses said, they saw Maxwell, who was standing near a stairway banister on the second floor of the house on W street near First street northwest, point the gun toward Baker on the lower stairs.

Heard Two Clicks.

Loretta Young, 19 years old, colored, told the coroner's jury that she heard the hammer of the pistol click twice, but heard only one cartridge discharged as Baker slumped to the floor with a bullet in his heart.

"Maxwell, Jackson (Eugene Jackson, another Federal agent) and I were standing in the hall upstairs," the witness said, "when Maxwell took a gun from his pocket and played with it in his hands. Baker was going down the steps. He said to Maxwell, 'Man, please put that gun away; you want to scare these women to death?' I heard the gun snap twice."

Detectives Mahaney and Kenney examined Maxwell's gun and found one shell had failed to explode and the next shell in the chamber had fired. This, they said, tends to bear out the woman's story.

Police Make Experiment.

When placed under arrest, Maxwell said that his gun had slipped from the holster and wedged between two spindles of the banister. While trying to remove it, he told them, the hammer struck the wood and discharged a bullet, hitting Baker.

Witnesses said that Baker had been buying whisky for the two Federal prohibition agents.

School Land Purchase Approved.

Purchase of four tracts of land adjacent to the Giddings colored school, Fourth and G streets southeast, was approved yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Colonial Ball Is Held, Bicentennial Body Cooperating.

D. A. R. Has Observance for Youths at Peck Chapel.

Natives of Virginia, State of his birth, led the Capital in observing the 199th anniversary of George Washington's birth with exercises last night at the Willard Hotel. Other services last night were held by the State committee of the Sons and Daughters of the Republic Clubs of the D. A. R. at Peck Memorial Chapel.

Other exercises will be conducted today, tomorrow and Monday.

The Society of Virginia, in conjunction with the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, presented a pageant at the Willard as its program of observance. The pageant, part of the annual Colonial ball, introduced Virginia's eight Presidents.

Personifies Virginia.

Virginia was personified by Mrs. Maud Howell Smith, who called the roll of Presidents, beginning with Washington and ending with Woodrow Wilson. As each name was called the "President" appeared, accompanied by young women, representing the States added to the Union in his administration.

John Prove, president of the Nathan Hale Club, and Richard Logan, of Mount Vernon, were masters of ceremonies, at exercises of the Sons and Daughters of the Republic, D. A. R., at Peck Memorial Chapel.

Guest speakers were Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, U. S. A., retired; Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman, presidential commissioner of the Washington Bicentennial Commission; Miss Helen Harman, State regent of the District of Columbia D. A. R.; Mrs. David Caldwell, vice president general D. A. R., and Mrs. H. L. Rust, president of the Wakefield National Memorial Association.

Boy Scout Pilgrimage.

The annual Boy Scout pilgrimage to Mount Vernon is the first event on the program of observance for today. The scout troops will gather at the zero milestone, on the Ellipse south of the White House Grounds at 9:15 o'clock this morning. The last bus will leave at 9:45. Senator Bulkley, of Ohio, will make a short address at Mount Vernon.

The annual colonial costume party of the Missouri State Society will be held at the Washington Hotel tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

State Council, Daughters of America, will observe the anniversary tonight at 8 o'clock with a Martha Washington drill and dance at Almas Temple.

A tribute to Washington and the friendship between France and the United States, cemented by Washington and Lafayette, will be paid by Paul Claudel, French Ambassador to the United States, in his first radio speech, tomorrow night at 9 o'clock. The envoy will speak over a Columbia national network.

C. Bascom Slemp to Speak.

C. Bascom Slemp, commissioner general to the Paris International Exposition, will also speak, and describe the American exhibit in Paris.

France, it was announced yesterday, will pay a signal tribute to George Washington when high officials visit the Mount Vernon replica, now nearing completion on the exposition grounds in Paris. Floral tokens will be placed by President Doumergue, Premier Laval and Marshal Hubert Lyautey, high commissioner of the exposition. Ambassador Walter E. Edge will respond for the United States.

Washington Address To Be Given by Beck

Conforming to its usual custom of selecting a prominent member of its group to deliver a George Washington birthday address, the House of Representatives has chosen for the honor Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania.

He will deliver the special address Monday morning at 11 o'clock, the hour having been moved ahead from the customary noon opening.

WHITE HOUSE GETS DISTRICT MEASURE

Annual Appropriation Act Is Passed; School Fares Bill Agreed On.

CURB ON SIGNS AMENDED

The annual District appropriation bill, carrying more than $45,000,000, was given final approval by Congress yesterday and sent to the President for signature. Action on the District appropriation bill was one of several steps by Congress yesterday furthering District legislation.

Conferees on the outdoor advertising bill agreed to the Senate amendment which would give District officials authority to regulate signs within 500 feet of public highways.

The bill providing for reduced car fares for school pupils also was favorably reported to the Senate as having been agreed to by the House conferees.

Despite opposition by those who said that the bill smacked of blue laws, the House District committee voted to report favorably the Copeland bill requiring barber shops to close on Sundays in the District.

Conferees on the pending District traffic law were named. Agreement on the measure is expected to be reached promptly and the bill sent to the President for signature.

Gun Fired at Taxi Man; Another Robbed of $10

One taxi driver was fired upon when he tried to drive away from a robber and another was robbed of $10 early yesterday.

Carl Whittington, 1400 L street northwest, was at Sixteenth and Church streets when his fare produced a gun and demanded his money. Whittington told the robber he had none and started the cab. An open door knocked the criminal to the ground, where he fired at the fleeing cab. The bullet struck the rear window. Merle Webster, of Ballston, Va., was held up at Massachusetts and Wisconsin avenue and robbed of $10.

Features in Tomorrow's Post

Tomorrow is the anniversary of George Washington's birth. And no more fitting time to relate the exact cause of the first President's death could be chosen. A prominent Washington physician has assembled data regarding the sudden death of Washington at 67, his findings setting at rest many old stories of how the Father of His Country died. This interesting and timely tale will be found in the tabloid magazine.

The third of Senator Hansbrough's series of reminiscences also will be found in the magazine. This particular part of the senator's story has some illuminating sidelights on Mark Hanna.

Have you a pet? If you have or if you ever had you'll enjoy a story called "Pets, They Beguile, But Never Bore You." This magazine feature will amuse and enlighten old and young.

The last chapter of Gen. Leonard Wood's life story will appear in tomorrow's Post magazine. The last victory and the last defeat for the famous soldier are herein recorded.

Then, too, there will be the regular features which have made The Post magazine so popular; together with all the local and world news; sports of all sorts; beautiful pictures in the rotogravure section and eight pages of comics.

COMMISSION BUYS MORE PROPERTY IN MUNICIPAL CENTER

$178,500 EXPENDITURE IS INVOLVED IN DEALS

Hotel Vendome Acquired to Open B Street; 70 Per Cent Now Is in Hand.

Offers to sell two important pieces of property within the Municipal Center area were accepted yesterday by the District Commissioners at prices totaling $178,500. The acquisition of one of the tracts, the Hotel Vendome, at Third street and Pennsylvania avenue, will give the District all the property standing in the way of opening B street from Third street to Pennsylvania avenue as contemplated.

The other tract, which is located at 318 C street, is to be bought for $18,500. It was one of the pieces of property which had been proposed to be placed in condemnation.

70 Per Cent Purchased.

With more than 70 per cent of the property within the proposed Municipal Center area now in the hands of the District government, Maj. H. L. Robb, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, said yesterday that most of the remainder would probably have to be acquired by condemnation, some of the proceedings already being under way. There will be a few more purchases, however, he said.

Maj. Robb, who has been named chairman of the personnel subcommittee by Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, is busy now mapping his organization. He plans to add structural and mechanical chief engineers to the staff of Municipal Architect A. L. Harris as soon as the District appropriation for the fiscal year 1932 is made available. Other assistants, among them a chief of specifications, an extra clerical force, and aids to the two chief engineers, will be added as needed.

Architects Are Sufficient.

The staff of architects which was employed last fall to draw plans for the Municipal Center will be sufficient to carry on the work, Maj. Robb said.

The entire force of architects and engineers will probably be moved to the site of the huge project so as to keep in close touch with all developments. Mr. Harris will also move his office, and the preparations of plans for schools and other District construction will be done under the direct supervision of an assistant.

Probably the first contract to be let on the gigantic plant will be for boring into the ground to determine what sort of foundation will be necessary. This testing work will be done even before some of the buildings on the site of the first unit, the courts structure, will be vacated. Because some of the tenants have contracts to remain on the property until July 1, actual work on the foundations can not begin before that time.

Man Deserts Hospital Despite Grave Injuries

Charles Jones, of McLean, Va., found Davis and took him to Emergency. Hospital attaches did not learn how the victim received his injuries and the Third Precinct Police Station had no report.

T. S. Amussen, 39, Succumbs at Home

Attorney Drops Dead in Bathroom; Was Born in Santa Barbara.

Theodore S. Amussen, an attorney, 39 years old, of 3000 Forty-fourth street northwest, fell dead in the bathroom of his home yesterday, victim of a heart attack. His body was discovered by a maid.

Mr. Amussen, who was born in Santa Barbara, Calif., had just returned from a visit to Boston, where his wife has been confined in a hospital. He appeared to be in good health.

Mrs. Amussen left Boston for this city late yesterday. Until she arrives no funeral arrangements will be made. Mr. Amussen was a member of the Congressional Country Club and the Washington Country Club.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

An Impression After Reading Gen. Pershing's Story.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

THE longer I am in France the plainer it becomes that the A. E. F. is a large body of troops entirely surrounded by a lack of cooperation. Evidence of chaos at home continues. In answer to my urgent request for airplanes and artillery, fourteen liners from America have arrived this week loaded with butter firkins, nut-crackers, liver pads, polo mallets, porch hammocks, bungalow aprons and electric pianos.

The general staff's action in sending over American made electric pianos is particularly exasperating, inasmuch as they can not be played with French rolls. Premier Clemenceau and Gen. Foch learned of these shipments today at lunch and expressed a belief that our War Department must be under the control of one of our big mail order houses.

FRICTION WITH ITALY.

My diary shows:

Tuesday—Mr. and Mrs. Luke Higginbotham, of Schenectady, N. Y., called with a letter from a well-known ward heeler asking that I stage a battle for Mrs. Higginbotham, who is to write an essay on modern war for the Tuesday Women's Bridge Club and wants to get first-hand material.

Wednesday—Had Heywood Broun rebuked for continuing to dress for character parts.

Thursday—The cook burned my eggs this morning. He will have to be spoken to.

Friday—Had luncheon with Generals Petain, Joffre, Foch and Gough. The raspberry pie was not very good.

Saturday—Cablegram from Secretary Baker, who plans to come to France, asking if I could arrange excursion rates.

CLEMENCEAU IS REBUKED.

ONE of my greatest difficulties is getting equipment and materials for construction work. My cable to Washington for rush shipments of axes, saws and logging machinery has brought nothing so far except safety razor blades, kalsomine brushes, bedroom slippers, stepladders, radiator ornaments and paper hats. This is what comes of having bureau heads at Washington who do not speak English.

We are far behind in our program for operating our own railroad lines over here. I asked Washington for trained railroad men and they have sent me a lot of dentists, Y. M. C. A. secretaries, tree surgeons and retired clam diggers. Two more boatloads of camp stools, folding beds, swivel chairs and bath mats arrived this morning at Brest.

No ammunition to speak of has been sent from the United States as yet, but have a wonderful supply of grandfather clocks, surf-boards, trout rods, bass plugs, filing cabinets and toothpicks.

GRAVE CRISIS IN RUSSIA.

I HAD another conference with allied chiefs today on the disposal of American soldiers. England and France are in complete disagreement, as usual.

I again cabled Secretary Baker that we were far deficient in airplanes and parts. He replied that he realized the gravity of the situation and was rushing over 300,000 bridge tables and all the shoe trees, shaving mugs, chiffoniers, electric light bulbs and buggy whips that the Quartermaster's Department had in stock.

My diary shows:

Wednesday—Six more congressmen visited Headquarters and asked if their wives could witness a big drive from a captive balloon.

Thursday—Gen. Wood for lunch, I made him eat in the kitchen with the hired help.

Friday—Have an inquiry from Washington asking whether cruiser convoy being sent with shipments of pogo sticks was sufficient.

Under the Mussolini regime a campaign is now on to reform the people's food habits. Many present-day dishes are to be abolished for futuristic mixtures designed to improve public health. But Messrs. Butler and Vanderbilt will be allowed to eat the regular table d'hote dishes.

ACTION ON AMOUNT DUE R. L. MAY PENDS

SEEMS BOUND FOR COURT

The question of how much the District should pay R. L. May, owner of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway, to remove his line from Washington, appeared more definitely headed for the courts yesterday when the District Commissioners postponed action until Tuesday.

Meanwhile a hearing on the matter was asked by William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, though the letter of request did not say whether the action was asked on behalf of the committee:

Because of the absence of Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, who is now examining a bill prepared by the corporation counsel's office, the Commissioners delayed acting on both matters. Should a hearing be held, however, it was pointed out the measure could not possibly be sent to the Capitol before the present session of Congress was adjourned. Ten days' notice of such a hearing is necessary.

The proposal that the District government pay $98,000 of the $200,000 compensation to the railway was inserted in the bill by the Federal and District conferees as a matter of expediency. The alternative, they figured, would be long and costly court litigation that would delay the improvement of lower Fourteenth street and might in the long run cost the District more.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Commissioners, said yesterday that should Mr. Clayton's proposal be acted on favorably there would be a question of whether the Commissioners or the Public Utilities Commission should hold the hearing.

The bill now under consideration was approved by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District coordinator; Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, Special Assistant Corporation Counsel William A. Roberts, and representatives of the Treasury Department and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

G. L. WHITFORD, 50, DIES AT RESIDENCE

Pneumonia After Influenza Fatal to Prominent Attorney.

George Langdon Whitford, 50, prominent attorney of Washington and New Hampshire, died yesterday at his home, 2401 Calvert street northwest. Cause of death was given as broncho-pneumonia following influenza. Funeral arrangements have not been completed but burial will be in New Hampshire.

W. B. LYNHAM OBSEQUIES.

Funeral to Be Held at 2 o'Clock This Afternoon.

Funeral services for William B. Lynham, 58 years old, traveling representative of the Art-in-Bronze Co., who died Thursday, will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of J. William Lee Sons, 332 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, by the Rev. Reginald Hall, of Beltsville, Md. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Lynham died here at the Home for Incurables, where he had been taken the day previous. He was born in Staunton, Va., and had been a resident of the Washington area for many years, residing nearby, at Daniels Park, Berwyn, Md.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Amelia A. Lynham, and a daughter, Aileen.

THOMAS G. IGLEHART DIES.

Spanish War Veteran to Be Buried in Arlington Cemetery.

Funeral services for Thomas G. Iglehart, who died yesterday at the George Washington University Hospital following an eight-weeks' illness, will be held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the W. W. Chambers Funeral Home, 1400 Chapin street northwest. Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mr. Iglehart was 53 years old. Born in Annapolis, Md., he came to Washington in his early youth. He saw service in the Spanish-American War. Masonic ritual will prevail at the funeral, as he was a member of Hiram Lodge, No. 10, F. A. A. M. He is survived by his widow, who makes her home at 2630 Adams Mill road, and four children, Donald Iglehart and Olga, Dolores and Frances Iglehart.

Cemetery Trip With Ghost, Ax Chase, End at Gallinger

"Send a policeman; my husband is chasing me with an ax," Mrs. Lula Thomas telephoned Fifth Precinct police yesterday from her home on D street near New Jersey avenue southeast. Policeman J. G. Russell said he found Clarence Thomas, the 40-year-old mate, seated on the staircase with an ax in his hand when he responded to the alarm.

Then Thomas told his story. Some time earlier he had been standing at Fifteenth and U streets northwest when a dead man rose from out of the sidewalk and ordered him to follow. The macabre trail led to Arlington Cemetery, where the departed commanded, "Go on home."

Mr. Thomas suited the action to the word. But the long walk had sharpened his appetite and he called Lula for something to eat. Then, she told police, he started chasing her with the ax.

The policemen, knowing full well that dead men tell no tales, sent the narrator to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation after learning that he had been undergoing treatment for nervous disorders.

LANDSCAPE PLANS FOR SHAFT PLACED BEFORE PARK BODY

NEW BORINGS NEXT TO OBELISK SLATED

Cavity Near Fourteenth to Be Filled, According to Both Designs.

Two plans for beautifying the Washington Monument Grounds with the proposed Mall Triangle development and the Lincoln Memorial were presented to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday.

Designed by F. L. Olmstead, landscape architect, and William A. Delano, architect, one of the schemes calls for an informal improvement chiefly based on a program of planting flowers and shrubbery, while the other is a more formal design that includes a balustrade on the west side and a great deal of filling in on the east.

Both plans are less pretentious than the garden proposed by the McMillan commission in 1901 and abandoned when it was found it would endanger the Monument.

Set of Borings.

Maj. H. O. Gillette, chief engineer of the commission, was instructed to make another set of borings around the obelisk but farther from the shaft.

Under both designs the cavity between the Monument and Fourteenth street will be filled to conform with the proposed road between the Smithsonian and the National Museum, and both call for floral displays on all sides of the shaft.

The Park and Planning Commission yesterday voted to change the name of Burroughs Park to Taft Park in honor of the late President and Chief Justice.

Street Project Approved.

Widening of B street northwest from 72 to 80 feet between Virginia avenue and the River Plaza was approved, though no time was set for the work. Approval was also given to the proposal of Maj. John C. Gotwals, District Engineer Commissioner, to widen Foxhall road south of Cathedral avenue.

Representatives of the Roslyn Business Men's Association appeared before the commission to discuss their plans for zoning, and Irving C. Root and Bond Smith, of the Maryland Park and Planning Commission, discussed the Cramton park bill.

The commission decided to send drawings and plans to the Paris Exposition in response to a request for this material on development of the National Capital.

"Capt. Will," Noted River Figure, Dies

William T. Reynolds, 64 years old, owner of a boathouse between Three Sisters Islands and Chain Bridge, on the District bank of the Potomac River, died yesterday morning at Georgetown University Hospital following an attack of pneumonia.

One of the most familiar figures in water sports circles in Washington, as well as among the professional and amateur fishermen along the Potomac, "Capt. Will" had conducted fishing parties which included many prominent persons.

There have been no records kept of the persons he has saved from drowning. Many are the rescues he has to his credit, but still more would be the number of bodies which he has dragged from the river.

Mr. Reynolds was unmarried. He is survived by four brothers, Joseph Randolph, Albert Francis, Charles L. and Daniel Francis Reynolds, and one sister, Mrs. Mary A. Prockelton, all of this city.

Noted Newspaper Woman Succumbs

Mrs. Margaret B. Downing, Author, Dies at Home in Washington.

Mrs. Margaret B. Downing, newspaper writer and author, died yesterday at her home, 1262 Lawrence street northeast, following a sudden heart attack. She was known as the dean of Washington newspaper women and was widely known throughout the country.

She was the author of "The Tales of Well-Known Folk in Social and Official Life" and "The Development of the Catholic Church in the District of Columbia from Colonial Times." She was born in St. Louis and was educated there and at the old Columbian College here.

Surviving her are a sister, Mrs. J. S. Noel; a niece, Kathleen W. Noel, and a nephew, Joseph C. Noel. Funeral services will be held at St. Anthony's Church Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Edward Hollander Is Taken by Death

Edward Hollander, 76, of 511 Oglethorpe street northwest, died yesterday morning at his home. He had lived in Washington for 60 years, coming here from Hanover, Germany, where he was born.

For many years he was connected with the firm of D. J. Kaufman, Inc., of this city, and retired from that firm about eight years ago.

Survivors include a brother, William Hollander, and one sister, Mrs. Amelie Hollander Sellinger, with whom he made his home. Funeral services will be conducted at the late residence tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, with Rabbi Abram Simon, officiating. Interment will follow in the Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery.
